Track Torn, Cars Pile Up At Irondale

Freight Skips Track And Then Is Struck By Another Freight

A conductor, a fireman and a brakeman were hospitalized here with injuries received when an eastbound Pennsylvania Railroad Co. freight train derailed and collided with a passing westbound freight at 12:35 a. m. today at New Salisbury near Irondale.

A total of 34 cars piled up and 600 to 700 feet of track was torn up, according to a railroad official. Three units of the westbound diesel were among those which left the tracks.

The official report of the Wintersville State Highway Patrol, which investigated, showed damage totaling approximately $200,000.

Admitted to City Hospital were Edward Clevinger, 36, of Crestline R. D. 2 who is in "fair" condition with a neck injury.

John Hart, 62, of Crestline, who is in "fair" condition with head and lower back injuries.

Claude Testament, 44, of Gallion, who is in "fairly good" condition with contusions of the back and right leg.

Clevinger, a fireman, was on the westbound train, while Hart, a conductor, and Testament, a brakeman, were on the eastbound freight.

Carl S. Herr of Cleveland, public relations director for the Lake Division of Pennsylvania Railroad, said the wreck occured at Mile Post 32 at New Salisbury, about 100 yards west of where another derailment happened Jan. 18.

Herr said both trains were at the same spot at the same time when a journal box on the 43rd car of the eastbound burned out.

The car dropped to the tracks, derailed and fell over onto the passing westbound train, carrying others with it.

The 125-car eastbound train was headed for Conway, while the 105-car westbound was headed for Chicago. The westbound was made up of 21 loaded cars and 84 empties.

No estimate has been made of the loss. Several of the cars telescoped but none of the loads was spilled.

Two flatcars loaded with farm machinery tipped over, but none of the machinery appeared damaged. A gondola loaded with steel rings also tipped over but none was spilled out.

The tracks are part of the Bayard Line and are used only for freight. Traffic today was being re-routed over other lines.

The cars ripped down railroad telephone lines, cutting communications. Emergency lines were being set up this morning.

More than 100 cars piled up at the spot during the Jan. 18 derailment.

Work crews were called from Mingo Junction and Canton. They were working at both ends of the damaged section.

An official at the site said it will be after midnight tonight before the right-of-way is opened.

Midland Area Boys Injured Near Chester

Mishap On Route 30 Hill Also Hurts Trio Of Pennsylvanians

Two Midland area youths were hospitalized and three Pittsburgh district young people were injured in a collision on the Route 30 Hill leading into Chester Sunday night about 10:45.

A car driven by Robert Lucas, 17, of Smiths Ferry R. D. 1, headed west, went out of control when another auto ahead slowed suddenly because of an icy place on the highway.

Lucas' 1956 sedan skidded into the opposite lane and collided with an oncoming auto driven by Kenneth Loksell, 22, of Apollo R. D. 3, the Hancock County sheriff's office reported.

In City Hospital are Lucas, son of Andrew Lucas, in "good" condition with a possible fractured jaw, and Terry Speerhas, 17, son of Mrs. Jane Speerhas of Industry R. D. 1, a passenger, in "good" condition with bruises of the forehead, nose and chin.

Loksell, who suffered two lacerations of the scalp, abrasions of the knee and a possible fracture of the left hip, was treated at the hospital and released.

Two passengers in his car also were treated and released. They were Thomas Akins, 23, of Apollo R. D. 3, who received a cut of the chin and a possible fracture of the elbow, and Theresa Urbanski, 20, of East Vandergrift, Pa., a possible shoulder fracture, and fracture of the jaw and cuts of the knee.

Lucas' auto and Liksell's sedan were demolished, deputies said.

Leftists Take Beating During Ceylon Voting

COLOMBO, Ceylon (AP) — Former Prime Minister Dudley Senanayake today told Gov. Gen. Sir Oliver Goonetilleke he is ready to form a new government for Ceylon.

The British-educated Senanayake's conservative United National party won only 50 seats in the 151 lower house in Saturday's parliamentary elections, but it was the biggest winner.

The leftists took a beating in the election.

New Season's Debut Marked By Light Snow

Despite that old March lyin', which kicked up snow flurries in the weatherman's eyes, spring arrived officially in East Liverpool Sunday morning.

Regardless of the change of seasons, more wintry weather is in store before the crocus arrives and the tulips bloom.

It will be continued cold with scattered snow flurries today and a high temperature of 30-35, the weatherman said. It will be mostly fair and continued cold tonight and Tuesday. The low tonight will be 15-20.

Heavy snow flurries Sunday afternoon disputed the arrival of spring.

The light snow and low temperatures made some district roads slick early this morning, according to the State Highway Patrol at Lisbon, but no reports of accidents were received.

Spring began in Ohio with cloudy skies and light snow. During the weekend snow accumulated to a depth of 1 inch at Columbus and Toledo, 3 inches at Dayton and 2 at Cincinnati. Temperatures dropped to the low 20s by this morning and snow flurries were falling over most of the state.

Skies will be mostly clear tonight except in the northeast counties and Tuesday will be partly cloudy.

Early morning temperatures Tuesday will be mostly near 20, but the warmest afternoon readings of the week are expected.

Voting Board Extends Hours For Registration

With 10,135 East Liverpool voters already registered, the County Election Board today launched a final drive to qualify voters for the May 3 primaries before the deadline Wednesday at 9 p. m.

The board will maintain a continuous 12-hour schedule from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. today through Wednesday to permit unqualified voters to register, Frank R. O'Hanlon, clerk, said.

The W. 6th St. office will be open through both the lunch and dinner hours for the convenience of those unable to register during regular office hours.

The registration lists will be closed at 9 p. m. Wednesday and the board, under state law, will not be permitted to resume registration until 10 days after the primaries.

Compromise Plan Pressed In Rights War

Clark Among Those Urging Combination Of Rival Proposals

WASHINGTON (AP) — A combination of rival plans for protecting Negro voting rights was put before the Senate today as it began its sixth week of debate on civil rights legislation.

An amendment offered by Sen. Joseph S. Clark (D-Pa) and a dozen other senators would provide alternative methods for preventing denial of the right to register and vote because of race or color.

Under one method federal district courts could appoint referees to register Negroes qualified under state law and to make sure they were allowed to vote and have their vote counted.

As an alternative, the President could appoint federal enrollment officers to carry out a similar function.

Clark described the amendment as a compromise designed to reconcile the views of those who favor the administration's plan for court-appointed referees and those who advocated the appointment of administrative officers by the President.

In the House, where civil rights legislation also is up for action, backers of the referee plan predicted its approval there. A vote on it may come Tuesday after further attempts by Southern opponents to modify it.

Cleveland Driver Dies On Turnpike In Beaver

BEAVER FALLS — A Cleveland man died of an apparent heart attack at the wheel of his auto and crashed into another car Sunday night along the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

The Beaver County coroner's office said Meshullan A. Feigenbaum, 51, suffered a coronary occlusion shortly before the wreck.

Three youths in the other car suffered minor injuries.

U.S. May Ask 'Priority' For Disarmament

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States may propose to its allies and the Soviet Union that disarmament be given top priority in negotiations at the May 16 summit conference in Paris.

Officials considering this possibility believe the result might be to take some of the heat off the dispute with the Soviet Union over West Berlin and to concentrate attention on the one subject which offers the possibility oomfr atpint agreement.

A priority for disarmament was discussed by top U.S. leaders with West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer during his visit last week.

It was further pointed up by the new Soviet conditional acceptance of a U.S. proposal for a limited rather than total treaty ban on test explosions of nuclear weapons.

The Soviets made their offer Saturday. U.S. officials are skeptical about their purpose but note they now have narrowed the gap between their own and the Western position on a nuclear test treaty.

If they are acting in good faith, officials said, it might be possible to work out most of the problems involved in agreement on a

Unprecedented Security Screen

Paris Officials Go All Out To Protect Mr. K On Visit

PARIS (AP) — France is arranging an unprecedented security screen to insure that Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev is hit by nothing heavier than confetti during his visit starting Wednesday.

Only Yugoslav President Tito's visit two years ago prompted security measures approaching those being prepared to protect the Soviet leader.

Mindful of Khrushchev's complaints that he was kept away from the people during his U. S. tour, the French are trying to be discreet. But the curtain will be there every time Khrushchev steps out in public.

Postponement of the visit and then the shortening of the trip forced complete rearrangement of plans.

The postponement also meant an extension of forced vacations being given some 800 political refugees, mostly from Iron Curtain countries.

These were picked up two weeks ago and sent to Corsica and other islands.

The arrangements for Khrushchev are complicated by his 1,800-mile trip through France. Wherever he travels by train, the tracks will be guarded hours in advance and a policeman posted every half mile. A security train will precede Khrushchev's. Arrangements were tightened after a Paris-Marseille train was derailed recently, apparently by sabotage.

In Paris police and plainclothesmen will line Khrushchev's routes through the city, and firemen will be placed on the roofs.

Wherever Khrushchev travels by car, he will be accompanied by 120 motorcycle policemen.

Bolivia Quiet After Quelling Police Revolt

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Bolivia's capital was back to normal today and the government of President Hernan Siles Zuazo in complete control after crushing a police revolt.

Sixteen persons were killed and 106 wounded in sharp fighting Saturday between a police regiment led by Col. Hermogenes Rios Ledezma and government forces.

Ledezma fled and escaped capture. His second in command, Col. Burgos Navia, was slain in the five-hour battle.

The motive for the revolt was not clear.

But President Siles said it was "blood proof" of the government's charge two weeks ago that former President Enrique Hertzog was conspiring with former tin magnate Carlos Victor Aramayo against the Socialist-inclined government.

There was speculation that Ledezma was the front man in an attempt to install a police government or force the removal of labor leader Juan Lechin as the vice presidential candidate on the government ticket in the May 22 elections.

Names Of 250 Drawn For Service As Jurors

LISBON — The names of 250 county residents were drawn from the jury wheel today by Jury Commissioners James S. Gregg of Salem and Clifford Connelly of East Liverpool.

Fifty will be prospective grand jurors for the April term of court, which begins officially at noon April 4. The prospective grand jurors will report at 9:30 a. m. April 5 before Common Pleas Judge Joel H. Sharp, who will preside at the criminal trials for the April term.

Special Treatment Set In Bid For Male Heir

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Expectant Queen Farah is taking special treatment which doctors believe gives at least "50 per cent assurance" that she will provide a male heir for Iran's throne.

A royal court spokesman confirmed Sunday that the 21-year-old third wife of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi is expecting a baby.

U.S., Britain Ponder Latest Russian Plan

GENEVA (AP) — New Soviet proposals for a partial ban on nuclear weapon tests came under close American and British study today. The two Western powers sought enlightenment on safety provisions which the Soviets maintain are contained in their plan.

The Soviet government proposed Saturday that the three powers enter into a treaty banning all atomic and hydrogen weapon tests except small underground trials.

This would be accompanied by a moratorium on the excluded underground tests while a joint scientific study of this difficult problem was undertaken.

Washington and London want to know exactly what the Soviet government has in mind to guard against a violation of the moratorium.

The parial ban was first proposed by President Eisenhower Feb. 11. Western sources said that if the Soviet actually favor safety provisions acceptable to the U.S. and British governments, the 17-month-old nuclear test ban conference may be on the threshold of achieving a treaty.

After introducing the Soviet proposal, Soviet delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin told the Western delegates his government would allow some on-site inspections to guard against the small underground explosions.

The Soviets said their plan also included acceptance of a Western proposal for joint East-West scientific studies of ways to detect the small underground blasts, which the West says give seismic readings that cannot be distinguished from those given by the numerous small earthquakes the earth experiences constantly.

Tsarapkin's move shifted the whole emphasis of the conference back to an old and difficult problem—the fixing of quotas for the number of veto-free, on-site inspections the three powers would allow on their territories.

Both the Soviet proposal and President Eisenhower's call for banning all test explosions in the atmosphere, on the surface of the earth and in the oceans to remove any health danger from fallout. The ban also would apply to all underground tests having a seismic reading of 4.75 or more.

2 More Days To Register

To be eligible to vote in East Liverpool at the May 3 primary election, you must register with the County Election Board at 129 W. 6th St. if:

A new resident is qualified to vote after he has resided in Ohio for a year and in Columbiana County and his precinct 40 days prior to Election Day. East Liverpool is the only community in the county where voter registration is required.

★ "Safety Torq" Blade Assembly

Eliminates any possible damage to engine crankshaft because the shock of hitting a foreign object is absorbed in the Safety-Torq blade assembly before the shock reaches the engine shaft. Where shock is extreme, the attaching hub itself is designed to fracture at less force than is required to bend the engine crankshaft. This permits the blade to run free. It cannot come off. This assembly has been torture tested by running it into 7/8" steel stakes without damage to the mower or engine.

★ Grass Discharge

From front chute thru special design discharge area to force grass to disperse naturally and evenly without tendency to windrow.

Vandals Hit New High

MANDAN, N. D. (AP) — The inventiveness of vandals hit a new high at St. Joseph's Church here. The janitor reported someone had filled all the keyholes with liquid solder. It took a locksmith to get them back in working order.

The playing of cards is an ancient game. It has been recorded that they were used in Egypt in the time of Joseph and that their use extended as far east as Hindustan and China at a period long before their introduction into Europe.

Motorist Unhurt

SALINEVILLE — Bill Roberts of R. D. 1 escaped injury when his 1952 sedan skidded and rolled over on E. Main St. Friday night. The mishap, which occurred at a turn in the street, caused heavy damage to the auto.

An average of 30 million Americans, or about nine million families, change their addresses every year. Most of these moves take place within the same county or state, but six million moves are across state lines.

Bragging A Bit

ROCKY FORD, Colo. (AP) — J. R. Miles reports that an Alaskan restaurant carries this sign in its window: "Clam Chowder — 50 cents. Texas-size bowl—25 cents."

And A Ha! Ha! To You

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Motorists driving through snow flurries on U.S. 40 west of Columbus early today saw this sign on a restaurant marquee:

"Spring? Ha! Ha!"

Widest thoroughfare in the world is the Avenida Nueve de Julio, in Buenos Aires, Argentina. This avenue measures 460 feet from side to side and has five roadways separated by grass plots and lines of trees.

15 Killed Across Nation As Private Planes Fall

Fifteen persons were killed during the weekend as private planes crashed from Maine to California.

Four persons from Allentown, Pa., died Sunday when a plane owned by a flying club crashed while the pilot was trying to make an emergency landing near Kingston, N.Y.

The victims were Ralph R. Peters, 63; Karl H. Schmudt, 33; Linda Schmudt, 16, and Oliver T. Rex, 37.

At Fullerton, Calif., Leon M. Boisseranc watched a light plane piloted by his son, Leon Jr., 29, suddenly plunge into a home and explode. The home was that of the flier's uncle, Emil Boisseranc. Emil, his wife, and three children hurried safely from the house, which was destroyed. Boisseranc Jr. was killed.

John Oman III, 53, head of a big construction firm, crashed with an employe, Sam Lindsey, both of Nashville, Tenn., while attempting an instrument landing during a light snowstorm near Nashville. Both were killed. They were home-bound from flying Argentine Ambassador Emilio Donato del Carril to Muscle Shoals, Ala.

At Kankakee, Ill., a single-engine plane was wrecked during a snowstorm, killing Sidney E. McGinty, 51, of Glen Ellyn, Ill.

At Fort Worth, Tex., a student pilot, Mahmoud Saud Barghouti, 26, from Jordan, was killed in a crash while trying to land at Russell Field, where he was enrolled in a flying school.

A pilot who telephoned friends and said he would fly over their ranch home died Sunday with a woman companion when the plane crashed on the ranch near Fort Worth. Killed were J. R. Fleming, 40, Duncan, Okla., and Mrs. Mina Tillery, 35, also of Duncan. The crash occurred near the home of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Davidson.

Three men on their way Saturday to Moosehead Lake, Maine, for ice-fishing crashed in a private plane. Their bodies and the wreckage were found on frozen Lily Bay Sunday. They were Virgil Chadbourne, 41, the pilot and his two passengers, Roy Davis, about 40, and Jake Hanson, 60, both of Greenville, Maine.

A 5-year-old boy was killed Sunday as a single-engine plane crashed in a field near Annapolis, Md. Jack Julius Hlista of Randallstown, near Baltimore, died of a crushed skull. Two adults in the plane, including the pilot, were seriously injured.

Vandals Hit New High

MANDAN, N. D. (AP) — The inventiveness of vandals hit a new high at St. Joseph's Church here. The janitor reported someone had filled all the keyholes with liquid solder. It took a locksmith to get them back in working order.

The playing of cards is an ancient game. It has been recorded that they were used in Egypt in the time of Joseph and that their use extended as far east as Hindustan and China at a period long before their introduction into Europe.

Motorist Unhurt

SALINEVILLE — Bill Roberts of R. D. 1 escaped injury when his 1952 sedan skidded and rolled over on E. Main St. Friday night. The mishap, which occurred at a turn in the street, caused heavy damage to the auto.

An average of 30 million Americans, or about nine million families, change their addresses every year. Most of these moves take place within the same county or state, but six million moves are across state lines.

Publisher Dies At 88

WILLMAR, Minn. (AP)—Victor E. Lawson, 88, founder and publisher of the west central Minnesota Daily Tribune, died Saturday after a long illness. He was born in Paxton, Ill., and had been associated with the Tribune since 1895.

Bragging A Bit

ROCKY FORD, Colo. (AP) — J. R. Miles reports that an Alaskan restaurant carries this sign in its window: "Clam Chowder — 50 cents. Texas-size bowl—25 cents."

And A Ha! Ha! To You

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Motorists driving through snow flurries on U.S. 40 west of Columbus early today saw this sign on a restaurant marquee:

"Spring? Ha! Ha!"

Widest thoroughfare in the world is the Avenida Nueve de Julio, in Buenos Aires, Argentina. This avenue measures 460 feet from side to side and has five roadways separated by grass plots and lines of trees.

Marie Vs. The Planned Society

Richard Combs, foster father of the now famous 4-year-old girl who has been rescued from social planning in New Jersey, says he intends to tell her about it when she is big enough to understand. Meanwhile the Combses will be permitted to adopt Alice Marie.

The furor blew up when it became known the social planners wanted to take her away from her foster parents because she was gifted with extraordinary intelligence.

The planners did not think the Combses, a couple with more love than learning, measured up to the responsibility of rearing a child with such high promise.

The planners were repulsed.

They had to back down and concede that a little girl who never had known any other parents had a right to their love and they to hers. The right transcended any claimed benefit from transferring her to an environment that promised more education. Love in the new environment could have been no greater, though there might have been more books and more educational background.

The day was saved, Alice Marie's father believes, because public opinion was stirred by the news of what was afoot. When the Board of Child Welfare realized it had let itself in for a fight with millions awaiting the outcome it decided its ideas were not worth the furor they would cause.

The world in general believes that children who have found love in this world have the most precious thing there is; that no one has a right to interfere with them or with the people who love them. Social planners sometimes get addled in the performance of their jobs and try to accomplish other ends. But not when public opinion has been alerted to what is afoot.

If Richard Combs tells this to Alice Marie when she grows up he will be telling her only what she will know by that time. She has found the most precious thing there is for a child—love that can keep her from harm. She will know that all her life.

A Welcome 'Hit'

That was a welcome "hit" which the police department and the municipal judge made on the numbers writers over the weekend.

They left no doubt that they mean business in their efforts to clean up the racket, backed up by the tough anti-gambling legislation now in effect.

It's difficult to erase the numbers completely, but maximum fines and jail sentences should go far toward curbing the practice. If the judge keeps throwing the book at the writers when the opportunity presents itself they will think twice before putting their pads and pencils to work.

The arrests and ultimate penalties demonstrated the results possible in all-out cooperation between the police department and the court.

When possible, examples also should be made of those who play the numbers. The racket is a two-way street. If the public didn't buy, the writers couldn't write.

The war on the numbers ties in well with the administration's program which has kept commercialized gambling out of the city. The gambling element should realize clearly by this time that it is not wanted in East Liverpool.

A Chance To Do Things Right

All the superlatives in the dictionary have been brushed off to describe history's most ambitious real estate project, the biggest city ever built from scratch, the largest expenditure of private funds ever put into a municipal development—the most unusual project of its kind in the whole world.

In milder terms, it is Breezy Point City, a planned community for 220,000 people on the Rockaway Peninsula in Queens, facing the Atlantic Ocean. An existing New York summer community of some 3,000 summer cottages will be razed and replaced during the next decade with a city expected to be the 47th largest in the country. The new city hall will come into being with everything provided —schools, parks, churches, cultural centers, shopping centers, libraries, police and fire stations.

Its planners promise it will be free from "urban irritants," the nagging annoyances that have driven so many Americans into the suburbs. Though Breezy Point will be designed for residents in upper middle income brackets, it will not be a playground community but the living headquarters of active earners and workers. Everything about it will be done to make it perfect, promise its promoters.

With a chance to do things right, they will do nothing wrong. Decentralization, for one thing, will be built into Breezy Point; it will not have to be done later to offset too much centralization. Buildings will be designed for the way people live. There will be space for cars. Children will have space to play. Adults will have space for recreation. The site of Breezy Point is going to be a summer resort, not far from Coney Island, behind it on the other side of Rockaway Inlet. Life will be pleasant there—airy, bright and clean.

It is an exciting prospect—the kind that can make the heart of every urban planner and every urban dweller beat faster. We love our cities despite their faults. Sometimes we love them because of their faults. But almost never has a city been built from the ground up, with everything done right. Washington was planned, and Salt Lake City was not only planned but built to the plan. The rest just grew, like urban toadstools, and mostly that is the impression they make.

Airlines Should Know Best

That Big Brother in Washington known as the federal government has done it again.

It has handed down — and made stick—an edict declaring that all airline pilots past the age of 60 are unfit to fly passenger planes. The action is typical of the bureaucratic passion for drawing arbitrary lines and saying that any one of 180 million individuals who steps across them is endangering the common good.

The same sort of line was drawn when Social Security retirement age was set at 65, which encouraged the general adoption of the philosophy that a man at 64 still has something to contribute but at 66 has outlived his usefulness. This was modified later to say that the age of crossover for women is 62.

The interesting thought that comes to mind is where the line should be drawn for the people who make such edicts possible. A quick check of the Congressional Directory shows that no fewer than 67 persons who will be 65 or older this year are piloting the country from the hallowed halls on Capitol Hill. Several of them are in their 80s and the number in their 70s is so large as to make them almost commonplace.

Yet few arguments are heard for putting age limits on their activities. Indeed, a strong argument can be made for the maturity and experience which age brings to bear on them.

The crux of the whole matter is the individual. No doubt some pilots over 60 are unfit to handle the complicated, high-speed airplanes in use today. But some pilots over 60 may be better equipped to handle them than men 20 years younger.

How to decide which? In the past the airlines themselves have done it. Public confidence in air safety records being the key to the financial success of airlines, the companies have as big a stake as the government, if not a bigger one, in determining who should be entrusted with the lives of passengers and the operation of multi-million-dollar vehicles.

And rigid, continuing tests for airline pilots would seem to be a better way of determining which ones fill the bill than arbitrary erection of an age wall by Washington.

The Newspaper Game

By Frank Tripp

I don't know where the idea came from that all you've got to do to be a newspaperman is decide to be one. Every now and then somebody says, "I'm going to get into the newspaper game." Just like he was deciding to play canasta.

First off, calling the business a game doesn't set well with the men who pass out the jobs—and few of the lesser lights have found it much of a game.

There's been a lot of discussion as to whether newspapering (on the editorial side) is or is not a profession. Not many already steeped in it care very much if it is or not but even the hardest boiled stoic among them is likely to resent having his occupation called a game.

And you can get a rise out of plenty of seasoned old-timers by calling them journalists. That's another term that is not popular among American newsmen.

Still, schools which teach newspapering call themselves Schools of Journalism. The name fits of course but to men who came up the hard way a journalist is a heavy thinking, fussy bird who takes two wandering columns to say what a newspaper tells in one paragraph.

JOURNALISM schools don't teach verbosity but too much of their product practices it. It's because maybe that Algernon's pretraining opuses reek with inconsequential detail.

Till he bumped into an unkind city editor he felt a likely candidate for editor of the London Times. At present chances are that Algernon is hopefully holding onto his job as obituary editor of the Bingville Bugle and is learning to tell it quick.

The newsroom vintage that denies they're journalists got their schooling on the job. The composing room foreman threw them downstairs the day they suggested that rubber type would ease a crowded line. And they wiped their eyes all day after a printer introduced them to "type lice."

This non-existent phenomenon is the gasoline with which type is cleaned of ink after taking a proof. As the neophyte looks real close to see the lice the printer snaps the type slugs together and spatters the cub's face with diluted printer's ink.

While some pretty flossy writing finds its way into newspapers, the truth is that fancy writing is a small part of the qualifications for a crack at a newspaper career.

Of five candidates for a job, the lad who can tell his tale quickest in meaningful, unwasted words has the best chance—and if he has the best chance—and if he has unusual talent at this the editor will hug him to his breast.

SO WHEN YOU or your little boy decide that it's a newspaper job you want, the real test of your chance to stick is 10 per cent ability to write and 90 per cent ability to find something to write about. Because you'll find a disillusioning philosophy in the boss' marble heart: "You bring it in; we'll get it written."

After The Honeymoon

The Gross National Product

By Raymond Moley

Don't try to pronounce the word "statisticulation." It is derived from a funny book which deserves a place among the useful classics of these times, Darrell Huff's "How to Lie With Statistics." It isn't necessary to falsify figures. It's a matter of selection and arrangement.

As a mine of goodies for orators supporting that still nameless Democratic candidate, Prof. Paul Douglas' Joint Economic Committee of Congress has prepared a 72-page report.

Without bothering about all the economic gibberish in the report, I select one tiny table for consideration and out of this tiny table only one column of figures. This table is very important, for its content will be one of the major issues in 1960.

It gives the rate of growth of the Gross National Product, known to one and all as the GNP and itself as phony a calculation as a gangster's income tax return. For all you have to do to produce any given GNP is to print enough money.

THE COMPARISONS are based upon "constant 1958 dollars."

For the period 1890-1959 the rate of GNP growth was 3.2 per cent; for 1890-1919, 3.5 per cent; for 1919-1959, 2.9 per cent; for 1919-1947, 2.6 per cent; for 1947-1953, 4.6 per cent; for 1953-1959, 2.3 per cent.

There is a note that 1959 dollars were used to calculate the last, because if 1958 dollars had been used, the per cent would have been 2.4. That would have destroyed the nice comparison between the Truman and the Eisenhower years which, as you see, shows that under the former the rate of growth was twice that of the latter.

The Truman-Eisenhower comparison is what Prof. Douglas was preparing as a nice nugget for his party's orators. They might have trouble remembering figures but who could not say "twice as great" without looking at his cuffs?

The professor's figures were eagerly seized by the AFL-CIO News, which flared headlines about Ike's "slowdown policies."

But the Truman years consisted of four years of peace and three years of rearmament, including the Korean War years. If the professor had taken the four years of Truman peace, no growth at all would have been shown but rather a decline of 2.2. per cent.

Thus, if we should want to statisticate further, we could show that the Truman peace was far worse than the Eisenhower peace. But that would be overlooking the fact that rearmament had to continue after the Korean War.

Why on earth the years were selected for grouping as they were prior to 1947 is past understanding. In other regroupings, quite amazing arguments might have been made for Republican years. But why go on with this numbers game?

WE SHALL HEAR a lot of talk about the relatively faster rate of growth in Russia as compared with our own.

That bit of lying with statistics is done by using a different sort of base from which to start.

A year ago, my colleague, Henry Hazlitt, in two articles in "Newsweek," thoroughly exposed this "growth" game. So far as relative growth is concerned, he cited the rate of growth of our television industry. Between 1946 and 1947 the rate of growth of sets sold was 2,757 per cent, with an increase in sets of only 193,000. Since 1950 the rate of growth has been zero but we are turning out from five million to seven million sets a year.

The boy in the third grade can say proudly to his brother who is 19 that his rate of growth is tremendous by comparison. The 19-year-old young man will answer that when he gets a baby, its growth will be 195 per cent in its first year.

Prof. Paul Douglas had the best economic education obtainable, together with 14 honorary doctorates. It is a pity to see all this used to frustrate rather than to advance the enlightenment of the public.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

From earliest times philosophers have recognized that man is body, mind and soul. And to have good health these need to work with, not against, each other. Plato wrote, a long time ago, "Neither should we ever attempt to cure the body without curing the soul." Moderns are just now catching up with this wise philosopher of old. Through modern medicine we know that many illnesses originate in the emotions or thoughts. Unhealthy thinking can be, and often is, externalized in uhealthy bodily states. A leading New Orleans clinic made a study of some 500 cases. They found that 383 of these people were ailing not because they had had accidents or had contracted organic diseases, but because, according to a doctor's picturesque description, "Those patients were draining back into their bodies the diseased thoughts of their minds."

Dr. Peale

IN FACT, our health largely depends on what we harbor in our minds. Three important rules of health follow from this, and apply to all of us.

A first rule is to keep free of any kind of guilt. Wrongdoing can actually plant the seeds of sickness in the soul. Then that illness proceeds to adversely affect the mind and, in time, the body. So, if you have a feeling of guilt, you should get rid of it in order to feel healthy. Preachers have always said this; now many doctors are seconding the motion.

Let me tell you the interesting story of a man whose wife wrote to me saying, "If you ever come to our city, I want you to see my husband." This man had formerly been successful in business, active in civic groups, popular and outgoing. Then, he had begun to feel bad, for no visible reason. He lost his vitality. Finally he got so that all he did was sit and stare.

The doctors diagnosed his condition as a nervous breakdown. One doctor wisely remarked that the patient must have something on his mind and might begin to mend if only he would talk about it.

Eventually my engagements did take me to that city and I saw him. His manner was dull and apathetic and at first all he would say was that he felt ill. Finally, I asked him, "Isn't there something you have not yet unloaded? Why not come clean and tell it to me?" Then, bit by bit, out came some of the things which he had done in life which he considered wrong and sinful. When at last he had told everything, he sat back, spent.

I MADE A heaping motion with my hands. "What are you doing," he asked curiously.

"Heaping up all that part of your past that has weighed so heavily on your mind. Quite a heavy mass, isn't it? How could you expect to feel well?" I then suggested he ask the Lord to forgive him and make him well again. He did so, then and there, praying aloud like a child. It was a moving experience to listen to him. We sat in silence a few moments.

Then he did a strange thing. He stood up, stretched his arms out, raised himself up on his tiptoes, brought his arms up over his head, took a deep breath and said, "My, but I feel good!" That was the beginning of his return to rugged health.

Along with keeping free of guilt, try to practice daily mental hygiene. Dr. Sara Jordan of the Lahey Clinic said, "Every day give your mind a good shampoo." Systematically empty your mind of all hate thoughts, defeat thoughts, mean or negative thoughts. Displace and replace them with faith and love thoughts. To have good health, think healthy thoughts.

Durable Humans

By Thomas R. Henry

The human body has a marvelous capacity to withstand crashes.

It can, for example, tolerate forces that would completely demolish most airplanes — forces as much as 300 times the pull of gravity or equivalent to a weight of 25,000 pounds — without very serious injury.

This has just been reported to the Office of Naval Research by Cornell University scientists, whose investigations have been partly financed by the Navy.

A recent case is reported of a workman who fell 150 feet from a smokestack and landed on his side in a pile of loose rubble where his body made a depression eight inches deep. The man was fully conscious and rational when picked up. He had sustained a fractured ankle and a fractured jaw. He had a black eye and numerous scratches. Otherwise he was all right.

Such a fall, according to the Cornell report, would result in a minimum impact velocity of more than 90 feet a second.

"Calculations on the duration of the impact and the rate of onset of deceleration indicate this deceleration lasted approximately .014 of a second and the rate of onset was in excess of 22,000 times gravity per second," says the Cornell report.

"It is important to note that this enormous deceleration did not result in fracture of the skull, serious injury to the brain or amnesia. The survivor said that when he found himself falling he said to himself 'This is it,' and closed his eyes and relaxed."

The ascertained facts, says the report, are difficult to believe but are fully supported by investigations of 14 other similar falls.

"These show beyond any reasonable doubt," says the report, "that such decelerations can be survived with little or no injury when the force is applied during a brief period and is well distributed over large areas of the body.

"From the data of these free falls, as well as from aircraft accidents, it is recognized that the ability of the human body to tolerate crash force has been greatly underestimated.

"With reasonable engineered protection and proper support it is probable that the human body can tolerate forces that will completely demolish most aircraft now in use."

A New Approach

By James Marlow

Younger Negroes Get Action On Rights

WASHINGTON

One of the most significant turns in the Negroes' fight for civil rights—and it doesn't suggest racial quiet in the South—seems to be second thoughts by officials of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Second thoughts, that is, on whether they have been wrong over the years in concentrating their efforts for civil rights almost entirely on the quiet legal approach, depending mostly on the courts to break down the racial barriers.

For more than a score of years the NAACP has been the Negroes' leader in the civil rights battle. Now younger Negroes in the South, particularly students, are asserting leadership through direct action.

The NAACP has won one victory after another in the courts, climaxed by the Supreme Court ruling against racial segregation in public schools.

It has been a slow fight and a patient one, even though some white Southerners may regard the NAACP as a kind of revolutionary force, if not worse.

Now there is evidence the young, educated Negroes of the South are impatient with the slow approach. They have shown it in their demonstrations, their marches through the streets, their sit-downs at chain store lunch-counters which serve only white customers.

More than 1,000 of them have been arrested in the South for these activities. Over the weekend some leaders of the NAACP began to show signs of wondering whether their long-established slow, legal approach is all that is needed.

Thurgood Marshall, NAACP chief attorney and the real guiding force in its long court fights, said of the young Southern Negroes: "They have made us reexamine our sights. The least we can do is support them."

He conferred here for two days with 60 lawyers called in from every Southern state and then announced that the Negro demonstrators who get arrested in the South will have the legal help to fight their cases.

Sunday in a TV discussion Roy Wilkins, secretary of the NAACP and its chief spokesman, said he couldn't predict whether the continued activity of the young Southern Negroes will lead to violence.

He said: "They have hit on a truth the older people have not recognized yet. It is this: their status as citizens. These children have put their finger on the truth of the matter:

"'If I am not fit to eat a hamburger in a restaurant, the other rights don't amount to anything.'"

Wilkins added: "If the mood of these young peolpe is interpreted right, they are tired of the legal approach."

Now the young Negro student demonstrators in the South are getting sympathy and support from their white counterparts in colleges and universities in the North.

The New York Times, in a roundup story, reported Sunday that these Northern white students not only are sympathetic but have in some cases organized themselves in protest against what the Southern Negroes protest.

An Inside Job

By Truman Twill

With no intention to offend anyone who works outside, this column made a crack the other day about escaping the hardship of outside work.

The crack sounded as if the escape had been made possible by learning to spell. Worse than that, it sounded as if escape from outside work as such were desirable.

Let us, as they say in politics, set the record straight. There will be a lot of that this presidential year.

The knock was not against the outside as a place to work but against working outside in bad weather. It was inspired by the sight of structural steel erectors straddling girders and hanging on in the teeth of an icy wind.

No one ever claimed that was a bargain—and that was what was meant by the crack about "escaping" it. The crack was based on personal recollection.

Outside work has been traditional in our family, whose members have looked upon inside workers as caged animals. Even those of us who have ended up in occupations that keep us inside regard our working time as imprisonment.

We live to get back outdoors.

Under all ordinary circumstances, we choose outside to inside.

But when the climate blows up a storm the way it has behaved the last month, it is nice to know it will not be necessary to spend the new day outside in pursuit of a living.

This point of view was shaped by suffering. The first shaping was done when the family income was derived from the trucking business. That was before snow tires, antifreeze, good roads, heaters and snug truck cabs.

After trucking came the lumber business—acres of unheated buildings and wind-swept yards, with snow piled atop the lumber piles, everything frozen tight and no pain on earth comparable with the pain of a hand or foot already throbbing with cold getting pinched or struck.

In summer, what could be nicer than a ride on a truck, or a pleasant day pushing 2 by 4s from here to there, or tossing cove molding on to a pile, or quaffing cool water from a glass-covered jug buried on the shady side of a pile of sheathing?

What could be more wonderful in good weather than to be any kind of outside worker, envied by all insiders? That is the way it always has been in our family.

But when the weather is in a storm, the mirage disappears. Who wants to monkey with towering bluffs when the temperature is sinking and the wind is rising. Then, if ever, a fellow is thankful he learned to spell well enough to work in a newspaper office.

Marie Vs. The Planned Society

Richard Combs, foster father of the now famous 4-year-old girl who has been rescued from social planning in New Jersey, says he intends to tell her about it when she is big enough to understand. Meanwhile the Combses will be permitted to adopt Alice Marie.

The furor blew up when it became known the social planners wanted to take her away from her foster parents because she was gifted with extraordinary intelligence.

The planners did not think the Combses, a couple with more love than learning, measured up to the responsibility of rearing a child with such high promise.

The planners were repulsed.

They had to back down and concede that a little girl who never had known any other parents had a right to their love and they to hers. The right transcended any claimed benefit from transferring her to an environment that promised more education. Love in the new environment could have been no greater, though there might have been more books and more educational background.

The day was saved, Alice Marie's father believes, because public opinion was stirred by the news of what was afoot. When the Board of Child Welfare realized it had let itself in for a fight with millions awaiting the outcome it decided its ideas were not worth the furor they would cause.

The world in general believes that children who have found love in this world have the most precious thing there is; that no one has a right to interfere with them or with the people who love them. Social planners sometimes get addled in the performance of their jobs and try to accomplish other ends. But not when public opinion has been alerted to what is afoot.

If Richard Combs tells this to Alice Marie when she grows up he will be telling her only what she will know by that time. She has found the most precious thing there is for a child—love that can keep her from harm. She will know that all her life.

A Welcome 'Hit'

That was a welcome "hit" which the police department and the municipal judge made on the numbers writers over the weekend.

They left no doubt that they mean business in their efforts to clean up the racket, backed up by the tough anti-gambling legislation now in effect.

It's difficult to erase the numbers completely, but maximum fines and jail sentences should go far toward curbing the practice. If the judge keeps throwing the book at the writers when the opportunity presents itself they will think twice before putting their pads and pencils to work.

The arrests and ultimate penalties demonstrated the results possible in all-out cooperation between the police department and the court.

When possible, examples also should be made of those who play the numbers. The racket is a two-way street. If the public didn't buy, the writers couldn't write.

The war on the numbers ties in well with the administration's program which has kept commercialized gambling out of the city. The gambling element should realize clearly by this time that it is not wanted in East Liverpool.

A Chance To Do Things Right

All the superlatives in the dictionary have been brushed off to describe history's most ambitious real estate project, the biggest city ever built from scratch, the largest expenditure of private funds ever put into a municipal development—the most unusual project of its kind in the whole world.

In milder terms, it is Breezy Point City, a planned community for 220,000 people on the Rockaway Peninsula in Queens, facing the Atlantic Ocean. An existing New York summer community of some 3,000 summer cottages will be razed and replaced during the next decade with a city expected to be the 47th largest in the country. The new city hall will come into being with everything provided —schools, parks, churches, cultural centers, shopping centers, libraries, police and fire stations.

Its planners promise it will be free from "urban irritants," the nagging annoyances that have driven so many Americans into the suburbs. Though Breezy Point will be designed for residents in upper middle income brackets, it will not be a playground community but the living headquarters of active earners and workers. Everything about it will be done to make it perfect, promise its promoters.

With a chance to do things right, they will do nothing wrong. Decentralization, for one thing, will be built into Breezy Point; it will not have to be done later to offset too much centralization. Buildings will be designed for the way people live. There will be space for cars. Children will have space to play. Adults will have space for recreation. The site of Breezy Point is going to be a summer resort, not far from Coney Island, behind it on the other side of Rockaway Inlet. Life will be pleasant there—airy, bright and clean.

It is an exciting prospect—the kind that can make the heart of every urban planner and every urban dweller beat faster. We love our cities despite their faults. Sometimes we love them because of their faults. But almost never has a city been built from the ground up, with everything done right. Washington was planned, and Salt Lake City was not only planned but built to the plan. The rest just grew, like urban toadstools, and mostly that is the impression they make.

Airlines Should Know Best

That Big Brother in Washington known as the federal government has done it again.

It has handed down — and made stick— an edict declaring that all airline pilots past the age of 60 are unfit to fly passenger planes. The action is typical of the bureaucratic passion for drawing arbitrary lines and saying that any one of 180 million individuals who steps across them is endangering the common good.

The same sort of line was drawn when Social Security retirement age was set at 65, which encouraged the general adoption of the philosophy that a man at 64 still has something to contribute but at 66 has outlived his usefulness. This was modified later to say that the age of crossover for women is 62.

The interesting thought that comes to mind is where the line should be drawn for the people who make such edicts possible. A quick check of the Congressional Directory shows that no fewer than 67 persons who will be 65 or older this year are piloting the country from the hallowed halls on Capitol Hill. Several of them are in their 80s and the number in their 70s is so large as to make them almost commonplace.

Yet few arguments are heard for putting age limits on their activities. Indeed, a strong argument can be made for the maturity and experience which age brings to bear on them.

The crux of the whole matter is the individual. No doubt some pilots over 60 are unfit to handle the complicated, high-speed airplanes in use today. But some pilots over 60 may be better equipped to handle them than men 20 years younger.

How to decide which? In the past the airlines themselves have done it. Public confidence in air safety records being the key to the financial success of airlines, the companies have as big a stake as the government, if not a bigger one, in determining who should be entrusted with the lives of passengers and the operation of multi-million-dollar vehicles.

And rigid, continuing tests for airline pilots would seem to be a better way of determining which ones fill the bill than arbitrary erection of an age wall by Washington.

The Newspaper Game

By Frank Tripp

I don't know where the idea came from that all you've got to do to be a newspaperman is decide to be one. Every now and then somebody says, "I'm going to get into the newspaper game." Just like he was deciding to play canasta.

First off, calling the business a game doesn't set well with the men who pass out the jobs—and few of the lesser lights have found it much of a game.

There's been a lot of discussion as to whether newspapering (on the editorial side) is or is not a profession. Not many already steeped in it care very much if it is or not but even the hardest boiled stoic among them is likely to resent having his occupation called a game.

And you can get a rise out of plenty of seasoned old-timers by calling them journalists. That's another term that is not popular among American newsmen.

Still, schools which teach newspapering call themselves Schools of Journalism. The name fits of course but to men who came up the hard way a journalist is a heavy thinking, fussy bird who takes two wandering columns to say what a newspaper tells in one paragraph.

JOURNALISM schools don't teach verbosity but too much of their product practices it. It's because maybe that Algernon's pre-training spouses reek with inconsequential detail.

Till he bumped into an unkind city editor he felt a likely candidate for editor of the London Times. At present chances are that Algernon is hopefully holding onto his job as obituary editor of the Bingville Bugle and is learning to tell it quick.

The newsroom vintage that denies they're journalists got their schooling on the job. The composing room foreman threw them downstairs the day they suggested that rubber type would ease a crowded line. And they wiped their eyes all day after a printer introduced them to "type lice."

This non-existent phenomenon is the gasoline with which type is cleaned of ink after taking a proof. As the neophyte looks real close to see the lice the printer snaps the type slugs together and spatters the cub's face with diluted printer's ink.

While some pretty flossy writing finds its way into newspapers, the truth is that fancy writing is a small part of the qualifications for a crack at a newspaper career.

Of five candidates for a job, the lad who can tell his tale quickest in meaningful, unwasted words has the best chance—and if he has the best chance—and if he has unusual talent at this the editor will hug him to his breast.

SO WHEN YOU or your little boy decide that it's a newspaper job you want, the real test of your chance to stick is 10 per cent ability to write and 90 per cent ability to find something to write about. Because you'll find a disillusioning philosophy in the boss' marble heart: "You bring it in; we'll get it written."

After The Honeymoon

The Gross National Product

By Raymond Moley

Don't try to pronounce the word "statisticulation." It is derived from a funny book which deserves a place among the useful classics of these times, Darrell Huff's "How to Lie With Statistics." It isn't necessary to falsify figures. It's a matter of selection and arrangement.

As a mine of goodies for orators supporting that still nameless Democratic candidate, Prof. Paul Douglas' Joint Economic Committee of Congress has prepared a 72-page report.

Without bothering about all the economic gibberish in the report, I select one tiny table for consideration and out of this tiny table only one column of figures. This table is very important, for its content will be one of the major issues in 1960.

It gives the rate of growth of the Gross National Product, known to one and all as the GNP and itself as phony a calculation as a gangster's income tax return. For all you have to do to produce any given GNP is to print enough money.

THE COMPARISONS are based upon "constant 1958 dollars."

For the period 1890-1959 the rate of GNP growth was 3.2 per cent; for 1890-1919, 3.5 per cent; for 1919-1959, 2.9 per cent; for 1919-1947, 2.6 per cent; for 1947-1953, 4.6 per cent; for 1953-1959, 2.3 per cent.

There is a note that 1959 dollars were used to calculate the last, because if 1958 dollars had been used, the per cent would have been 2.4. That would have destroyed the nice comparison between the Truman and the Eisenhower years which, as you see, shows that under the former the rate of growth was twice that of the latter.

The Truman-Eisenhower comparison is what Prof. Douglas was preparing as a nice nugget for his party's orators. They might have trouble remembering figures but who could not say "twice as great" without looking at his cuffs?

The professor's figures were eagerly seized by the AFL-CIO News, which flared headlines about Ike's "slowdown policies."

But the Truman years consisted of four years of peace and three years of rearmament, including the Korean War years. If the professor had taken the four years of Truman peace, no growth at all would have been shown but rather a decline of 2.2. per cent.

Thus, if we should want to statisticate further, we could show that the Truman peace was far worse than the Eisenhower peace. But that would be overlooking the fact that rearmament had to continue after the Korean War.

Why on earth the years were selected for grouping as they were prior to 1947 is past understanding. In other regroupings, quite amazing arguments might have been made for Republican years. But why go on with this numbers game?

WE SHALL HEAR a lot of talk about the relatively faster rate of growth in Russia as compared with our own.

That bit of lying with statistics is done by using a different sort of base from which to start.

A year ago, my colleague, Henry Hazlitt, in two articles in "Newsweek," thoroughly exposed this "growth" game. So far as relative growth is concerned, he cited the rate of growth of our television industry. Between 1946 and 1947 the rate of growth of sets sold was 2,757 per cent, with an increase in sets of only 193,000. Since 1950 the rate of growth has been zero but we are turning out from five million to seven million sets a year.

The boy in the third grade can say proudly to his brother who is 19 that his rate of growth is tremendous by comparison. The 19-year-old young man will answer that when he gets a baby, its growth will be 195 per cent in its first year.

Prof. Paul Douglas had the best economic education obtainable, together with 14 honorary doctorates. It is a pity to see all this used to frustrate rather than to advance the enlightenment of the public.

Confident Living

By Norman Vincent Peale

From earliest times philosophers have recognized that man is body, mind and soul. And to have good health these need to work with, not against, each other. Plato wrote, a long time ago, "Neither should we ever attempt to cure the body without curing the soul." Moderns are just now catching up with this wise philosopher of old. Through modern medicine we know that many illnesses originate in the emotions or thoughts. Unhealthy thinking can be, and often is, externalized in uhealthy bodily states. A leading New Orleans clinic made a study of some 500 cases. They found that 383 of these people were ailing not because they had had accidents or had contracted organic diseases, but because, according to a doctor's picturesque description, "Those patients were draining back into their bodies the diseased thoughts of their minds."

IN FACT, our health largely depends on what we harbor in our minds. Three important rules of health follow from this, and apply to all of us.

A first rule is to keep free of any kind of guilt. Wrongdoing can actually plant the seeds of sickness in the soul. Then that illness proceeds to adversely affect the mind and, in time, the body. So, if you have a feeling of guilt, you should get rid of it in order to feel healthy. Preachers have always said this; now many doctors are seconding the motion.

Let me tell you the interesting story of a man whose wife wrote to me saying, "If you ever come to our city, I want you to see my husband." This man had formerly been successful in business, active in civic groups, popular and outgoing. Then, he had begun to feel bad, for no visible reason. He lost his vitality. Finally he got so that all he did was sit and stare.

The doctors diagnosed his condition as a nervous breakdown. One doctor wisely remarked that the patient must have something on his mind and might begin to mend if only he would talk about it.

Eventually my engagements did take me to that city and I saw him. His manner was dull and apathetic and at first all he would say was that he felt ill. Finally, I asked him, "Isn't there something you have not yet unloaded? Why not come clean and tell it to me?" Then, bit by bit, out came some of the things which he had done in life which he considered wrong and sinful. When at last he had told everything, he sat back, spent.

I MADE A heaping motion with my hands. "What are you doing," he asked curiously.

"Heaping up all that part of your past that has weighed so heavily on your mind. Quite a heavy mass, isn't it? How could you expect to feel well?" I then suggested he ask the Lord to forgive him and make him well again. He did so, then and there, praying aloud like a child. It was a moving experience to listen to him. We sat in silence a few moments.

Then he did a strange thing. He stood up, stretched his arms out, raised himself up on his tiptoes, brought his arms up over his head, took a deep breath and said, "My, but I feel good!" That was the beginning of his return to rugged health.

Along with keeping free of guilt, try to practice daily mental hygiene. Dr. Sara Jordan of the Lahey Clinic said, "Every day give your mind a good shampoo." Systematically empty your mind of all hate thoughts, defeat thoughts, mean or negative thoughts. Displace and replace them with faith and love thoughts. To have good health, think healthy thoughts.

Durable Humans

By Thomas R. Henry

The human body has a marvelous capacity to withstand crashes.

It can, for example, tolerate forces that would completely demolish most airplanes — forces as much as 300 times the pull of gravity or equivalent to a weight of 25,000 pounds — without very serious injury.

This has just been reported to the Office of Naval Research by Cornell University scientists, whose investigations have been partly financed by the Navy.

A recent case is reported of a workman who fell 150 feet from a smokestack and landed on his side in a pile of loose rubble where his body made a depression eight inches deep. The man was fully conscious and rational when picked up. He had sustained a fractured ankle and a fractured jaw. He had a black eye and numerous scratches. Otherwise he was all right.

Such a fall, according to the Cornell report, would result in a minimum impact velocity of more than 90 feet a second.

"Calculations on the duration of the impact and the rate of onset of deceleration indicate this deceleration lasted approximately .014 of a second and the rate of onset was in excess of 22,000 times gravity per second," says the Cornell report.

"It is important to note that this enormous deceleration did not result in fracture of the skull, serious injury to the brain or amnesia. The survivor said that when he found himself falling he said to himself 'This is it,' and closed his eyes and relaxed."

The ascertained facts, says the report, are difficult to believe but are fully supported by investigations of 14 other similar falls.

"These show beyond any reasonable doubt," says the report, "that such decelerations can be survived with little or no injury when the force is applied during a brief period and is well distributed over large areas of the body.

"From the data of these free falls, as well as from aircraft accidents, it is recognized that the ability of the human body to tolerate crash force has been greatly underestimated.

"With reasonable engineered protection and proper support it is probable that the human body can tolerate forces that will completely demolish most aircraft now in use."

A New Approach

By James Marlow

Younger Negroes Get Action On Rights

WASHINGTON

One of the most significant turns in the Negroes' fight for civil rights—and it doesn't suggest racial quiet in the South—seems to be second thoughts by officials of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Second thoughts, that is, on whether they have been wrong over the years in concentrating their efforts for civil rights almost entirely on the quiet legal approach, depending mostly on the courts to break down the racial barriers.

For more than a score of years the NAACP has been the Negroes' leader in the civil rights battle. Now younger Negroes in the South, particularly students, are asserting leadership through direct action.

The NAACP has won one victory after another in the courts, climaxed by the Supreme Court ruling against racial segregation in public schools.

It has been a slow fight and a patient one, even though some white Southerners may regard the NAACP as a kind of revolutionary force, if not worse.

Now there is evidence the young, educated Negroes of the South are impatient with the slow approach. They have shown it in their demonstrations, their marches through the streets, their sit-downs at chain store lunch-counters which serve only white customers.

More than 1,000 of them have been arrested in the South for these activities. Over the weekend some leaders of the NAACP began to show signs of wondering whether their long-established slow, legal approach is all that is needed.

Thurgood Marshall, NAACP chief attorney and the real guiding force in its long court fights, said of the young Southern Negroes: "They have made us reexamine our sights. The least we can do is support them."

He conferred here for two days with 60 lawyers called in from every Southern state and then announced that the Negro demonstrators who get arrested in the South will have the legal help to fight their cases.

Sunday in a TV discussion Roy Wilkins, secretary of the NAACP and its chief spokesman, said he couldn't predict whether the continued activity of the young Southern Negroes will lead to violence.

He said: "They have hit on a truth the older people have not recognized yet. It is this: their status as citizens. These children have put their finger on the truth of the matter:

"'If I am not fit to eat a hamburger in a restaurant, the other rights don't amount to anything.'"

Wilkins added: "If the mood of these young people is interpreted right, they are tired of the legal approach."

Now the young Negro student demonstrators in the South are getting sympathy and support from their white counterparts in colleges and universities in the North.

The New York Times, in a roundup story, reported Sunday that these Northern white students not only are sympathetic but have in some cases organized themselves in protest against what the Southern Negroes protest.

An Inside Job

By Truman Twill

With no intention to offend anyone who works outside, this column made a crack the other day about escaping the hardship of outside work.

The crack sounded as if the escape had been made possible by learning to spell. Worse than that, it sounded as if escape from outside work as such were desirable.

Let us, as they say in politics, set the record straight. There will be a lot of that this presidential year.

The knock was not against the outside as a place to work but against working outside in bad weather. It was inspired by the sight of structural steel erectors straddling girders and hanging on in the teeth of an icy wind.

No one ever claimed that was a bargain—and that was what was meant by the crack about "escaping" it. The crack was based on personal recollection.

Outside work has been traditional in our family, whose members have looked upon inside workers as caged animals. Even those of us who have ended up in occupations that keep us inside regard our working time as imprisonment.

We live to get back outdoors.

Under all ordinary circumstances, we choose outside to inside.

But when the climate blows up a storm the way it has behaved the last month, it is nice to know it will not be necessary to spend the new day outside in pursuit of a living.

This point of view was shaped by suffering. The first shaping was done when the family income was derived from the trucking business. That was before snow tires, antifreeze, good roads, heaters and snug truck cabs.

Winter was a nightmare of frostbite, skidding, getting stuck and being lashed in the face by icy winds, sleet and the assorted discomforts of the season.

After trucking came the lumber business—acres of unheated buildings and wind-swept yards, with snow piled atop the lumber piles, everything frozen tight and no pain on earth comparable with the pain of a hand or foot already throbbing with cold getting pinched or struck.

In summer, what could be nicer than a ride on a truck, or a pleasant day pushing 2 by 4s from here to there, or tossing cove molding on to a pile, or quaffing cool water from a glass-covered jug buried on the shady side of a pile of sheathing?

What could be more wonderful in good weather than to be any kind of outside worker, envied by all insiders? That is the way it always has been in our family.

But no one ever denied it had its drawbacks when the weather turned raw. The envy then was the other way around. The outsider on his way to somewhere to get warm saw the insider being snug and comfortable and thought to himself that freedom from being a caged animal had its price.

To straighten the record, this column feels sorry for inside workers, including the wretch who writes the column. From where he sits, day after day, there is nothing to see but the sides of brick buildings, with a festoon of TV aerials, chimneys and distant buildings to ornament the outline of the roof tops.

Humphrey, Kennedy Get In Some Light Jabs

By RELMAN MORIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is beginning to take some swings at Sen. John F. Kennedy in their erstwhile gloves-on, Marquis of Queensberry-style contest for votes in Wisconsin.

Kennedy for the first time has countered with a light jab aimed at Humphrey's midsectionalism.

Humphrey of Minnesota and Kennedy of Massachusetts are crisscrossing Wisconsin, wooing voters who will ballot April 5 in a primary election which could go far in determining the Democratic nominee for president this year.

Until the past few days, when they mentioned each other at all —which was seldom — they used Senate-floor terms, "My good friend" or "My distinguished opponent."

Then Saturday, Humphrey rose before some 1,000 listeners in La Crosse, brandishing a handout. It is Humphrey's version of the difference between his voting record and Kennedy's in 10 major fields of legislation.

"I hate to do this," Humphrey said, "But I am tired of hearing that there is no difference between the candidates."

The handout is labelled "Let the Record Speak." Under the category, "General Farming," it shows Humphrey voting 27 times "against (Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft) Benson" and Kennedy voting 27 times "for Benson."

Humphrey also was quoted as saying: "When it comes to Jack parading as a friend of the farmer, it's time to call a halt. I won't let both parties have Benson candidates."

Kennedy has not yet answered Humphrey's version of their respective voting records.

He did take a crack Sunday at Humphrey's emphasis on his Midwesternism.

The Minnesota senator's literature says he is a "man with a heart from The Heart of America." And his roadside billboards label him as "a Midwest progressive."

Kennedy told 5,000 people who attended a reception for him in Milwaukee, "I can't campaign as a Midwesterner. In New Hampshire, I said I didn't want votes as a New Englander. We are not picking a governor, a congressman or a senator, but the president of the United States."

If the Soviets are not acting in good faith — if they are simply maneuvering for immediate advantage by splitting the United States and Britain—U.S. leaders hope to find this out well in advance of the summit.

Before a U.S. stand can be taken, Eisenhower may have to decide among other things whether the nat on's security makes it vital to resume underground testing of nuclear weapons next fall. Some atomic and military officials say such tests are needed.

The possibility of an East-West agreement on a ban of the testing of nuclear weapons is now the brightest among disarmament issues, but at the moment it is far from a probability.

Humphrey, Kennedy Get In Some Light Jabs

By RELMAN MORIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey is beginning to take some swings at Sen. John F. Kennedy in their erstwhile gloves-on, Marquis of Queensberry-style contest for votes in Wisconsin.

Kennedy for the first time has countered with a light jab aimed at Humphrey's midsectionalism.

Humphrey of Minnesota and Kennedy of Massachusetts are crisscrossing Wisconsin, wooing voters who will ballot April 5 in a primary election which could go far in determining the Democratic nominee for president this year.

Until the past few days, when they mentioned each other at all —which was seldom — they used Senate-floor terms, "My good friend" or "My distinguished opponent."

Then Saturday, Humphrey rose before some 1,000 listeners in La Crosse, brandishing a handout. It is Humphrey's version of the difference between his voting record and Kennedy's in 10 major fields of legislation.

"I hate to do this," Humphrey said, "But I am tired of hearing that there is no difference between the candidates."

The handout is labelled "Let the Record Speak." Under the category, "General Farming," it shows Humphrey voting 27 times "against (Agriculture Secretary Ezra Taft) Benson" and Kennedy voting 27 times "for Benson."

Humphrey also was quoted as saying: "When it comes to Jack parading as a friend of the farmer, it's time to call a halt. I won't let both parties have Benson candidates."

Kennedy has not yet answered Humphrey's version of their respective voting records.

He did take a crack Sunday at Humphrey's emphasis on his Midwesternism.

The Minnesota senator's literature says he is a "man with a heart from The Heart of America." And his roadside billboards label him as "a Midwest progressive."

Kennedy told 5,000 people who attended a reception for him in Milwaukee, "I can't campaign as a Midwesterner. In New Hampshire, I said I didn't want votes as a New Englander. We are not picking a governor, a congressman or a senator, but the president of the United States."

Social Security Revisions Head For Battle In House

WASHINGTON (AP)—A party-splitting battle, with organized labor taking an active hand, starts in the House this week over proposals to add government-paid health care to social security coverage.

After a week of preliminary discussions, the House Ways and Means Committee gets down to cases Wednesday when it receives administration recommendations for social security law revision from Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

There were weekend indications these may include some form of government payments for health care of older persons.

Many influential Republicans as well as conservative Democrats in the House have opposed a plan advocated by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI). This plan is backed by labor union forces headed by President Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers, an AFL-CIO vice president.

Strong conservative opposition could be expected also to any administration-backed health plan, and the American Medical Assn. is actively fighting any such proposal.

On the other side are election-year political pressures for broadening social security benefits.

Forand said today he will try to by-pass House leaders and the Ways and Means Committee if necessary to bring his government old age hospitalization bill directly to the floor.

Forand's bill would provide up to 120 days a year of government-paid hospital and nursing home care for old-age social security pensioners. It would be financed by an additional ½ per cent social security payroll tax.

President Eisenhower told news conference last month the administration was considering an additional increase in the social security tax to "make greater provision for the care of the aged."

This was amplified by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty to mean health care.

Merritt C. Speidel Dies At Age Of 80

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Merritt C. Speidel, founder of the Speidel Newspapers, died Sunday after a long illness. He was 80.

Speidel started building his chain in 1921 with the Iowa City Press-Citizen. At his retirement in 1956, his holdings included the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) New Yorker; Chillicothe (Ohio) Gazette; Ft. Collins (Colo.) Coloradoan; Reno (Nev.) Evening Gazette and Nevade State Journal in Reno; Salinas (Calif.) Daily Californian, and Visalia (Calif.) Times-Delta.

In high school, he published his own Union School Journal at Port Jervis, N. Y., where he was born. He went to work as a teenager for the Tri-State Publishing Co. at Port Jervis, serving also as correspondent for The Associated Press, New York Tribune and New York Times.

His first paper was the Daily Call at Piqua, Ohio, which he bought in 1910. Two years later he married Edna Meredith.

One son, Robert, now publishes the Visalia Times-Delta, while another, Merritt Jr., is on the editorial staff of the Salinas Daily Californian.

A daughter, Mrs. Joseph Oliver Edy, lives in Palo Alto where Speidel moved in 1937.

Other survivors are his widow and eight grandchildren.

Masonic funeral services are scheduled for 2 p. m. Wednesday at the First Methodist Church here, with burial following at Alta Mesa Memorial Park.

There were 2,340,004 arrests made in the year 1958, according to reports from cities with populations over 2,500.

2 Lodges Plan Fete Saturday For Veterans

Thirty-four veteran members of Odd Fellows Lodge 379 and Rebekah Lodge 286 will be honored at a dinner Saturday night at 5 at the W. 6th St. Temple, followed by a program at 7:30 in Memorial Auditorium.

Verdie A. Dodds of Lexington, Mass., sovereign grand warden of International Odd Fellows, will be featured speaker at the presentation program at the MA.

Dodds is a member of the Board of Directors and a consultant to the Brown-Wales Steel Co., a warehouse firm serving New England. He was with the company for 40 years, starting as a salesman and progressing upward until he became president and general manager. He retired as active head of the company Jan. 1, 1958.

Dodds is an honorary overseer of Old Sturbridge Village, an historical museum in Massachusetts.

Among the guests expected are George A. Meinen of Toledo, IOOF grand master of Ohio, and Dr. Anna Chase of Cincinnati, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ohio. The veterans scheduled for honors include William Prescott and Howard Moninger, 50 - year members, and Mrs. Susan Kidd and three of her sons, Alex, Charles and Robert, who have compiled a total of 120 years of membership in the orders.

Farmers Told Time At Hand For Seeding

It's not too early to order seed, fertilizer, tree seedlings or other materials needed to establish the cover on 1960 Conservation Reserve land, G. M. Swick, chairman of the Beaver County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee, said.

During the past fall, over 5 million additional acres of cropland in the United States has been placed under Conservation Reserve contracts. This cropland is devoted to a conservation use — trees, grass, water storage or plantings especially beneficial to wildlife.

Locally, the approved grasses for cover include birdsfoot trefoil, sweet clover and timothy, and alfalfa and timothy.

Under the contracts, the Department of Agriculture shares the cost for the establishment of the conservation cover on the land.

Swick said that early preparations are one way of insuring a good stand regardless of the kind of conservation cover to be established. In Beaver County, contracts placing cropland in the Conservation Reserve for 1960 call for planting 19.8 acres of grass.

Plans Are Advanced For Chou-Nehru Talks

NEW DELHI (AP) — Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China will arrive in New Delhi April 19 for talks with Prime Minister Nehru on the border dispute between India and Red China.

Nehru told the lower house of Parliament Chou would remain in New Delhi until April 25. Nehru had suggested April 20 as a suitable date to begin the talks on the 51,000 square miles of disputed territory in the Himalayas.

Nehru has already said he doubts that the conference will produce any immediate solution of the border dispute.

The coast of North America was discovered by John Cabot, for the British, in 1497.

City To Gain In Population

East Liverpool stands to gain over 3,000 in population when the 1960 census is completed, according to Dr. Marjorie Guy, population expert in the new Ohio Department of Industrial and Economic Development at Columbus.

The city had 24,217 residents in the 1950 census and she predicts the forthcoming nose count starting April 1 will show 27,402. The State Health Department said in 1955 the city had 25,736.

A gain of 9,711 is estimated for Columbiana County, which had 98,920 souls in 1950. The predicted population is 108,631 which will keep it ahead of Jefferson County as the most populous of the five in the 18th Congressional District. Jefferson's total will be 100,518, she estimated.

All four cities in the county are expected to show gains. East Palestine can expect 5,386, against 5,195 of 10 years ago; Salem, 14,705 and 12,754 for comparison, and Wellsville 8,231 against 7,854.

The balance of the county will contain the remaining 52,907 in the villages, townships and rural sections.

The final, official figures will not be known until 1961 after the U. S. Census Bureau analyzes data the enumerators will collect starting next month.

Dr. Guy's estimates are as of Jan. 1, 1960.

This Proved Anything But A Foxy Fox Hunt

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP)—A neighborhood fox hunt in suburban Fair Oaks Sunday turned into a fiasco.

Billy Kaestner, 10, spotted the fox first. It bit him.

Adults shooed the fox, sought because it appeared ill, into the garage of Walter Van Horn and called the sheriff's office.

Deputies came and shot the fox with a sawed-off shotgun.

Some pellets went through the garage door and hit William D. Kaestner, Billy's father, in the head. He was 100 feet away and they caused only scalp wounds.

The fox was rabid, so Billy must undergo painful rabies shots.

Census Form To Be Mailed This Weekend

WASHINGTON (AP)—The postman gives a lift to the census taker this week, delivering advance questionnaires for the 1960 census to every occupied dwelling in the land.

Sixty million copies of the four-page form have been delivered to 35,000 post offices. The Census Bureau is paying the Post Office Department about 2 cents to handle each piece, a total of $1,200,000.

The forms are to go into the mail next Friday and Saturday. Every household should get a copy by next Monday. Each postman will get a stack of the unaddressed forms, enough to leave one at every dwelling on his route.

Each family is to fill out the form before the arrival of the census taker. The census begins April 1, and will continue through the month. Most families will be visited during the first two weeks of April.

The census taker will copy on forms of his own the information given on the advance form. The idea behind the advance questionnaire is to give everyone time to ponder the questions and provide accurate information.

Social Security Revisions Head For Battle In House

WASHINGTON (AP)—A party-splitting battle, with organized labor taking an active hand, starts in the House this week over proposals to add government-paid health care to social security coverage.

After a week of preliminary discussions, the House Ways and Means Committee gets down to cases Wednesday when it receives administration recommendations for social security law revision from Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming.

There were weekend indications these may include some form of government payments for health care of older persons.

Many influential Republicans as well as conservative Democrats in the House have opposed a plan advocated by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-RI). This plan is backed by labor union forces headed by President Walter Reuther of the United Auto Workers, an AFL-CIO vice president.

Strong conservative opposition could be expected also to any administration-backed health plan, and the American Medical Assn. is actively fighting any such proposal.

On the other side are election-year political pressures for broadening social security benefits.

Forand said today he will try to by-pass House leaders and the Ways and Means Committee if necessary to bring his government old age hospitalization bill directly to the floor.

Forand's bill would provide up to 120 days a year of government-paid hospital and nursing home care for old-age social security pensioners. It would be financed by an additional ½ per cent social security payroll tax.

President Eisenhower told news conference last month the administration was considering an additional increase in the social security tax to "make greater provision for the care of the aged."

This was amplified by White House press secretary James C. Hagerty to mean health care.

Merritt C. Speidel Dies At Age Of 80

PALO ALTO, Calif. (AP) — Merritt C. Speidel, founder of the Speidel Newspapers, died Sunday after a long illness. He was 80.

Speidel started building his chain in 1921 with the Iowa City Press-Citizen. At his retirement in 1956, his holdings included the Poughkeepsie (N. Y.) New Yorker; Chillicothe (Ohio) Gazette; Ft. Collins (Colo.) Coloradoan; Reno (Nev.) Evening Gazette and Nevada State Journal in Reno; Salinas (Calif.) Daily Californian, and Visalia (Calif.) Times-Delta.

In high school, he published his own Union School Journal at Port Jervis, N. Y., where he was born. He went to work as a teenager for the Tri-State Publishing Co. at Port Jervis, serving also as correspondent for The Associated Press, New York Tribune and New York Times.

His first paper was the Daily Call at Piqua, Ohio, which he bought in 1910. Two years later he married Edna Meredith.

One son, Robert, now publishes the Visalia Times-Delta, while another, Merritt Jr., is on the editorial staff of the Salinas Daily Californian.

A daughter, Mrs. Joseph Oliver Edy, lives in Palo Alto where Speidel moved in 1937.

Other survivors are his widow and eight grandchildren.

Masonic funeral services are scheduled for 2 p. m. Wednesday at the First Methodist Church here, with burial following at Alta Mesa Memorial Park.

There were 2,340,004 arrests made in the year 1958, according to reports from cities with populations over 2,500.

2 Lodges Plan Fete Saturday For Veterans

Thirty-four veteran members of Odd Fellows Lodge 379 and Rebekah Lodge 286 will be honored at a dinner Saturday night at 5 at the W. 6th St. Temple, followed by a program at 7:30 in Memorial Auditorium.

Verdie A. Dodds of Lexington, Mass., sovereign grand warden of International Odd Fellows, will be featured speaker at the presentation program at the MA.

Dodds is a member of the Board of Directors and a consultant to the Brown-Wales Steel Co., a warehouse firm serving New England. He was with the company for 40 years, starting as a salesman and progressing upward until he became president and general manager. He retired as active head of the company Jan. 1, 1958.

Dodds is an honorary overseer of Old Sturbridge Village, an historical museum in Massachusetts.

Among the guests expected are George A. Meinen of Toledo, IOOF grand master of Ohio, and Dr. Anna Chase of Cincinnati, president of the Rebekah Assembly of Ohio. The veterans scheduled for honors include William Prescott and Howard Moninger, 50 - year members, and Mrs. Susan Kidd and three of her sons, Alex, Charles and Robert, who have compiled a total of 120 years of membership in the orders.

Another Man Surrenders In Death Case

CHICAGO (AP)—The third man wanted for the slaying of two postal investigators surrendered to post office authorities Sunday because "things were getting too hot."

Postal inspector R. J. Dunne said Allen Golson, 32, came to his office and identified himself as the third member of the gang which killed the inspectors last Monday night after they were arrested for mail theft.

Shortly before Golson surrendered, 40,000 posters were distributed throughout the nation urging "extreme caution" in apprehending him.

Police last Friday night arrested William Perkins, 36, and his half-brother, George Wilson, 37, in connection with the slayings. Both men signed statements, police said, admitting the slayings and named Golson as their accomplice. The three men, all Negroes, were described by police as dope addicts.

The Post Office Department had offered a reward of $12,000 for the arrest and conviction of the slayers.

The postal inspectors, John McAuliffe, 36, and Benedetto Spizzirri, 42, were shot to death in McAuliffe's car after they had seized the trio for stealing two bags of mail from a postal station.

Kitchen arithmetic: A teaspoon of salt and one-eighth teaspoon of white pepper are needed for two cups of white sauce. Use these proportions of the basic seasonings whether the sauce is thin, medium or thick.

Psychopathic Killer Linked To 3 Slayings

By CONRAD FINK

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Crime laboratory officials said today that two of the three socially prominent women beaten to death in Starved Rock State Park apparently were bound together by a psychopathic killer.

The disclosure came in a report by the State Bureau of Identification and Investigation after a top level conference of law enforcement officials.

Earlier police said they were hunting for a young man reportedly seen talking to the three women last Monday shortly before they were killed.

State's Atty. Harland Warren, who met with state police Supt. William Morris, Sheriff Ray Eutsey and their aides said the act of binding one's victims together points to a certain type of psychopath.

The twine used was a 20-strand variety, commonly used in wrapping packages, said John F. Schaich, crime laboratory director.

The battered, bloody bodies of Frances Murphy, 47, Mildred Lindquist, 50, and Lillian Oetting, 50, all of Riverside, a western suburb of Chicago, were found in a cave near the floor of St. Louis Canyon last Wednesday. Their husbands are Chicago business executives.

When you serve an elegant roast of prime ribs of beef, use the bones next day. Spread them with prepared mustard and sprinkle them generously with fine dry bread crumbs. Then heat under the broiler, turning so the crumbs will brown on all side. Be sure to leave a fair portion of meat on the bones when they are carved from the roast. This is a restaurant favorite that can appear at home!

Refund Is Brief

Ohio's Best Duel For State Crown

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If the scoring records mean anything, Ohio's high school basketball championships should go to the southwestern district this weekend.

The figures favor unbeaten Dayton Roosevelt in Class AA, and Salem Local of Urbana in Class A.

At Sunday's drawings, the setup for Friday's semifinals at Ohio State's St. John Arena came out like this:

CLASS A

1:30 p. m., Friday

	W-L	Off.Ave.	Def.Ave
Frazeysburg	26-1	70.8	48.5
New Bremen	26-2	68.1	53.5

3 p. m., Friday

Salem Local	25-0	73.4	39.3
New Boston	24-0	68.7	39.6

CLASS AA

7:30 p. m., Friday

Canton Timken	24-0	68.7	48.6
Cleve East Tech	22-1	67.8	52.0

9 p. m., Friday

Toledo Scott	22-2	62.9	52.3
Dayton Roosevelt	25-0	75.4	49.7

Roosevelt, top-ranked in the Associated Press poll over Cleveland East Tech's champions of the last two years, carries the best scoring punch a 75.5-point average, into the fray. Canton Timken is next in the big school class with 68.7, and the Stark County crew has the best defensive mark, of 48.6, a shade better than Roosevelt's 49.7.

East Tech, seeking to become the second team in 38 years to take three straights crowns, has outscored its foes 67.8 to 52.0, while Toledo Scott has the poorest mark in both branches—62.9 against 52.3 for the opposition.

Salem Local, back for the second straight time, paces the Class A sector in both offense and defense. The Champaign County crew has averaged 73.4 against 39.3 for the foe, a spread of about 34 per game.

Frazeysburg has a 70.8 to 48.5 edge, New Bremen 68.1 to 53.5, and New Boston 68.7 to 39.6.

The coaches of the eight survivors of the starting field of 993 teams met Sunday for the drawings, and each took home 1,250 tickets for Friday's contests. The Class A winners get 1,600 for the Saturday finals, and the Class AA pair receive 2,100 for the evening's championship contest.

All eight ordered movies of their games, at $50 per contest, with the Ohio High School Athletic Assn. picking up about $1,300 of the total cost of filming the encounters.

Each team will receive $1.50 per mile, one way, traveling expense, along with $2 per meal and $4 per night lodging for a party of 17, plus a $300 bonus for each game played. Expenses may run from Thursday through Saturday night, allowing Friday's beaten teams to stay for the big playoffs.

No bands will be permitted at the games, due to the limited seating capacity of about 13,500. As Commissioner W. J. McConnell told the mentors:

"No bands! No room!"

All four Class AA teams were in the Top 10 of the final Associated Press poll. Roosevelt, East Tech and Timken finished 1-2-3 and Toledo Scott seventh.

The same 1-2-3 setup looked good in Class A until Saturday night's regional finals when Frezeysburg—which didn't get a point in the final ratings—upset Northwestern of Wayne County, the 1958 champion and top-ranked club, by 44-42. New Boston was second, Salem Local third and New Bremen 14th in the final tally.

The finals are among the classiest in tournament history as the four Class AA clubs go into the championship round with a 93-3 record, and the Class A teams with 101-3.

LaScola's Team Wins Michigan Title

JOE LASCOLA
Goes All The Way.

By BOB DUFFY
Review Sports Editor

With his mother and five brothers among a crowd of more than 10,000 at the Michigan State University Fieldhouse Saturday, Joe LaScola, a former Wellsville athlete, guided his Holy Redeemer team of Detroit to the state Class "B" basketball championship of Michigan.

LaScola saw his dream come true at 26, a tender age for winning state basketball championships. He also became one of the few coaches in the history of Michigan basketball to capture the title in his first year.

Following Redeemer's resounding 78-60 victory over Grand Rapids Godwin Heights, Joe was carried off the floor by his team and promptly thrown into a shower in the lockeroom.

To Top In 1 Year

Watching Joe accept the state championship trophy was his mother, Mrs. Lena LaScola of 210 3rd St., Wellsville, and five brothers, Jake and Jim of Chester and Tom, John and Buddy of Wellsville.

Two other brothers, Paul and Charlie, were unable to make the trip.

Holy Redeemer is a Catholic school in Detroit with an enrollment of about 850.

Joe couldn't win in Ohio, showing two losing seasons at Dover St. Joseph, but it didn't take him long to put together a winning combination in Michigan.

Redeemer had an overall record of 24-1 for the season, one of the top marks in the state.

In Michigan, schools are divided into four classes, A, B, C and D. The B schools are considered — enrollment wise — about the same as Ohio's Class "AA".

There was no question about it, Joe had the talent and he knew what to do with it.

He had an all-state center in Bill Chmielewski who stands 6-foot-10 and scored 32 points in the final game. Two other members of his squad are 6-foot-4 and 6-foot-3.

By scoring 78 points in the championship battle, Redeemer also set a scoring record for Class "B" schools.

A former basketball standout at Wellsville, Joe moved into a starting lineup his sophomore year in high school and played three seasons as a regular.

He attended Geneva College two years, then transferred to Ohio Northern where he was graduated.

His first coaching job was at a Junior High School in Massillon, while his first high school job was at Dover St. Joseph, where he had a winning football team but had the two losing seasons in basketball.

Coaching at Redeemer High has also paid off for Al Checkler, another ex-Wellsville coach and football star.

Al, who is head football coach and assisted by LaScola, came up with an undefeated team last season and was named the state's Class "B" prep coach of the year.

Al went to Detroit three years ago after having four losing seasons at Wellsville.

California Outclassed By Ohio State In NCAA Final

Four Of Starting Five Will Return Next Year

By HARRY JUPITER

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ohio State's Buckeyes—young, talented and confident—are the 1960 collegiate basketball champions.

The underdog Ohioans, playing before a loudly partisan California crowd, upset Cal's defending champions 75-55 Saturday night in the finals of this year's NCAA tournament.

Cal's Golden Bears fought until the final buzzer but they were not in Ohio's class. It appeared that the Bears had given their best effort the previous night in knocking off Cincinnati in a semifinal that matched the two top teams in The Associated Press national poll.

Ohio State, rated third in the poll, Saturday night looked like the finest team in collegiate circles since the two-time national championship club of the University of San Francisco, a team that ran off 60 straight victories.

But most startling about the new champions is their youth and poise.

Four of the starting five will be back next year.

Returning are All America Jerry Lucas, voted most valuable player here as a sophomore, two other sophs who also received MVP votes, Mel Nowell and John Havlicek, and junior Larry Siegfried, the Buckeyes' top scorer a year ago — before Lucas came along.

Cincinnati, with All America Oscar Robertson scoring 32, trampled New York University 95-71 for third place. Big Tom Sanders led NYU with 25.

Robertson, Sanders, Ohio's Lucas and Nowell and California's All America Darrall Imhoff were named to the San Francisco tournament all-star team. Lucas was the only unanimous selection and every one of his starting teammates received all-star votes.

Havlicek, Siegfried and Joe Roberts, the lone starting senior, all were named to the second all-tourney quintet, along with Bill McClintock and Tandy Gillis of Cal and Cincinnati's Paul Hogue.

The Cow Palace, packed with 14,500 spectators, was loaded with California rooters. They gave Cal coach Pete Newell the biggest hand of the night, a standing ovation, when he was introduced before the final game. Newell, coach of the year, is retiring from coaching to take over as California athletic director.

The Bears, as Newell put it, played their hearts out. "We didn't lose for lack of trying," he said. "Ohio State had the hot hand on a big night. But I'm proud of my club. This is the best team I've ever coached." The Bears, who won 28 of 30 games this year, had won 19 in a row before meeting Ohio State, which racked up 25-3 for the campaign.

"Hot hand" was hardly an overstatement. The Buckeyes sank their first three shots, 15 of their first 16, and went on to an amazing 16 for 19 from the field in the first half. They finished with 33 of 46 for 68.4 per cent—the solidest shooting ever seen in the West and perhaps anywhere.

Lucas made 7 of 9 field goal attempts, Nowell 6 of 7, Siegfried and Roberts each 5 of 6, and Havlicek a "measly" 4 of 8. Lucas totaled 16 points, Nowell 15, Siegfried 13, Havlicek 12 and Roberts 10 in a great show of balance.

The Buckeyes provided an awesome display of backboard strength and defensive stamina, too.

Lucas, who polled 49 of 56 votes for MVP, demonstrated his all-around skill with a brilliant defensive job on Imhoff. The Cal ace got just 8 points against Jerry after scorching Cincinnati with 25. NYU's Sanders, who likewise showed his mettle against Cincy with 25, had been limited to 8 by Lucas the night before.

Roberts' driving layup after one minute of play put the Buckeyes in front 2-0 and in front they stayed.

Herb's First Test Of Arm Called 'Encouraging Job'

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Herb Score, whose spring training has been held up by an ear infection, tested his million-dollar left arm against the Chicago Cubs "B" team Sunday and did pretty well for an initial effort.

"My arm felt good," the Cleveland Indians' hurler said afterward. "The thing I liked best was that my fast ball was moving. I felt more like a pitcher out there than I have for a long time."

In three innings, Score struck out six, walked two and yielded a double to Harry Bright.

Ted Wilks, who has been tutoring Herb, called it a "pretty encouraging job," but added that the southpaw "still has a long way to go."

"He still isn't relaxed enough," Wilks said. "You could have strummed him like a banjo string. But he didn't sling the ball like a grenade thrower the way he did last year, and he didn't break his curve ball into the dirt."

The Indians have today off to play golf, and after Sunday's 20-5 clobbering by the San Francisco Giants a change of sport seemed in order.

The Giants rocketed five homers out of spacious Westgate Park in San Diego, with Willie Kirkland hitting three in a row and Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda getting the others.

Jim Perry gave up seven runs on nine hits in three innings, including Kirklad's first two homers, Mays' 440-foot blow, and Cepeda's round-tripper, a 420-footer.

Jim Grant, tagged for Kirkland's last homer, gave up seven runs on six hits in one inning.

Meanwhile, the Indians in going down to their fourth straight defeat at the hands of the Giants were making 10 hits against San Francisco's 21. Cleveland's first three runs were off Jack Sanford who worked the first four innings. They got another pair off Stu Miller in the seventh.

Vic Power and Bubba Phillips had doubles, the only extra-base hits by the Indians.

Celtics Lead 3-1; Lakers, St. Louis Are Tied At 2-2

By The Associated Press

The Boston Celtics were just one game away from the Eastern playoff title of the National Basketball Assn. today, but the battle for the Western division crown was all tied up between Minneapolis and St. Louis.

The Celts, defending world champions, crushed the Philadelphia Warriors in Philadelphia Sunday, 112-104, to run their margin in the best-of-7 Eastern playoffs to 3-1.

In Minneapolis, the Lakers came from behind to defeat the St. Louis Hawks, 103-101, to even the Western division series at 2-2.

All the teams are off tonight, but Tuesday the Eastern series resumes at Boston and the Western playoffs move to St. Louis.

Yanks Pound Purkey Hard

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Bob Purkey is one of three veteran pitchers the Cincinnati Reds count on this season, says Manager Fred Hutchinson.

So Purkey's pitching Sunday attracted much attention. New York's Yankees hit just about everything he served up and won a 13-5 exhibition.

He pitched five scoreless innings against Baltimore last week.

In five innings Sunday Purkey gave up 10 hits and 7 runs.

The Yankees picked up three more runs each from reliefers Bill Henry and Miguel Cuellar.

The Reds' defense was faulty, too. Jerry Lynch muffed two high hits to the outfield, Gus Bell botched a third and Billy Martin at second base let a grounder go through him.

The Redshave three young pitchers from whom they expect big things—Jim O'Toole, Jay Hook and Claude Osteen.

Manager Hutchinson said "Big Newk, Bob Purkey and Joe Nuxhall and those three kids will be our nucleus."

Purkey said spring practice last year didn't pan out so well.

"Last spring," he said, "I got some bad advice from our pitching coach (Clyde King) and foolishly tried to blow the ball by the hitters.

"I'm not that kind of a pitcher. I'm a changeup guy. Have to fool the big, strong hitters by changing the speed on my pitches.

"That's what I'm concentrating on this spring."

His pitching mate, Brooks Lawrence, said Purkey got careless last season and was putting the ball too high. The reason Purkey walked so few men (43) was because the batters usually hit the ball, said Lawrence.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson, the top collegiate scorer ever, ended his Bearcat career Saturday night in the shadows of a great young Ohio State team.

The Big O, everybody's All-America, collected 32 points as Cincinnati trounced New York University 95-71 for third place in the NCAA tournament while Ohio State was beating California for the crown 75-55.

Robertson was named to the tournament's all-star team but most valuable player honors went to Ohio State's Jerry Lucas, a brilliant sophomore.

In 88 Cincinnati games, Robertson, a 6-5 ballhandling and shooting sizard from Indianapolis, chalked up career records of 2,941 points, an average per game of 33.8 and 1,052 field goals.

The Bearcats lost only 9 of those 88 games.

4 Teams Battle For Church League Crown This Saturday

St. John's, First U. P. First Methodist and First Nazarene form the semi-final field for the windup of the YMCA-Church League tournament after surviving tests Saturday night on the "Y" floor.

St. John's and First U. P. will meet at 6:30 Saturday, while First Methodist and First Nazarene battle in the second. The two winners will meet the same night for the tournament crown.

Sparked by the one-two scoring punch of Bob Forzano and Chetwynd, St. John's rolled over Newell First Presbyterian, 39-13.

Forzano fired in 16 points and Chetwynd 14. Smith's 7 topped the Newell quint.

Len Oliver scored 16 of his team's 22 points to pace First U. P. to a 22-17 win over St. Stephen's. Burbick collected 12 for the losers.

First Nazarene outlasted First Church of Christ for an 18-13 victory as Randy Stover had 15 of his team's 18 points. Battestelli tallied 5 for the losers.

First Methodist eliminated Chester Christian, 23-7, as Howell scored 10 points and Roush 8 to lead the attack. Elliott had 3 for the Chester entry.

Frank House, a catcher obtained by the Cincinnati Reds from Kansas City last fall, got an estimated $72,000 bonus for signing with the Detroit Tigers in 1949.

Bears Beaten At Own Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ohio State, the nation's top scoring team, stunned California Saturday night with the toughest defense the defending national champion Bears faced all season.

How come?

"Credit Pete Newell of Cal," said young Fred Taylor of Ohio State who won the NCAA championship in his second year as the Buckeyes' head coach.

"I talked to Pete last summer and he gave me a lot of pointers on improving our defense."

"He caught on pretty good, didn't he," said Newell, the Cal coach.

Detroit Tiger third baseman Eddie Yost never played minor league baseball. He broke into the big leagues in 1944 with Washington.

Ohio's Best Duel For State Crown

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—If the scoring records mean anything, Ohio's high school basketball championships should go to the southwestern district this weekend.

The figures favor unbeaten Dayton Roosevelt in Class AA, and Salem Local of Urbana in Class A.

At Sunday's drawings, the setup for Friday's semifinals at Ohio State's St. John Arena came out like this:

CLASS A
1:30 p. m., Friday

	W-L	Off.Ave.	Def.Ave
Frazeysburg	26-1	70.8	48.5
New Bremen	26-2	68.1	53.5
3 p. m., Friday
Salem Local	25-0	73.4	39.3
New Boston	24-0	68.7	39.6

CLASS AA
7:30 p. m., Friday

Canton Timken	24-0	68.7	48.6
Cleve East Tech	22-1	67.8	52.0
9 p. m., Friday
Toledo Scott	22-2	62.9	52.3
Dayton Roosevelt	25-0	75.4	49.7

Roosevelt, top-ranked in the Associated Press poll over Cleveland East Tech's champions of the last two years, carries the best scoring punch a 75.5-point average, into the fray. Canton Timken is next in the big school class with 68.7, and the Stark County crew has the best defensive mark of 48.6, a shade better than Roosevelt's 49.7.

East Tech, seeking to become the second team in 38 years to take three straights crowns, has outscored its foes 67.8 to 52.0, while Toledo Scott has the poorest mark in both branches—62.9 against 52.3 for the opposition.

Salem Local, back for the second straight time, paces the Class A sector in both offense and defense. The Champaign County crew has averaged 73.4 against 39.3 for the foe, a spread of about 34 per game.

Frazeysburg has a 70.8 to 48.5 edge, New Bremen 68.1 to 53.5, and New Boston 68.7 to 39.6.

The coaches of the eight survivors of the starting field of 993 teams met Sunday for the drawings, and each took home 1,250 tickets for Friday's contests. The Class A winners get 1,600 for the Saturday finals, and the Class AA pair receive 2,100 for the evening's championship contest.

All eight ordered movies of their games, at $50 per contest, with the Ohio High School Athletic Assn. picking up about $1,300 of the total cost of filming the encounters.

Each team will receive $1.50 per mile, one way, traveling expense, along with $2 per meal and $4 per night lodging for a party of 17, plus a $300 bonus for each game played. Expenses may run from Thursday through Saturday night, allowing Friday's beaten teams to stay for the big playoffs.

No bands will be permitted at the games, due to the limited seating capacity of about 13,300. As Commissioner W. J. McConnell told the mentors:

"No bands! No room!"

All four Class AA teams were in the Top 10 of the final Associated Press poll. Roosevelt, East Tech and Timken finished 1-2-3 and Toledo Scott seventh.

The same 1-2-3 setup looked good in Class A until Saturday night's regional finals when Frezeysburg—which didn't get a point in the final ratings—upset Northwestern of Wayne County, the 1958 champion and top-ranked club, by 44-42. New Boston was second, Salem Local third and New Bremen 14th in the final tally.

The finals are among the classiest in tournament history as the four Class AA clubs go into the championship round with a 32-3 record, and the Class A teams with 101-3.

LaScola's Team Wins Michigan Title

With his mother and five brothers among a crowd of more than 10,000 at the Michigan State University Fieldhouse Saturday, Joe LaScola, a former Wellsville athlete, guided his Holy Redeemer team of Detroit to the state Class "B" basketball championship of Michigan.

LaScola saw his dream come true at 26, a tender age for winning state basketball championships. He also became one of the few coaches in the history of Michigan basketball to capture the title in his first year.

Following Redeemer's resounding 78-60 victory over Grand Rapids Godwin Heights, Joe was carried off the floor by his team and promptly thrown into a shower in the lockeroom.

To Top In 1 Year

Watching Joe accept the state championship trophy was his mother, Mrs. Lena LaScola of 210 3rd St., Wellsville, and five brothers, Jake and Jim of Chester and Tom, John and Buddy of Wellsville.

Two other brothers, Paul and Charlie, were unable to make the trip.

Holy Redeemer is a Catholic school in Detroit with an enrollment of about 850.

Joe couldn't win in Ohio, showing two losing seasons at Dover St. Joseph, but it didn't take him long to put together a winning combination in Michigan.

Redeemer had an overall record of 24-1 for the season, one of the top marks in the state.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Cincinnati's Oscar Robertson, the top collegiate scorer ever, ended his Bearcat career Saturday night in the shadows of a great young Ohio State team.

The Big O, everybody's All America, collected 32 points as Cincinnati trounced New York University 95-71 for third place in the NCAA tournament while Ohio State was beating California for the crown 75-55.

Robertson was named to the tournament's all-star team but most valuable player honors went to Ohio State's Jerry Lucas, a brilliant sophomore.

In 88 Cincinnati games, Robertson, a 6-5 ballhandling and shooting sizard from Indianapolis, chalked up career records of 2,-941 points, an average per game of 33.8 and 1,052 field goals.

The Bearcats lost only 9 of those 88 games.

It's been great in college," said Robertson, "but I'm glad it's over.

"It's like you've been in the house all week and you're finally getting to go out for the weekend."

Freed's, Alliance Team First Tri-State Entries

Bob Freed's, City League champions, and a team from Alliance are the first two entries in the 35th annual Tri-State tournament, Had Connell, director, announced today.

Freed's will list most of the players from its championship team, including Frank Chan, George Hales, George Parfitt and Bob Bickle and Joe Anderson.

The Alliance team, under the banner of Spot Billiards, includes several Mt. Union College players.

The tourney will open on Monday, March 28, and run through April 2 at Memorial Auditorium.

Gengarellas is the defending champion and will be seeking its fourth straight title.

4 Teams Battle For Church League Crown This Saturday

St. John's, First U. P. First Methodist and First Nazarene form the semi-final field for the windup of the YMCA-Church League tournament after surviving tests Saturday night on the "Y" floor.

St. John's and First U. P. will meet at 6:30 Saturday, while First Methodist and First Nazarene battle in the second. The two winners will meet the same night for the tournament crown.

Sparked by the one-two scoring punch of Bob Forzano and Chetwynd, St. John's rolled over Newell First Presbyterian, 39-13.

Forzano fired in 16 points and Chetwynd 14. Smith's 7 topped the Newell quint.

Len Oliver scored 13 of his team's 22 points to pace First U. P. to a 22-17 win over St. Stephen's. Burbick collected 12 for the losers.

First Nazarene outlasted First Church of Christ for an 18-12 victory as Randy Stover had 15 of his team's 18 points. Battestelli tallied 5 for the losers.

First Methodist eliminated Chester Christian, 23-7, as Howell scored 10 points and Roush 8 to lead the attack. Elliott had 3 for the Chester entry.

Frank House, a catcher obtained by the Cincinnati Reds from Kansas City last fall, got an estimated $72,000 bonus for signing with the Detroit Tigers in 1949.

Bears Beaten At Own Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Ohio State, the nation's top scoring team, stunned California Saturday night with the toughest defense the defending national champion Bears faced all season.

How come?

"Credit Pete Newell of Cal," said young Fred Taylor of Ohio State who won the NCAA championship in his second year as the Buckeyes' head coach.

"I talked to Pete last summer and he gave me a lot of pointers on improving our defense."

"He caught on pretty good, didn't he," said Newell, the Cal coach.

Detroit Tiger third baseman Eddie Yost never played minor league baseball. He broke into the big leagues in 1944 with Washington.

Bradley May Miss NIT Tourney Next Year

By DON WEISS
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Chances are the Bradley Braves, the name team of the National Invitation Basketball tournament for four years, won't be back next year to defend their championship.

The reason? They'll probably be too good!

The NIT has had the pleasure of Bradley's company since 1957 because, despite the Braves' outstanding teams, they weren't quite tough enough to win outright the Missouri Valley Conference title.

The Braves came here to win their first NIT championship in 1957 when St. Louis filled the Mo Valley's commitment in the NCAA tournament. The last three years the Braves were available because a fellow named Oscar Robertson made Cincinnati unstoppable in the Mo Valley race.

But now Oscar is through at Cincinnati and with such aces as sophomores Chet (Orange Juice) Walker and Mack Herndon, and Junior Al Saunders returning, it seems unlikely Coach Chuck Orsborn can help having a conference winner.

Only backcourt aces Mike Owens and Dan Smith are lost from the 1959-60 Bradley team that won its second NIT title in four years Saturday afternoon with a whirlwind rally that crushed Providence, 88-72. And what the likes of Herndon, Walker, and Sunders plus sophs like Ed Wodka, Mickey Tieman, and Lee Edwards showed the Madison Square Garden crowds left everyone wagging about the Bradley of next year.

Teams From North Rule W. Va. Basketball Roost

MORGANTOWN (AP) — Northern teams ruled the state high school basketball roost today, ending temporarily at least, any notion that the better brand of the sport is played by Rebel quints.

The newly crowned champions are Parkersburg, no stranger at this sort of thing, and two newcomers to the ranks — Romney and Paden City.

Parkersburg grabbed the glory in Class AAA, Romney in Class AA and Paden City in Class A in the 47th annual State High School Basketball Tournament staged here during the weekend.

Of the three, only Romney's championship performances here came as little surprise to most tourney observers. Coach Clyde (Hardtimes) Green's charges led by Bill Maphis were picked to win —and win they did. They nipped Clendenin's hustling Cardinals 56-55 and then prevailed over Oceana's Indians, 75-63, for the title. The Eastern Panhandle entry was the only team in the state to finish unbeaten (26-0).

Parkersburg was rated no better than a third choice — behind Huntington and Montgomery — in the four-team battling for big school honors.

But the Big Reds had a surprisingly easy time of it. They walloped unsung Elkins 80-54 in the semifinal and then turned in a solid defensive performance to thrwart Montgomery's bid for its first title by a 56-38 count.

This was Parkersburg's sixth state basketball title and its second during the nine years Sam Mandich has been at the PHS helm. The Big Reds last won the title in 1958.

Except for Parkersburg, no other northern entry has won the big school title in the past 11 years.

Paden City, which has been competing in athletics for only six years, found itself in the state spotlight by whipping Piedmont 59-44 in the semifinal and then toppling favored Ansted, 69-67, for the small school crown on Walt Smittle's bucket with four seconds left.

This was a tournament which was dominated by seniors.

Parkersburg's starting five was made up of a junior and four seniors, including Dick Smith — the one-man scoring gang for the Big Reds.

Romney regulars were all seniors, including one William Maphis, a 6-4½ stalwart who rates on a par with a couple of guys named Jerry West and Rod Thorn at a comparable high school level.

Paden City's starters include two juniors and three seniors.

Montgomery's performance against Parkersburg was the biggest reverse since Serutan. The streaking Greyhounds equaled the single-game scoring record by beating Huntington 100-89 in the semifinal. But the Greyhounds ran their last race that night. They were a tired lot against well-rested Parkersburg. The Big Red's hustling, swarming defense didn't help matters either.

The Greyhounds — an all-senior outfit — took a proud unbeaten string of 25 straight victories and a 52 per cent shooting average into the contest against Parkersburg. But when that game was over, the Greyhounds had shot only 22 per cent.

"We were tired," Montgomery Coach Everett Perkins said. "The tournament draw helped decide this championship."

This was only the second year for the three-class tournament. In the 1959 inaugural, three Rebel teams swept to titles. They were South Charleston in Class AAA, Lookout in Class AA and Athens in Class A.

But such were the fortunes this year, none of them made it to Morgantown.

3 All-Tourney Teams Are Picked In W. Va.

MORGANTOWN (AP) — Three eight-member all-tournament teams were chosen here by sportswriters covering the annual West Virginia High School Basketball Tournament. The honor teams included:

Class AAA — Dick Smith, Bobby Owens and Bob Maxwell of champion Parkersburg; Charles Kelly and Pete Kelley of Montgomery; Ricky Ray and Bob Barrett of Huntington, and Jerry Armentrout of Elkins.

Class AA — Bill Maphis and Stan Shingleton of champion Romney; Kenny Stewart, Farley Lusk and Kenny Dillo of Oceana; Harry Statts and Ronnie Smith of Clendenin, and John Reesman of Clay-Battelle.

Class A — Ace Lyle, Charles Lighter and Walter Smittle of champion Paden City; Larry Miller and Mason Fox of Ansted; John Barker and Ray Estep of Rainelle, and Wayne Russell of Piedmont.

Lane Is Left Holding Bag; White Retires From Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Foxy Frank Lane's at it again with his volatile temper reacting immediately to the hassle that has broken out over the Sammy White trade and threatens to shake the Indian chief's reputation as baseball's master manipulator.

Lane, a clever appraiser of player talent, already has taken a verbal scalding for the off-season deals that deprived Cleveland of 19-game winner Cal McLish and .300-hitting Minnie Minoso.

Now Lane may find himself checkmated over his latest transaction in an attempt to trade Cleveland into a pennant with Commissioner Ford Frick a likely candidate to settle the stalemate.

Lane swapped catcher Russ Nixon for utility man Jim Marshall and White, an outstanding receiver with the Boston Red Sox.

White, however, pulled Lane up short. He retired.

"The deal's off," said Lane assuredly Sunday.

"Lane hasn't got a foot to stand on," countered Red Sox General Manager Bucky Harris, emphasizing that he considers the trade closed.

"I'm returning Marshall and want Nixon back," Lane said.

That's not all Lane may want back. The way Minoso's changing Chicago's hitless wonders, Lane probably is having second thoughts about the trade that sent the Cuban to the American League champion White Sox.

Minoso, a .302 hitter last season at Cleveland, stroked a double and four singles Sunday as the Sox blasted 21 hits and won their seventh exhibition in eight games with a 12-2 thumping of Baltimore.

Lane's Indians were walloped 20-5 by the San Francisco Giants, who rapped 21 hits including three homers by Willie Kirkland to bring their record to 6-2, best among National League clubs.

In other games, New York belted Cincinnati 13-5, Detroit beat Milwaukee 9-7, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 4-3, Los Angeles defeated Washington 7-5, Pittsburgh topped Kansas City 6-3, and Chicago's Cubs nipped Boston 3-2.

Dodgers Are Given Scare When Plane Engine Fails

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) —"I started looking for a flat place to land and all I saw was swamps and lakes," said manager Walt Alston.

That's what the other 41 Los Angeles Dodgers saw, too, when they glanced out of their private plane after one of its engines conked out Sunday on a 90-mile flight from Vero Beach to Orlando.

The twin-engine Convair turned around and limped back 25 miles to Vero Beach and landed safely.

The plane was full of wisecracking ballplayers a moment before the starboard engine quit. Then — deathly silence.

Alston broke the tension when he announced with a poker face: "Sorry I loused it up, fellows."

Chunky Don Zimmer, the holler guy shortstop, solemnly told the nervous group:

"Well, the Dodgers are snafued up now. They went and put all three shortstops on one plane."

When the plane touched down 10 minutes later, the entire group broke into applause.

Don Drysdale, who dislikes air travel, had the last word. He said:

"There won't be much delay. They only have to change one sparkplug and 42 sweatshirts."

Campanella In Hospital Following Dizzy Spell

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former Dodgers catcher Roy Campanella is hospitalized here for observation after suffering a dizzy spell at the Dodgers' Vero Beach spring training camp.

Club physicians said there was nothing significant in their transfer of Campy to West Palm Beach. They said facilities were better there for diagnosis and observation. He was reported resting comfortably.

Bayer Leads By 4 Strokes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — George Bayer was trying not to think about last year as he teed off today for the third round of the St. Petersburg Open Golf tournament.

In the same tournament in 1959 the huge ex-football player from Gleneagles, Ill., shot 66-69—135 for his first two rounds, and was leading the field at that point. Then he soared to a big 77, and although he came back with a 70 for his final round he finished seven strokes back of Cary Middlecoff, the winner with 275.

In the current tournament Bayer also has 66-69—135 for his first two rounds, and a four-stroke lead, so he might be expected to start his third round with some apprehension.

The final two rounds will be played today.

In second place today with 139 was Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La.

Jack Fleck of Los Angeles, Doug Ford of Crystal River, Fla., and Lee Raymond of Toledo, Ohio, were next in line with 141's.

Youth, 18, Shines In Bowling Event

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two months out of high school, 18-year-old Ray Orf of St. Louis holds second place in the 57th American Bowling Congress tournament's all-events division. He almost made the top spot.

Orf toppled 649 pins Saturday night to help Willen Refrigeration of St. Louis to a 3050 score that took first in the open team division.

Early Sunday he shot a robust 236-212-238—686 series in doubles and with his partner, Clancy Mueller, took seventh place with 1246.

The youngster needed 613 in singles to wrest the all-events lead from Dick Weber of St. Louis Budweisers who posted 1947 four days earlier. Orf seemed well on his way to getting it as he opened with 184 and added a 236 second game. The pressure got to him midway in the third game and he settled for a 177 final game, a 597 singles series and a 1932 all-events total.

There were no changes Sunday in open team or singles top ten.

Sam Jones of San Francisco and Lou Burdette and Warren Spahn of Milwaukee, the National League's only 20 game winners in 1959, had identical 21-15 records.

Collegiate Cagers Will Get Chance At Olympic Trials

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The nation's top collegiate basketball stars — including all five Associated Press All America players — were named today to compete in the U.S. Olympic Basketball trials at Denver March 31-April 2.

Three of the teams in the eight-team Denver tournament will be Ohio State's Buckeyes, winners of the 1960 NCAA tournament here Saturday night, and two all-star teams.

Heading the list of individual stars are the AP's All America five — Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, Jerry Lucas of Ohio State, Jerry West of West Virginia, Darrall Imhoff of California and Tony Jackson of St. John's of Brooklyn.

Four of the AP's second-team All America selections were named: Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure, Terry Dischinger of Purdue, Roger Kaiser of Georgia Tech and Chet Walker of Bradley.

The two all-star teams will meet in Denver March 27 for training before the Olympic Trials begin. Ohio State will fly to Denver March 30. The winner of the eight-team tournament will be assured at least five and possibly seven spots on the team that will represent the U.S. in the Olympic games at Rome next August.

Jim Darrow of Bowling Green was named to the all-star club that has Robertson, Imhoff, West, Jackson, Stith, Indiana's big Walt Bellamy, Minnesota's Ron Johnson, and NYU's Tom Sanders. This crew will be coached by George Smith of Cincinnati or Lou Rossini of NYU.

Cleveland Battles For Playoff Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A third place finish and Calder Cup playoff berth in the American Hockey League neared today for the Providence Reds as they continued a March surge that has brought six victories in eight games.

The Reds, with 74 points, one ahead of fourth-place Cleveland, capped a big weekend Sunday night by beating the champion Springfield Indians 3-1. The Reds belted the Indians 6-1 Saturday night but it didn't keep Springfield from clinching the regular season title.

Cleveland, with four games to play, one more than the Reds, stayed in contention for a cup berth by beating Hershey 5-2. The Barons, who have won three straight, defeated Buffalo 6-1 Saturday night.

Olympic Hopefuls Await Ring Action

NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of outstanding Olympic prospects will be in action tonight when New York-East meets Chicago - West in the annual intercity Golden Gloves championships at Madison Square Garden.

Vince Shomo, 19-year-old CCNY freshman from New York, will defend his 135-pound title against Chicago's Bill O'Shea, 19-year-old national AAU ruler. The hard-hitting Shomo won the Pan-American title last summer with four straight knockouts and has hopes of making the U.S. Olympic team for the Rome games this summer.

Lucius Clay, 18-year-old Louisville high schooler, and Chicago's heavyweight king, is another fine possibility for the Olympic team. Clay captured the intercity light heavyweight crown in 1959 but this time is aiming for heavyweight honors. The 178-pounder will meet Gary Jawish, a 22-year-old, 232-pounder from Washington, D. C., who will represent New York-East.

There will be 16 bouts in all, eight matching the champions. The other eight fights will be between alternates picked late this afternoon. Each fight will count one point.

Eleven of the 16 members of the Army hockey team list Massachusetts as their home state.

It Looks Like Berra Won't Be At 3rd Base

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Yogi Berra on third base much this season?

It gets more dubious every day with Gil McDougald effectively handling the chores and Berra doing lusty hitting when he operates at his regular catching position.

McDougald had three hits in Sunday's 13-5 victory over Cincinnati.

A much-relaxed Berra, who has taken a few ineffective turns at the hot corner, had a home run and four runs batted in while catching the entire game.

Class AA — Bill Maphis and Stan Shingleton of champion Romney; Kenny Stewart, Farley Lusk and Kenny Dillo of Oceana; Harry Statts and Ronnie Smith of Clendenin, and John Reesman of Clay-Battelle.

Class A — Ace Lyle, Charles Lighter and Walter Smittle of champion Paden City; Larry Miller and Mason Fox of Ansted; John Barker and Ray Estep of Rainelle, and Wayne Russell of Piedmont.

Lane Is Left Holding Bag; White Retires From Game

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

Foxy Frank Lane's at it again with his volatile temper reacting immediately to the hassle that has broken out over the Sammy White trade and threatens to shake the Indian chief's reputation as baseball's master manipulator.

Lane, a clever appraiser of player talent, already has taken a verbal scalding for the off-season deals that deprived Cleveland of 19-game winner Cal McLish and .300-hitting Minnie Minoso.

Now Lane may find himself checkmated over his latest transaction in an attempt to trade Cleveland into a pennant with Commissioner Ford Frick a likely candidate to settle the stalemate.

Lane swapped catcher Russ Nixon for utility man Jim Marshall and White, an outstanding receiver with the Boston Red Sox.

White, however, pulled Lane up short. He retired.

"The deal's off," said Lane assuredly Sunday.

"Lane hasn't got a foot to stand on," countered Red Sox General Manager Bucky Harris, emphasizing that he considers the trade closed.

"I'm returning Marshall and want Nixon back," Lane said.

That's not all Lane may want back. The way Minoso's changing Chicago's hitless wonders, Lane probably is having second thoughts about the trade that sent the Cuban to the American League champion White Sox.

Minoso, a .302 hitter last season at Cleveland, stroked a double and four singles Sunday as the Sox blasted 21 hits and won their seventh exhibition in eight games with a 12-2 thumping of Baltimore.

Lane's Indians were walloped 20-5 by the San Francisco Giants, who rapped 21 hits including three homers by Willie Kirkland to bring their record to 6-2, best among National League clubs.

In other games, New York belted Cincinnati 13-5, Detroit beat Milwaukee 9-7, St. Louis edged Philadelphia 4-3, Los Angeles defeated Washington 7-5, Pittsburgh topped Kansas City 6-3, and Chicago's Cubs nipped Boston 3-2.

Dodgers Are Given Scare When Plane Engine Fails

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) —"I started looking for a flat place to land and all I saw was swamps and lakes," said manager Walt Alston.

That's what the other 41 Los Angeles Dodgers saw, too, when they glanced out of their private plane after one of its engines conked out Sunday on a 90-mile flight from Vero Beach to Orlando.

The twin-engine Convair turned around and limped back 25 miles to Vero Beach and landed safely.

The plane was full of wisecracking ballplayers a moment before the starboard engine quit. Then — deathly silence.

Alston broke the tension when he announced with a poker face: "Sorry I loused it up, fellows."

Chunky Don Zimmer, the holler guy shortstop, solemnly told the nervous group:

"Well, the Dodgers are snafued up now. They went and put all three shortstops on one plane."

When the plane touched down 10 minutes later, the entire group broke into applause.

Don Drysdale, who dislikes air travel, had the last word. He said:

"There won't be much delay. They only have to change one sparkplug and 42 sweatshirts."

Campanella In Hospital Following Dizzy Spell

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Former Dodgers catcher Roy Campanella is hospitalized here for observation after suffering a dizzy spell at the Dodgers' Vero Beach spring training camp.

Club physicians said there was nothing significant in their transfer of Campy to West Palm Beach. They said facilities were better there for diagnosis and observation. He was reported resting comfortably.

Bayer Leads By 4 Strokes

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — George Bayer was trying not to think about last year as he teed off today for the third round of the St. Petersburg Open Golf tournament.

In the same tournament in 1959 the huge ex-football player from Gleneagles, Ill., shot 66-69—135 for his first two rounds, and was leading the field at that point. Then he soared to a big 77, and although he came back with a 70 for his final round he finished seven strokes back of Cary Middlecoff, the winner with 275.

In the current tournament Bayer also has 66-69—135 for his first two rounds, and a four-stroke lead, so he might be expected to start his third round with some apprehension.

The final two rounds will be played today.

In second place today with 139 was Lionel Hebert of Lafayette, La.

Jack Fleck of Los Angeles, Doug Ford of Crystal River, Fla., and Lee Raymond of Toledo, Ohio, were next in line with 141's.

Youth, 18, Shines In Bowling Event

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Two months out of high school, 18-year-old Ray Orf of St. Louis holds second place in the 57th American Bowling Congress tournament's all-events division. He almost made the top spot.

Orf toppled 649 pins Saturday night to help Willen Refrigeration of St. Louis to a 3050 score that took first in the open team division.

Early Sunday he shot a robust 236-212-238—686 series in doubles and with his partner, Clancy Mueller, took seventh place with 1246.

The youngster needed 613 in singles to wrest the all-events lead from Dick Weber of St. Louis Budweisers who posted 1947 four days earlier. Orf seemed well on his way to getting it as he opened with 184 and added a 236 second game. The pressure got to him midway in the third game and he settled for a 177 final game, a 597 singles series and a 1932 all-events total.

There were no changes Sunday in open team or singles top ten.

Sam Jones of San Francisco and Lou Burdette and Warren Spahn of Milwaukee, the National League's only 20 game winners in 1959, had identical 21-15 records.

Collegiate Cagers Will Get Chance At Olympic Trials

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The nation's top collegiate basketball stars — including all five Associated Press All America players — were named today to compete in the U.S. Olympic Basketball trials at Denver March 31-April 2.

Three of the teams in the eight-team Denver tournament will be Ohio State's Buckeyes, winners of the 1960 NCAA tournament here Saturday night, and two all-star teams.

Heading the list of individual stars are the AP's All America five — Oscar Robertson of Cincinnati, Jerry Lucas of Ohio State, Jerry West of West Virginia, Darrall Imhoff of California and Tony Jackson of St. John's of Brooklyn.

Four of the AP's second-team All America selections were named: Tom Stith of St. Bonaventure, Terry Dischinger of Purdue, Roger Kaiser of Georgia Tech and Chet Walker of Bradley.

The two all-star teams will meet in Denver March 27 for training before the Olympic Trials begin. Ohio State will fly to Denver March 30. The winner of the eight-team tournament will be assured at least five and possibly seven spots on the team that will represent the U.S. in the Olympic games at Rome next August.

Jim Darrow of Bowling Green was named to the all-star club that has Robertson, Imhoff, West, Jackson, Stith, Indiana's big Walt Bellamy, Minnesota's Ron Johnson, and NYU's Tom Sanders. This crew will be coached by George Smith of Cincinnati or Lou Rossini of NYU.

Cleveland Battles For Playoff Berth

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A third place finish and Calder Cup playoff berth in the American Hockey League neared today for the Providence Reds as they continued a March surge that has brought six victories in eight games.

The Reds, with 74 points, one ahead of fourth-place Cleveland, capped a big weekend Sunday night by beating the champion Springfield Indians 3-1. The Reds belted the Indians 6-1 Saturday night but it didn't keep Springfield from clinching the regular season title.

Cleveland, with four games to play, one more than the Reds, stayed in contention for a cup berth by beating Hershey 5-2. The Barons, who have won three straight, defeated Buffalo 6-1 Saturday night.

Olympic Hopefuls Await Ring Action

NEW YORK (AP) — A couple of outstanding Olympic prospects will be in action tonight when New York-East meets Chicago - West in the annual intercity Golden Gloves championships at Madison Square Garden.

Vince Shomo, 19-year-old CCNY freshman from New York, will defend his 135-pound title against Chicago's Bill O'Shea, 19-year-old national AAU ruler. The hard-hitting Shomo won the Pan-American title last summer with four straight knockouts and has hopes of making the U.S. Olympic team for the Rome games this summer.

Lucius Clay, 18-year-old Louisville high schooler, and Chicago's heavyweight king, is another fine possibility for the Olympic team. Clay captured the intercity light heavyweight crown in 1959 but this time is aiming for heavyweight honors. The 178-pounder will meet Gary Jawish, a 22-year-old, 232-pounder from Washington, D. C., who will represent New York-East.

There will be 16 bouts in all, eight matching the champions. The other eight fights will be between alternates picked late this afternoon. Each fight will count one point.

Eleven of the 16 members of the Army hockey team list Massachusetts as their home state.

It Looks Like Berra Won't Be At 3rd Base

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —Yogi Berra on third base much this season?

It gets more dubious every day with Gil McDougald effectively handling the chores and Berra doing lusty hitting when he operates at his regular catching position.

McDougald had three hits in Sunday's 13-5 victory over Cincinnati.

A much-relaxed Berra, who has taken a few ineffective turns at the hot corner, had a home run and four runs batted in while catching the entire game.

Major Leaguer At 15

CINCINNATI (AP) — On June 10, 1944, Joe Nuxhall had almost two months to go for his 16th birthday. However, on that day he pitched against the St. Louis Cardinals. Since then the Hamilton, Ohio southpaw has pitched 1,342 innings for Cincinnati. Nuxhall had a 9-9 record in 1959.

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Every now and then you defend a cause or a group such as waitresses, taxi drivers, newspaper carriers, etc. I hope you'll print this letter in behalf of check room girls.

This is the sort of stuff we get pulled on us every winter:

One man will come up and collect six coats and give me a quarter. He acts as if he is trying to save time but I know his crowd is too cheap to claim their own coats.

Then some slob will show up, throw six pennies on the counter and say, "Sorry, honey, this is all the change I have."

Another jerk will put down a half dollar, squeeze my hand and lean over for a kiss.

Women are worse than men. They act dumb just because they don't have a male escort. The usual line is: "Do I have to pay?"

Heaven help the hat check girl when a woman's organization is giving a party. One night I worked six hours for 90 cents.

Some men send their wives for both coats because they think a woman shouldn't have to pay anything.

Then there's always the egghead who can operate an atom-smasher but can't hang on to his coat check. He has to come behind the counter to find his coat and has a terrible time recognizing it. Some of the rockheads can't even remember what they wore.

The cheap skate who beefs about spending a quarter to have his coat and hat watched all evening thinks nothing of paying $1 to park his car in a lot. If people are too chintzy to pay a quarter for this service they should advertise the fact by wearing their coats and hats to the table. Thank you. — SUE Z.Q.

Daughter's Money

Dear Ann: The war left me a widow with a lovely daughter. I married a fine man and we now have four children.

The daughter by my first marriage is 16. She receives $40 a month from her father's insurance. We have a hard time making ends meet and have been using the $40 to buy necessities for the whole family.

The girl says it's her money and she should have it at her disposal. Some relatives think it should be put away for her until she's 21. My husband wants to do the right thing but he doesn't know what it is. Neither do I. Can you tell us?— W.L.D.

-:-

Dear W.L.D.: The $40 does not belong to "the family." It was left to your daughter. However, a 16-year-old shouldn't be handed $40 a month to do with as she pleases.

Invest in government bonds or put it in a savings account where it will earn interest. The money should be used for college.

Mixed Showers

Dear Ann: I come from a large family and there's always a shower going on for someone's engagement, new baby or an anniversary. The husbands almost always come along and sometimes they even bring their kids and say they couldn't get a sitter.

Would it be rude to write on the invitation, "Please leave your husband and children at home."

Advise me soon as I am the next victim and want to know how many to prepare for. — NO MILLIONAIRE.

-:-

Dear No Millionaire: A shower, to most people, means only women — in fact, the average husband couldn't be dragged to a shower with a tractor.

Apparently in your family a shower is a family-type wingding — come one, come all. Since this is the custom, you have no alternative but to serve modest refreshments and feed everyone.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Prepare Tot For New Baby's Coming

If you have a child, two, three or four, you will be wise to tell him several weeks beforehand if a baby is expected. Perhaps you will let him see the clothes and other equipment awaiting the baby. You may talk of it as "our baby" The child may even be led to choose possible names. It's also a good time to let him know the baby is in your body and to lay his hand on your abdomen to feel the movements of the unborn child. All such procedure may help ease the almost inevitable jealousies facing the child after the new baby arrives. Yet such preparation may be too late.

By Garry Meyer.

YOU SHOULD have begun months or years earlier to cultivate self-reliance in this older child so that now he would not be over-dependent, physically or emotionally, on you.

He should have learned to feel reasonably comfortable out of your sight, and to be happy in the care of his father or a baby sitter. He should have learned to enjoy appreciable periods of amusement alone and with others.

Many months before the new baby is expected, Dad should gradually take over more of the older child's care by night and, when home, by day. He can read to him, do things with him, have fun with him.

While you are in the hospital, this child will almost certainly be left alone part-time at least, with a baby sitter. Therefore he needs to become accustomed to such care. It would be fine if this baby sitter has cared for him during some previous period.

IF THIS CHILD must have a new bed or room after the baby comes home, this arrangement should have been made several weeks earlier.

Weeks before the baby's arrival, Mom and Dad should talk with relatives and neighbors about the need of their helping to make the older child feel wanted and worthwhile, and of being careful not to make too much fuss over the new baby.

If Dad has had practice in caring for and enjoying the older child, he should be well prepared to enjoy this child indefinitely after the new baby arrives.

Preventing and softening the pangs of jealousy does not happen in a day, or by accident. It requires long planning, great skills, self-discipline, and the ability to imagine yourself in the older child's place.

My bulletins, "Self - Reliance," "Preventing and Reducing Jealousy" and "Fathers are Parents, Too," may be had by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

The girl says it's her money and she should have it at her disposal. Some relatives think it should be put away for her until she's 21. My husband wants to do the right thing but he doesn't know what it is. Neither do I. Can you tell us?— W.L.D.

-:-

Dear W.L.D.: The $40 does not belong to "the family." It was left to your daughter. However, a 16-year-old shouldn't be handed $40 a month to do with as she pleases.

Invest in government bonds or put it in a savings account where it will earn interest. The money should be used for college.

Mixed Showers

Dear Ann: I come from a large family and there's always a shower going on for someone's engagement, new baby or an anniversary. The husbands almost always come along and sometimes they even bring their kids and say they couldn't get a sitter.

Would it be rude to write on the invitation, "Please leave your husband and children at home."

Advise me soon as I am the next victim and want to know how many to prepare for. — NO MILLIONAIRE.

-:-

Dear No Millionaire: A shower, to most people, means only women — in fact, the average husband couldn't be dragged to a shower with a tractor.

Apparently in your family a shower is a family-type wingding — come one, come all. Since this is the custom, you have no alternative but to serve modest refreshments and feed everyone.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Review, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bringing Up A Family

By GARRY C. MEYERS

Prepare Tot For New Baby's Coming

If you have a child, two, three or four, you will be wise to tell him several weeks beforehand if a baby is expected. Perhaps you will let him see the clothes and other equipment awaiting the baby. You may talk of it as "our baby" The child may even be led to choose possible names. It's also a good time to let him know the baby is in your body and to lay his hand on your abdomen to feel the movements of the unborn child. All such procedure may help ease the almost inevitable jealousies facing the child after the new baby arrives. Yet such preparation may be too late.

By Garry Meyer.

YOU SHOULD have begun months or years earlier to cultivate self-reliance in this older child so that now he would not be over-dependent, physically or emotionally, on you.

He should have learned to feel reasonably comfortable out of your sight, and to be happy in the care of his father or a baby sitter. He should have learned to enjoy appreciable periods of amusement alone and with others.

Many months before the new baby is expected, Dad should gradually take over more of the older child's care by night and, when home, by day. He can read to him, do things with him, have fun with him.

While you are in the hospital, this child will almost certainly be left alone part-time at least, with a baby sitter. Therefore he needs to become accustomed to such care. It would be fine if this baby sitter has cared for him during some previous period.

IF THIS CHILD must have a new bed or room after the baby comes home, this arrangement should have been made several weeks earlier.

Weeks before the baby's arrival, Mom and Dad should talk with relatives and neighbors about the need of their helping to make the older child feel wanted and worthwhile, and of being careful not to make too much fuss over the new baby.

If Dad has had practice in caring for and enjoying the older child, he should be well prepared to enjoy this child indefinitely after the new baby arrives.

Preventing and softening the pangs of jealousy does not happen in a day, or by accident. It requires long planning, great skills, self-discipline, and the ability to imagine yourself in the older child's place.

My bulletins, "Self - Reliance," "Preventing and Reducing Jealousy" and "Fathers are Parents, Too," may be had by sending a self - addressed, stamped envelope to me in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. Pike chose a green dress with matching accessories and a purple orchid corsage. Mrs. Voight wore a beige dress with matching accessories. A green hat and a green orchid corsage complemented her attire.

A reception for 125 followed in the social rooms and a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple and decorated with lavendar roses, centered the table.

Miss Patricia Pike Becomes Bride In Ceremony At Lisbon

Miss Patricia Lee Pike carried a cascade of white roses, orchids and trailing ivy for her marriage to Earl Sheridan Voight Jr. Saturday afternoon at 3:30 in the First Methodist Church at Lisbon.

The Rev. Thomas Hammerton, former pastor of the church and now of East Palestine, officiated at the double-ring rites before an altar setting of fernery, spring flowers and seven-branch candelabra.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Howard Pike of E. Chestnut St. and the bridegroom the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Voight of Kirkwood, Mo.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duke presented traditional organ music and Byron Griffith sang "The Lord's Prayer," "Throught the Years" and "Because."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a floor-length gown of silk peau-de-soie with appliques of Chantilly lace starred with sequins and seed pearls.

Designed along princess lines with portrait neckline and brief, shirred sleeves with matching appliques, the bouffant skirt ended with scalloped lace edging and a ruffle of tulle and was worn over an old-fashioned hoop.

The French, imported veil of illusion fingertip length was caught to a matching crown.

Miss Sandra Sue Pike was her sister's maid of honor and wore a sheath dress of turquois silk organza with a cummberbund of matching satin highlighted with re-embroidered petite flowers. A sash led from the waist. A theater-length veil was caught to a matching Dior bow.

Bridesmaid's Attire

Identically attired were the bridesmaids, Mrs. Jack Pike of Salem, sister-in-law of the bride, Mrs. Ronson Robinson of Kent and Mrs. William Ritz of Columbus, both college roommates of the bride. The straw baskets they carried were filled with spring flowers and mingling ivy.

Thomas S. Price of Logan, a classmate of the bridegroom, was best man and ushers were N. William Ritz, fraternity brother, and Robert C. Pike and Jack H. Pike, brothers of the bride.

Mrs. Pike chose a green dress with matching accessories and a purple orchid corsage. Mrs. Voight wore a beige dress with matching accessories. A green hat and a green orchid corsage complemented her attire.

A reception for 125 followed in the social rooms and a three-tier wedding cake, topped with a miniature bridal couple and decorated with lavendar roses, centered the table.

Those who served at the bride's table were Mrs. Philip Jepson of Ashtabula, Miss Diane Denny of Columbus, college classmates of the bride, and Mrs. David Lawton of N. Lima, a cousin, and Mrs. T. W. Pike of Lisbon, aunt. Miss Susan Pike, cousin of the bride, registered guests from California, Missouri, Columbus, Hanoverton, Salem, Kent and Lisbon.

Wellsville Contributes $1,000 For Red Cross

A total of $1,000 was reported as the first phase of Wellsville's Red Cross Fund drive officially closed Sunday afternoon, according to Fred Baldasarre, drive chairman.

He said this is about a third of what the final total is expected to be, with special gifts and industry divisions still to report.

A breakdown of the first phase total shows $370, house-to-house canvass; $445, personal gifts, and $185, business.

Baldasarre and other Red Cross officers met yesterday afternoon at Daw Junior High School with division chairmen and district captains to collect the funds. The drive will be concluded in a week to 10 days.

Bonsal Back; Castro Aides Hit U.S. Again

HAVANA (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal got a cheering welcome back from 500 Cubans Sunday but ran into a new barrange of anti-American blasts from two top Castro government officials.

Arriving with a smile, the American envoy made no mention of finding the official atmosphere as hostile as when he left Havana in a protest two months ago.

"I am glad to be here," Bonsal told an airport crowd that included some foreign diplomats. Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government did not send an official representative, but this was not unusual.

Bonsal said he would "do everything possible" to improve Cuban-American relations, now at a dangerously low ebb.

Only a few hours before the ambassador's plane landed, Cuba's economic czar, extreme leftist Ernesto Guevara, told a radio audience the nation faces "economic war" with the United States. Guevara hailed the trade agreement Fidel Castro signed recently with the Soviet Union as the best trade pact Cuba has ever made. Guevara insisted it had no political implications.

Guevara asserted that American dollars are not really important to Cuba. He said their only value is for purchases abroad and Cuba can do that with sugar. Cuba's trade pact with the Soviet Union calls for Soviet purchase of five million tons of sugar in the next five years. One fifth of it, about 75 million dollars worth, will be paid in cash, the rest in goods.

Another blast charging the United States with economic aggression came from President Osvaldo Dorticos.

The Cuban people will die "in revolutionary trenches" rather than submit through hunger to U.S. economic aggression, the president told a crowd of 17,000 at a rally to raise funds for arms and planes.

The crowd of 17,000 chipped in 250,000 pesos—$250,000 at the official rate in Cuba but a lot less on the world money market—and thunderously cheered Dorticos' assertion that Cuba would buy arms and planes "from whatever country makes and sells them."

Bonsal's return to Cuba — opposed by some U.S. congressmen —came generally as a surprise to the American colony in Havana. Some Americans here claimed it would be interpreted as weakness on the part of the U.S. government.

Arraignment Awaited In 'White Slave' Case

Clyde L. Barker, 27, of 2140 Ohio Ave., charged with violating the White Slave Act, will go before a Federal Court for arraignment sometime later this month, the U. S. attorney's office at Pittsburgh said today.

Barker was named in a list of indictments returned March 14 by the Federal Grand Jury, which convened March 7 at Pittsburgh. He is free on $1,500 bond. His trial probably will be held in September.

He is charged with forcing Mrs. Wanita Belle Lemasters, 17, of Ohio Township to accompany him into Columbiana County Feb. 5 for immoral purposes. Constable Bernard Zlatovich of Ohio Township was the arresting officer.

Jet Crosses Country, Leaves Door Behind

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After a big jet airliner made a perfect landing, mechanics discovered that it wasn't quite all here.

A 10-by-3 foot aluminum door was missing. The door covered the plane's air-conditioning compartment.

Airline officials said a resident near Idlewild International Airport at New York — where the Trans World Airlines flight originated Sunday—found the door in his backyard. John E. Gleason said it bounced off his roof just after the plane went overhead.

Some 80 girls will receive awards at the event tonight with Mrs. Don Nightingale, awards committee chairman, making the presentations. There are 425 girls slated to take part.

The "Torchbearer" awards, issued from national Campfire Girls headquarters at New York, are presented to girls who have achieved all previous ranks and have worked for a year in social leadership.

The three girls are in a group under the direction of Mrs. Joseph Galbreath.

Traces Of Gas Found

Sunday School Evacuated In Wake Of School Blast

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP)—In the wake of a blast which wrecked an elementary school here, the Sunday school at the First Methodist Church was ordered evacuated Sunday after fire authorities found traces of gas in the vicinity.

Some 325 persons filed out of the Sunday school building, and church services were cancelled. Only a small alley separates the rear of the church from the blast-ridden Clinton St. Elementary School.

Seven persons were injured and damage was estimated at $700,000 when the elementary school was rocked by an explosion Saturday —an off-day for classes. Police and fire authorities said the blast may have been caused by sewer gas.

Sunday, probing beneath the ground in the alley in back of the church, fire authorities found traces of gas. They couldn't say what type of gas, but they ordered the Sunday school evacuated as a precautionary measure.

The church pastor, the Rev. Chester A. Imhausen, elected not to stay in his parsonage, next to the church, overnight.

The church presumably will stay closed until the danger of gas is lifted.

Saturday's school explosion shattered windows in the surrounding area and threw chunks of the building a block away.

School Supt. William Pees, who had been helping workmen trying to unplug a sewer, said he heard a sudden rushing sound, then the ceiling crumbled down. Pees was scorched by the blast.

William Gorsuch, 50, a plumbing contractor who was in the basement working on the sewer, had to be dug out of the wreckage. He suffered burns over most of his upper body.

Others injured were Gorsuch's son, William Jr., 24, and school janitor Ralph Todd, 58, who both suffered burns and body bruises; 8-year-old Garry Gottschalk of Westerville, who was hit by fragments and suffered a broken leg; his father, Eugene, who suffered hand cuts from flying debris, and Mrs. Anna Phund, 66, of Wauseon, who was cut by flying glass as she sat in a car.

The school pupils were given a vacation this week.

Tests Uphold Theory Of 'Three's A Crowd'

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Johns Hopkins University professor says there is scientific truth in the old proverb, "Two's company, three's a crowd."

When three persons are thrown together, two pair off in a closer relationship and the third is sort of left out in the cold, according to Dr. James S. Coleman, associate professor of social relations.

Dr. Coleman said an electronic brain determined this to be the case, even if all three persons are alike in personality and temperament. The machine didn't say why.

Strays Will Be Shot

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP)—The mayor of nearby Bethel has ordered police to shoot on sight any dog found running at large, starting today. Mayor Charles L. Hook said the only dogs that will be safe are those on a leash and muzzled.

Baby Sitters Class Due For Wellsville

A class to instruct baby sitters in safety measures and the proper way to care for small children will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Wellsville fire station by Chief Robert Lewis.

This is the first class of its type to be conducted in this area. The instruction was set up by Lewis and Mrs. Jennie Calhoun, school nurse. Lewis said some 10 to 15 girls are expected to attend. Announcement was made at the high school. The class is for girls up to 14.

Lewis said any others interested may contact him at the station.

Those attending will be told how to handle certain emergencies such as fire, sickness and what to do should a child injure himself.

A booklet has been drawn up by Lewis and Mrs. Calhoun, which will be used in the instruction. Each girl also will be given a list of items which should be done when baby sitting.

Lewis said additional classes will be set up as more register.

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Services will be held Wednesday for Harry Broome, Huron County sheriff, who died Saturday. Broome, 70, was sheriff for the last 12 years.

Speed Limits Set On Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has set flight speed limits on Electra turbo-prop airliners pending further investigation of last Thursday's Indiana air tragedy. Sixty-three persons died when an Electra disintegrated in flight.

The Federal Aviation Agency announced the limits Sunday night in advance of a meeting it scheduled here Tuesday with representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Board, operators of Electra planes and makers of the planes and their power plants.

FAA Administrator E. R. Quesada said the planes should be operated at not more than about 316 miles per hour at altitudes up to 15,000 feet. Slower speeds were set on a sliding scale at higher altitudes.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. which makes the Electras said their normal cruising speed is 400 miles per hour. A Lockheed spokesman said 136 of the planes have been delivered to airlines. The FAA said seven airlines use Electras.

Thursday's accident was the third involving a four-engine Electra. One operated by American Airlines plunged into New York's East River on Feb. 3, 1959, with a loss of 65 lives. Another Electra of Braniff Airways crashed last Sept. 29 near Buffalo, Tex., with a loss of 34 lives.

Flier's Fall Into Home Has Tragic Family Note

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP)—Leon M. Boisseranc watched from the yard of his home as his son, Leon Jr., 29, circled overhead in his light plane.

Suddenly the plane's engine quit. It spiralled, plunged into a home, and exploded.

The home was that of Emil Boisseranc—the flier's uncle. He hurried his wife and three children from the burning home and tried unsuccessfully to save his nephew.

Boisseranc Jr. died in the wreckage. The home was destroyed. The uncle's hands and face were badly burned.

Wellsville Contributes $1,000 For Red Cross

A total of $1,000 was reported as the first phase of Wellsville's Red Cross Fund drive officially closed Sunday afternoon, according to Fred Baldasarre, drive chairman.

He said this is about a third of what the final total is expected to be, with special gifts and industry divisions still to report.

A breakdown of the first phase total shows $370, house-to-house canvass; $445, personal gifts, and $125, business.

Baldasarre and other Red Cross officers met yesterday afternoon at Daw Junior High School with division chairmen and district captains to collect the funds. The drive will be concluded in a week to 10 days.

Bonsal Back; Castro Aides Hit U.S. Again

HAVANA (AP)—U.S. Ambassador Philip Bonsal got a cheering welcome back from 500 Cubans Sunday but ran into a new barrange of anti-American blasts from two top Castro government officials.

Arriving with a smile, the American envoy made no mention of finding the official atmosphere as hostile as when he left Havana in a protest two months ago.

"I am glad to be here," Bonsal told an airport crowd that included some foreign diplomats. Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government did not send an official representative, but this was not unusual.

Bonsal said he would "do everything possible" to improve Cuban-American relations, now at a dangerously low ebb.

Only a few hours before the ambassador's plane landed, Cuba's economic czar, extreme leftist Ernesto Guevara, told a radio audience the nation faces "economic war" with the United States. Guevara hailed the trade agreement Fidel Castro signed recently with the Soviet Union as the best trade pact Cuba has ever made. Guevara insisted it had no political implications.

Guevara asserted that American dollars are not really important to Cuba. He said their only value is for purchases abroad and Cuba can do that with sugar. Cuba's trade pact with the Soviet Union calls for Soviet purchase of five million tons of sugar in the next five years. One fifth of it, about 75 million dollars worth, will be paid in cash, the rest in goods.

Another blast charging the United States with economic aggression came from President Osvaldo Dorticos.

The Cuban people will die "in revolutionary trenches" rather than submit through hunger to U.S. economic aggression, the president told a crowd of 17,000 at a rally to raise funds for arms and planes.

The crowd of 17,000 chipped in 250,000 pesos—$250,000 at the official rate in Cuba but a lot less on the world money market—and thunderously cheered Dorticos' assertion that Cuba would buy arms and planes "from whatever country makes and sells them."

Bonsal's return to Cuba — opposed by some U.S. congressmen —came generally as a surprise to the American colony in Havana. Some Americans here claimed it would be interpreted as weakness on the part of the U.S. government.

Arraignment Awaited In 'White Slave' Case

Clyde L. Barker, 27, of 2140 Ohio Ave., charged with violating the White Slave Act, will go before a Federal Court for arraignment sometime later this month, the U. S. attorney's office at Pittsburgh said today.

Barker was named in a list of indictments returned March 14 by the Federal Grand Jury, which convened March 7 at Pittsburgh. He is free on $1,500 bond. His trial probably will be held in September.

He is charged with forcing Mrs. Wanita Belle Lemasters, 17, of Ohio Township to accompany him into Columbiana County Feb. 5 for immoral purposes. Constable Bernard Zlatovich of Ohio Township was the arresting officer.

Jet Crosses Country, Leaves Door Behind

LOS ANGELES (AP)—After a big jet airliner made a perfect landing, mechanics discovered that it wasn't quite all here.

A 10-by-3 foot aluminum door was missing. The door covered the plane's air-conditioning compartment.

Airline officials said a resident near Idlewild International Airport at New York — where the Trans World Airlines flight originated Sunday—found the door in his backyard. John E. Gleason said it bounced off his roof just after the plane went overhead.

Traces Of Gas Found

Sunday School Evacuated In Wake Of School Blast

WAUSEON, Ohio (AP)—In the wake of a blast which wrecked an elementary school here, the Sunday school at the First Methodist Church was ordered evacuated Sunday after fire authorities found traces of gas in the vicinity.

Some 325 persons filed out of the Sunday school building, and church services were cancelled. Only a small alley separates the rear of the church from the blast-ridden Clinton St. Elementary School.

Seven persons were injured and damage was estimated at $700,000 when the elementary school was rocked by an explosion Saturday —an off-day for classes. Police and fire authorities said the blast may have been caused by sewer gas.

Sunday, probing beneath the ground in the alley in back of the church, fire authorities found traces of gas. They couldn't say what type of gas, but they ordered the Sunday school evacuated as a precautionary measure.

The church pastor, the Rev. Chester A. Imhausen, elected not to stay in his parsonage, next to the church, overnight.

The church presumably will stay closed until the danger of gas is lifted.

Saturday's school explosion shattered windows in the surrounding area and threw chunks of the building a block away.

School Supt. William Pees, who had been helping workmen trying to unplug a sewer, said he heard a sudden rushing sound, then the ceiling crumbled down. Pees was scorched by the blast.

William Gorsuch, 50, a plumbing contractor who was in the basement working on the sewer, had to be dug out of the wreckage. He suffered burns over most of his upper body.

Others injured were Gorsuch's son, William Jr., 24, and school janitor Ralph Todd, 58, who both suffered burns and body bruises; 8-year-old Garry Gottschalk of Westerville, who was hit by fragments and suffered a broken leg; his father, Eugene, who suffered hand cuts from flying debris, and Mrs. Anna Phund, 66, of Wauseon, who was cut by flying glass as she sat in a car.

The school pupils were given a vacation this week.

Tests Uphold Theory Of 'Three's A Crowd'

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Johns Hopkins University professor says there is scientific truth in the old proverb, "Two's company, three's a crowd."

When three persons are thrown together, two pair off in a closer relationship and the third is sort of left out in the cold, according to Dr. James S. Coleman, associate professor of social relations.

Dr. Coleman said an electronic brain determined this to be the case, even if all three persons are alike in personality and temperament. The machine didn't say why.

Strays Will Be Shot

BATAVIA, Ohio (AP)—The mayor of nearby Bethel has ordered police to shoot on sight any dog found running at large, starting today. Mayor Charles L. Hook said the only dogs that will be safe are those on a leash and muzzled.

Baby Sitters Class Due For Wellsville

A class to instruct baby sitters in safety measures and the proper way to care for small children will be held Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. at the Wellsville fire station by Chief Robert Lewis.

This is the first class of its type to be conducted in this area. The instruction was set up by Lewis and Mrs. Jennie Calhoun, school nurse. Lewis said some 10 to 15 girls are expected to attend. Announcement was made at the high school. The class is for girls up to 14.

Lewis said any others interested may contact him at the station.

Those attending will be told how to handle certain emergencies such as fire, sickness and what to do should a child injure himself.

A booklet has been drawn up by Lewis and Mrs. Calhoun, which will be used in the instruction. Each girl also will be given a list of items which should be done when baby sitting.

Lewis said additional classes will be set up as more register.

Huron Sheriff Dies

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—Services will be held Wednesday for Harry Broome, Huron County sheriff, who died Saturday. Broome, 70, was sheriff for the last 12 years.

Speed Limits Set On Planes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has set flight speed limits on Electra turbo-prop airliners pending further investigation of last Thursday's Indiana air tragedy. Sixty-three persons died when an Electra disintegrated in flight.

The Federal Aviation Agency announced the limits Sunday night in advance of a meeting it scheduled here Tuesday with representatives of the Civil Aeronautics Board, operators of Electra planes and makers of the planes and their power plants.

FAA Administrator E. R. Quesada said the planes should be operated at not more than about 316 miles per hour at altitudes up to 15,000 feet. Slower speeds were set on a sliding scale at higher altitudes.

The Lockheed Aircraft Corp. which makes the Electras said their normal cruising speed is 400 miles per hour. A Lockheed spokesman said 136 of the planes have been delivered to airlines. The FAA said seven airlines use Electras.

Thursday's accident was the third involving a four-engine Electra. One operated by American Airlines plunged into New York's East River on Feb. 3, 1959, with a loss of 65 lives. Another Electra of Braniff Airways crashed last Sept. 29 near Buffalo, Tex., with a loss of 34 lives.

Flier's Fall Into Home Has Tragic Family Note

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP)—Leon M. Boisseranc watched from the yard of his home as his son, Leon Jr., 29, circled overhead in his light plane.

Suddenly the plane's engine quit. It spiralled, plunged into a home, and exploded.

The home was that of Emil Boisseranc—the flier's uncle. He hurried his wife and three children from the burning home and tried unsuccessfully to save his nephew.

Boisseranc Jr. died in the wreckage. The home was destroyed. The uncle's hands and face were badly burned.

Wake Up—Spring Is Here

Try a spring tonic eye-opener. Describe yourself in the way a stranger would be likely to describe you. To do that, take an impersonal view of that gal in the mirror and write down a brief description that would accurately identify you. Take off your rose-colored glasses . . . make this a candid appraisal. Mark down your height, your weight, your general expression, your coloring, and a one-word description of your posture. Now the test question . . . How old do you look?

By Ida Jean Kain

It wa a descriptive line regarding age that jolted one woman into taking determined action. It may help you with your experiment to look over my shoulder at her refreshingly frank letter . . .

"Today's column which told of all the excuses we make to justify our weight was of particular interest to me. I used to use those very arguments . . . that my father's side of the family had all been heavy-weights so I came by my weight honestly . . . and that reducing makes a woman look older.

"THIS WENT ON until one day something happened to wake me up to the fact that my weight was making me look much older than I really was. I was a counter girl and we had people stop by to check up on us.

"Since they could not ask us our names as this would give away who they were, they would write down a description of us on their report. Well, I read one of those reports about me. I was listed as being 15 years older than I actually was! I was then 39, but the descriptive line about my age read 55!

"That did it. I went to my doctor and asked him to help me take off some of this weight. I am only 5 feet tall. My measurements were, bust 36", waist 33" . . . and heaven only knows how big my hips were. I weighed 154½ pounds. That was eight years ago.

"I took off over 30 pounds and have kept them off. My measurements now are: bust 34", waist 26", and hips 38". I am 47 and now weigh 122 pounds. I would like to bring this down just a bit. I plan my meals around the protective foods and I exercise 5 minutes a day. True, I cannot eat as much as I did when I was heavy but I no longer want to. I feel so much better and look much better as well."

IN THE SNAPSHOTS included with her letter, this spirited gal looks far younger than she did 8 years ago. Cheers for her.

Friends, the unfailing miracle of spring is the hope it brings and the euphoric feeling that the hope can be achieved. Write down your description . . . resolve to slim down and shape up. Set a goal. Three months from now, on the first day of summer, re-write your description.

Send a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope for "Hunger Control Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Post card requests cannot be answered.

Minor Blaze Quelled At Palestine's Plaza

EAST PALESTINE — Only $25 damage resulted from a fire at the new E. Taggart St. shopping plaza Sunday night, Fire Chief Glenn Libert reported.

Firemen were called to the new Mansells's Restaurant at the plaza when a smouldering blaze burned into the restuarant from the adjoining building, where a laundromat is to be installed. Workman had been doing soldering there early yesterday and the hot lead apparently ignited the blaze.

Chiang Kai-shek Wins Third Six-Year Term

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was reelected without opposition today in a third six-year term as president of Nationalist China.

Flags of the republic blossomed in Taipei. Firecracker barrages were set off throughout the country.

The National Assembly, sitting as the nation's electoral college, gave the 73-year-old leader a rousing 1,481 votes out of 1,509 ballots cast. The remaining 28 ballots were blank — an anti-Chiang expression — and were declared invalid.

The National Assembly will meet again Tuesday to elect Vice President Chen Cheng, 62, to his second term. He also is unopposed.

The president and his running mate will be inaugurated on May 20.

The Nationalist constitution prohibits a third term for the president and vice president, but in order to keep Chiang in office the prohibition was suspended until the national regime recaptures the Communist-held mainland.

2 Bands Given Contest Rating

The Wellsville and Stanton Local High School bands received high ratings in a district contest Saturday at Carrollton.

Stanton Local of Irondale won a "superior" rating for the fourth consecutive year and will participate in the state band contest April 23 at Ashland College in Ashland.

The 57-member band directed by Donald Pahl competed in class C-2. Brilliant was the only other Jefferson County band to win a "superior" rating, according to Supt. C. P. Henderson.

The Wellsville band received an overall rating of "excellent."

Wellsville's band performed in Class B-1 and competed against Navarre, Wintersville, Dover and Minerva.

Theodore Koenig, director, said the band received two "excellent" ratings and a "superior" in performance and an "excellent" on sight reading.

The band played "Storm King March," "From Foxen's Glenn" and "Second Symphony Finale."

Yacht Club Plans To Rebuild Docks

Plans for rebuilding the docks for the summer season were outlined at a meeting of the East Liverpool Yacht Club Sunday afternoon at Bob Campbell's Motorama on Pennsylvania Ave.

The club will construct six new floats. They will be 12-feet long and 7-feet wide. Accomodations will be made for 29 boats. The club had 19 spaces last year.

Work will begin Saturday at 1 p. m. The docks have been towed to the Milliron lot at E. 2nd and Washington Sts. They will be taken to Hamilton's Service Station on Pennsylvania Ave., where they will be repainted and repaired. The new floats also will be built there.

The committee in charge includes Elmer Matheny, William Keim and William Pellow. John Falone, commander, said all members will be required to work on the floats. Any who don't will not be allowed to continue a member and their dues will be returned, he said.

The trustees will meet Tuesday night at 8 at the Foremen's Club on Harvey Ave.

Court Postpones Trial For Holdup

LISBON — The scheduled trial for James Harold Maras, 20, of Warren, charged with the armed robbery of Barnett's Motel on Route 62 west of Salem Dec. 11, today was postponed until Monday, March 28, by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

Maras' attorney, Francis X. Diana of Warren, reported that he received no notification of the trial. Norman Ward, assignment commissioner, said he forwarded him a postcard to the address listed in an Ohio Bar publication, but Diana's address had been changed.

Nick Rini, motel owner, identified Maras as one of three men who robbed him of $650 in cash and $165 in checks.

An armed robbery affidavit is on file for Maras' brother, Edmond, 30, formerly of Newton Falls. Charles F. Harris, alias James Miller, 38, also of Warren, believed to have been the third member of the bandit trio, was killed by police in Dixon, Ill., Jan. 4. Edmond Maras, who was captured by the Dixon police, subsequently broke out of a county jail in Illinois and still is at large.

Lisbon Plant Shutdown May Continue 2 Weeks

LISBON — A temporary shutdown in operations at the Thomas Works of the Delta Star Electric Division, caused indirectly by recent bad weather, may last two weeks or more, a plant official said over the weekend.

About half the 125 workers at the H. K. Porter Co. subsidiary have been laid off and the remainder are due to be furloughed starting Thursday.

James F. Zboyvsky, plant manager, said recent inclement weather and cutbacks in insulator orders has left warehouses loaded to the ceilings with merchandise. The firm produces porcelain insulators for various electrical purposes.

There is insufficient storage space at present, he added. No production is scheduled Thursday or Friday or next week, but maintenance work will continue as usual because the cutback is expected to be brief, the official said.

A dress rehearsal will be held Thursday evening. The cast includes association members, teachers and members of the Senior Class in special acts and songs.

Tickets will be available at the door. Proceeds will aid association projects.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned, Clerk of the Board of Education of the Stanton Local School District, herein referred to as the Board, in the County of Jefferson, Ohio, at his office at Irondale, Ohio, until 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, on the 7th day of April, 1960, at which time the bids will be publicly opened and read, for the purchase of bonds of the Board in the aggregate amount of $498,000, authorized by resolution adopted January 7, 1960.

Said bonds shall be dated the first day of March, 1960, shall be in the denomination of $1,000 each, shall draw interest payable semiannually on the first days of June and December of each year beginning June 1, 1961, at the rate of four per centum (4%) per annum. Anyone desiring to do so may present a bid for said bonds based upon their bearing a different rate of interest, but not in excess of 6%, providing that where a fractional interest is bid, such fraction shall be one-quarter of one per cent or a multiple thereof.

Said bonds mature as follows: $23,000 on December 1, 1961; and 25,000 on December 1 in the years 1962 to 1980, inclusive.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of acquiring a site and for the construction and improvement of a fireproof school building, and for the equipment and furnishing of said school building, and to install inside toilets and for the improvement of the Hammondsville Elementary Building.

Said bonds are payable at The Union Savings Bank and Trust Company, Toronto, Ohio, and are supported by unlimited taxes.

Said bids will be promptly considered, and said bonds will be sold to the highest bidder offering the lowest interest rate at not less than par and accrued interest. The lowest interest rate will be determined by calculating the total interest to stated maturity at the rate bid and deducting therefrom the premium bid. If each of two or more bids is the highest bid offering the lowest interest rate, the bonds will be awarded on such one of said highest bids as is chosen by the said Clerk by lot. All bids must be accompanied by a bond or certified check on a solvent bank (other than the bidder) payable to the Board, in the amount of one per cent of the par amount of the bonds bid for, upon condition that if the bid is accepted, the bidder will receive and pay for such bonds in accordance with the terms and provisions of this notice, or forfeit the same as liquidated damages in the event said condition is not fulfilled.

Bids shall be sealed and endorsed "Bid for School Improvement Bonds".

The proceedings for this issue have been taken under the supervision of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Bond Attorneys, Cleveland, Ohio, whose approving opinion may be obtained by the successful bidder at the bidder's expense. A complete transcript of proceedings and the printed bonds will be furnished by the Board, together with a certificate showing no litigation pending or threatened at the time of the delivery, to enjoin delivery or to contest the validity of the bonds or the power to issue them or the levy or collection of taxes for their payment.

In the event the interest on said bonds should by act of Congress or otherwise become subject to Federal Income Taxes prior to delivery the successful bidder may refuse to accept delivery and in such event his bond or certified check shall be returned without interest.

It is contemplated that the Board will meet at 7:30 o'clock p.m. on the 7th day of April, 1960, to consider said bids and make an award.

The bonds will be delivered at the office of the undersigned, or such other place as may be agreed on with the successful bidder; if outside of the limits of the School District the bidder shall pay expense of delivery at that place.

Before making tender of the bonds at the place of delivery the Board shall give written notice to the successful bidder not later than the third day before the proposed tender, of the fact that the bonds, transcript, no-litigation certificate, and approving opinion will be available for delivery and giving the date and hour for the tender at the said place of delivery, providing however that nothing herein contained shall prevent the making of a mutually agreeable arrangement for the delivery of the bonds either at the place fixed for delivery or elsewhere.

If such notice has not been given or waived by the successful bidder and the bonds, transcript, no-litigation certificate and approving opinion are not available for delivery to the successful bidder at such place of delivery on or before 12 o'clock noon of the 30th calendar day after the day fixed for the receipt of bids, and the successful bidder shall not be in default of any of his obligations, he shall have the right thereafter and so long as no such tender by the Board shall yet have been made, to cancel the contract of purchase; such right to be exercised by delivering to the undersigned (or to his office during business hours) written notice of such cancellation. Such bidder shall thereupon be entitled to the return of the deposit which accompanied his bid and it shall be returned to him immediately.

The right is reserved to reject bids.

Wake Up—Spring Is Here

Try a spring tonic eye-opener. Describe yourself in the way a stranger would be likely to describe you. To do that, take an impersonal view of that gal in the mirror and write down a brief description that would accurately identify you. Take off your rose-colored glasses . . . make this a candid appraisal. Mark down your height, your weight, your general expression, your coloring, and a one-word description of your posture. Now the test question . . . How old do you look?

By Ida Jean Kain

It wa a descriptive line regarding age that jolted one woman into taking determined action. It may help you with your experiment to look over my shoulder at her refreshingly frank letter . . .

"Today's column which told of all the excuses we make to justify our weight was of particular interest to me. I used to use those very arguments . . . that my father's side of the family had all been heavy-weights so I came by my weight honestly . . . and that reducing makes a woman look older.

"THIS WENT ON until one day something happened to wake me up to the fact that my weight was making me look much older than I really was. I was a counter girl and we had people stop by to check up on us.

"Since they could not ask us our names as this would give away who they were, they would write down a description of us on their report. Well, I read one of those reports about me. I was listed as being 15 years older than I actually was! I was then 39, but the descriptive line about my age read 55!

"That did it. I went to my doctor and asked him to help me take off some of this weight. I am only 5 feet tall. My measurements were, bust 36", waist 33" . . . and heaven only knows how big my hips were. I weighed 154½ pounds. That was eight years ago.

"I took off over 30 pounds and have kept them off. My measurements now are: bust 34", waist 26", and hips 38". I am 47 and now weigh 122 pounds. I would like to bring this down just a bit. I plan my meals around the protective foods and I exercise 5 minutes a day. True, I cannot eat as much as I did when I was heavy but I no longer want to. I feel so much better and look much better as well."

IN THE SNAPSHOTS included with her letter, this spirited gal looks far younger than she did 8 years ago. Cheers for her.

Friends, the unfailing miracle of spring is the hope it brings and the euphoric feeling that the hope can be achieved. Write down your description . . . resolve to slim down and shape up. Set a goal. Three months from now, on the first day of summer, re-write your description.

Send a long, self - addressed, stamped envelope for "Hunger Control Diet." Address your request to Ida Jean Kain, in care of The Review. Post card requests cannot be answered.

Minor Blaze Quelled At Palestine's Plaza

EAST PALESTINE — Only $25 damage resulted from a fire at the new E. Taggart St. shopping plaza Sunday night, Fire Chief Glenn Libert reported.

Firemen were called to the new Mansells's Restaurant at the plaza when a smouldering blaze burned into the restuarant from the adjoining building, where a laundromat is to be installed. Workman had been doing soldering there early yesterday and the hot lead apparently ignited the blaze.

Fund Drive Starts

EAST PALESTINE — A house-to-house canvass for the Red Cross Fund campaign was slated to begin today, Charles W. Kelley of W. North Ave., newly-appointed city chairman, announced. Kelley, a councilman, said various organizations will be asked to assist in the solicitation.

Chiang Kai-shek Wins Third Six-Year Term

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek was reelected without opposition today in a third six-year term as president of Nationalist China.

Flags of the republic blossomed in Taipei. Firecracker barrages were set off throughout the country.

The National Assembly, sitting as the nation's electoral college, gave the 73-year-old leader a rousing 1,481 votes out of 1,509 ballots cast. The remaining 28 ballots were blank — an anti-Chiang expression — and were declared invalid.

The National Assembly will meet again Tuesday to elect Vice President Chen Cheng, 62, to his second term. He also is unopposed.

The president and his running mate will be inaugurated on May 20.

The Nationalist constitution prohibits a third term for the president and vice president, but in order to keep Chiang in office the prohibition was suspended until the national regime recaptures the Communist-held mainland.

Highlandtown School Group To Hold Dinner

A dinner for the personnel of the school was discussed by the Highlandtown Parent-Teacher Association when it met Friday night.

The ways and means committee will have charge of arrangements for the annual affair. Clarence Chettle, president, presided. The meeting opened with group singing of "America" and a prayer by Mrs. Agnes McKenzie. A nominating committee was named, comprised of Robert McPherson, Robert Hays and Hugh Smith.

The fifth and sixth grades, directed by Jon Frischkorn, presented the program. Announcement was made of an amateur show to be held Friday night by the eighth grade. The attendance banner was won by the fifth and sixth grades. Refreshments were served by homeroom mothers of the third through the sixth grades.

2 Bands Given Contest Rating

The Wellsville and Stanton Local High School bands received high ratings in a district contest Saturday at Carrollton.

Stanton Local of Irondale won a "superior" rating for the fourth consecutive year and will participate in the state band contest April 23 at Ashland College in Ashland.

The 57-member band directed by Donald Pahl competed in class C-2. Brilliant was the only other Jefferson County band to win a "superior" rating, according to Supt. C. P. Henderson.

The Wellsville band received an overall rating of "excellent."

Wellsville's band performed in Class B-1 and competed against Navarre, Wintersville, Dover and Minerva.

Theodore Koenig, director, said the band received two "excellent" ratings and a "superior" in performance and an "excellent" on sight reading.

The band played "Storm King March," "From Foxen's Glenn" and "Second Symphony Finale."

Yacht Club Plans To Rebuild Docks

Plans for rebuilding the docks for the summer season were outlined at a meeting of the East Liverpool Yacht Club Sunday afternoon at Bob Campbell's Motorama on Pennsylvania Ave.

The club will construct six new floats. They will be 12-feet long and 7-feet wide. Accomodations will be made for 29 boats. The club had 19 spaces last year.

Work will begin Saturday at 1 p. m. The docks have been towed to the Milliron lot at E. 2nd and Washington Sts. They will be taken to Hamilton's Service Station on Pennsylvania Ave., where they will be repainted and repaired. The new floats also will be built there.

The committee in charge includes Elmer Matheny, William Keim and William Pellow. John Falone, commander, said all members will be required to work on the floats. Any who don't will not be allowed to continue a member and their dues will be returned, he said.

The trustees will meet Tuesday night at 8 at the Foremen's Club on Harvey Ave.

Court Postpones Trial For Holdup

LISBON — The scheduled trial for James Harold Maras, 20, of Warren, charged with the armed robbery of Barnett's Motel on Route 62 west of Salem Dec. 11, today was postponed until Monday, March 28, by Common Pleas Judge Raymond S. Buzzard.

Maras' attorney, Francis X. Diana of Warren, reported that he received no notification of the trial. Norman Ward, assignment commissioner, said he forwarded him a postcard to the address listed in an Ohio Bar publication, but Diana's address had been changed.

Nick Rini, motel owner, identified Maras as one of three men who robbed him of $650 in cash and $165 in checks.

An armed robbery affidavit is on file for Maras' brother, Edmond, 30, formerly of Newton Falls. Charles F. Harris, alias James Miller, 38, also of Warren, believed to have been the third member of the bandit trio, was killed by police in Dixon, Ill., Jan. 4. Edmond Maras, who was captured by the Dixon police, subsequently broke out of a county jail in Illinois and still is at large.

Lisbon Plant Shutdown May Continue 2 Weeks

LISBON — A temporary shutdown in operations at the Thomas Works of the Delta Star Electric Division, caused indirectly by recent bad weather, may last two weeks or more, a plant official said over the weekend.

About half the 125 workers at the H. K. Porter Co. subsidiary have been laid off and the remainder are due to be furloughed starting Thursday.

James F. Zboyvsky, plant manager, said recent inclement weather and cutbacks in insulator orders has left warehouses loaded to the ceilings with merchandise. The firm produces porcelain insulators for various electrical purposes.

There is insufficient storage space at present, he added. No production is scheduled Thursday or Friday or next week, but maintenance work will continue as usual because the cutback is expected to be brief, the official said.

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE OF BONDS

Sealed bids will be received by the undersigned, Clerk of the Board of Education of the Stanton Local School District, herein referred to as the Board, in the County of Jefferson, Ohio, at his office at Irondale, Ohio, until 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, on the 7th day of April, 1960, at which time the bids will be publicly opened and read, for the purchase of bonds of the Board in the aggregate amount of $498,000, authorized by resolution adopted January 7, 1960.

Said bonds shall be dated the first day of March, 1960, shall be in the denomination of $1,000 each, shall draw interest payable semiannually on the first days of June and December of each year beginning June 1, 1961, at the rate of four per centum (4%) per annum. Anyone desiring to do so may present a bid for said bonds based upon their bearing a different rate of interest, but not in excess of 6%, providing that where a fractional interest is bid, such fraction shall be one-quarter of one per cent or a multiple thereof.

Said bonds mature as follows:
$23,000 on December 1, 1961; and
25,000 on December 1 in the years 1962 to 1980, inclusive.

Said bonds are issued for the purpose of acquiring a site and for the construction and improvement of a fireproof school building, and for the equipment and furnishing of said school building, and to install inside toilets and for the improvement of the Hammondsville Elementary Building.

Said bonds are payable at The Union Savings Bank and Trust Company, Toronto, Ohio, and are supported by unlimited taxes.

Said bids will be promptly considered, and said bonds will be sold to the highest bidder offering the lowest interest rate at not less than par and accrued interest. The lowest interest rate will be determined by calculating the total interest to stated maturity at the rate bid and deducting therefrom the premium bid. If each of two or more bids is the highest bid offering the lowest interest rate, the bonds will be awarded on such one of said highest bids as is chosen by the said Clerk by lot. All bids must be accompanied by a bond or certified check on a solvent bank (other than the bidder) payable to the Board, in the amount of one per cent of the par amount of the bonds bid for, upon condition that if the bid is accepted, the bidder will receive and pay for such bonds in accordance with the terms and provisions of this notice, or forfeit the same as liquidated damages in the event said condition is not fuifilled.

Bids shall be sealed and endorsed "Bid for School Improvement Bonds".

The proceedings for this issue have been taken under the supervision of Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Bond Attorneys, Cleveland, Ohio, whose approving opinion may be obtained by the successful bidder at the bidder's expense. A complete transcript of proceedings and the printed bonds will be furnished by the Board, together with a certificate showing no litigation pending or threatened at the time of the delivery, to enjoin delivery or to contest the validity of the bonds or the power to issue them or the levy or collection of taxes for their payment.

In the event the interest on said bonds should by act of Congress or otherwise become subject to Federal Income Taxes prior to delivery the successful bidder may refuse to accept delivery and in such event his bond or certified check shall be returned without interest.

It is contemplated that the Board will meet at 7:30 o'clock p.m. on the 7th day of April, 1960, to consider said bids and make an award.

The bonds will be delivered at the office of the undersigned, or such other place as may be agreed on with the successful bidder; if outside of the limits of the School District the bidder shall pay expense of delivery at that place.

Before making tender of the bonds at the place of delivery the Board shall give written notice to the successful bidder not later than the third day before the proposed tender, of the fact that the bonds, transcript, no-litigation certificate, and approving opinion will be available for delivery and giving the date and hour for the tender at the said place of delivery, providing however that nothing herein contained shall prevent the making of a mutually agreeable arrangement for the delivery of the bonds either at the place fixed for delivery or elsewhere.

If such notice has not been given or waived by the successful bidder and the bonds, transcript, no-litigation certificate and approving opinion are not available for delivery to the successful bidder at such place of delivery on or before 12 o'clock noon of the 30th calendar day after the day fixed for the receipt of bids, and the successful bidder shall not be in default of any of his obligations, he shall have the right thereafter and so long as no such tender by the Board shall yet have been made, to cancel the contract of purchase; such right to be exercised by delivering to the undersigned (or to his office during business hours) written notice of such cancellation. Such bidder shall thereupon be entitled to the return of the deposit which accompanied his bid and it shall be returned to him immediately.

The right is reserved to reject bids.

Name-Callingest Of Them All?

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — This could turn into the name-callingest presidential campaign in recent history.

It's too early for firm predictions, but look at the storm warnings:

1.—With a Democratic Congress and a Republican White House, responsibilities become divided and issues turn hazy. When it's hard to debate issues, it's easy to debate personalities.

2.—Democratic leaders don't like Vice President Richard M. Nixon. They say so loudly in public, and they say so even more vehemently in private. After eight years of speaking gently about President Eisenhower, in deference to his immense popularity, the Democratic urge to let go must be immense.

3.—Much has been said about the new Nixon vs. the old Nixon. Certainly if he hopes to attract many Democratic voters — and he needs a large chunk if he's to be elected — he has to be careful not to offend them. But only the historical fact concerns us here: when pushed into a political corner. Dick Nixon can be a very tough man.

4.—The opening shots indicate heavy firing. They came at a Democratic meeting here in January, the kickoff of the campaign. Nearly every speaker roughed up Nixon, and such terms as "juvenile delinquent" and "Sir Richard the Nimble" were tossed about.

The biggest cheers were for Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo). They're the two who swung hardest at Nixon.

Indeed, the punches at Nixon have been so frequent that some Democrats are worring about a reverse reaction. They fear Nixon will be made a martyr.

Naturally no one—and especially the politician — ever endorses name-calling.

Certainly if he hopes to attract many Democratic voters — and he needs a large chunk if he's to be elected — he has to be careful not to offend them. But only the historical fact concerns us here: when pushed into a political corner. Dick Nixon can be a very tough man.

4.—The opening shots indicate heavy firing. They came at a Democratic meeting here in January, the kickoff of the campaign. Nearly every speaker roughed up Nixon, and such terms as "juvenile delinquent" and "Sir Richard the Nimble" were tossed about.

The biggest cheers were for Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) and Stuart Symington (D-Mo). They're the two who swung hardest at Nixon.

Indeed, the punches at Nixon have been so frequent that some Democrats are worring about a reverse reaction. They fear Nixon will be made a martyr.

Naturally no one—and especially the politician — ever endorses name-calling.

Bigger Supply Of Fruit Seen

Increasing amounts of fresh pineapple and bananas are available in this week's markets, according to Ed Watkins, market information agent with the Agricultural Extension Service.

Consumers have reported some pineapple on the market as damaged by freezing, he said. This could happen easily during the last few weeks, as snows delayed shipments and record cold temperatures did not follow normal trends, he added. Fresh pineapple should have a good color varying from yellow to bronze with a fragrant odor. The base of the fruit should be firm and of good color. A reliable sign of ripeness is that the green leaves at the crown can be easily plucked out. Pineapple will usually ripen satisfactorily at room temperature.

In addition to pineapples and bananas, other fresh fruit in plentiful supply are oranges, grapefruit, and apples. Navel oranges from California are becoming a little higher in price as the supply for this type of fruit begins to diminish. Valencia oranges from Florida are just coming into season now. Apples now are from refrigerated and controlled atmosphere storage. These fruits should be used within a few days of purchase.

These fresh fruits can be supplemented at fairly economical cost by canned peaches, pears, and red cherries; by frozen orange concentrate, canned citrus and blended juices and applesauce. Canned single strength citrus juices will be a little cheaper this week as a few packer wholesale prices have declined.

Economical fresh vegetables are about as limited this week as any time this winter. Carrots, dry onions and cabbage are low in price, with potatoes, celery, head lettuce, greens and rutabagas fairly economical. Head lettuce quality varies considerably. One of the best guides in heavy weight of the head compared with the size.

Poultry, eggs and pork are the economical meats even though eggs and pork have increased in price from the extremely low levels of recent weeks. Milk and cottage cheese are foods which have changed little in price but should rate high in the family food budget.

Chamber Denies Role In Household Survey

The Chamber of Commerce said today it has no connection with a door-to-door survey which a Pittsburgh concern has been making in East Liverpool, asking householders questions about family income and home improvements.

The Chamber said some of the canvassers told home-owners the survey was being made "with Chamber of Commerce approval," but declared that it did not sanction the questioning and did not know of the activity until it was reported by householders who had been approached.

The survey operators identify themselves as employes of a concern in the Lawrenceville section of Pittsburgh. The Chamber pointed out that householders need not answer questions of persons making casual house-to-house surveys.

Fire Wardens Named For Saline Township

IRONDALE — Joseph Gill and Wayne Close of Irondale have been named forest fire wardens of Saline Township, which includes the village and Hammondsville.

Edgar Almon and Harry Logan will serve Brush Creek Township while Eugene C. Moore and John Rodgers have been named for Ross Township.

The district office of the Ohio Division of Forestry at New Philadelphia said the spring forest fire season opened March 1 and will continue through May. During these months, burning permits are required for all fires kindled in the open outside of the corporation limits of towns and villages. Burning permits are free but are required under state law.

Library Recommends New Books Of Aid To Businesses

Books for the businessman, whether he is in a large or small enterprise, are featured on the new bookshelf this week at the Carnegie Public Library.

Miss Frances Jones, librarian, said the library has just acquired the Dun & Bradstreet "Million Dollar Directory."

This valuable tool affords three sources of information—an alphabetical listing of corporations worth over $1 million, listing sales volume, officers and number of employees. There is a geographic index, and a listing by line plus an index to all directors.

The editors of Fortune have collaborated to produce a volume called, "Markets of the Sixties." Each chapter deals with a different forecast: "How the U. S. Can Get Fifty Per cent Richer," "How American Taste Is Changing" and "The Decade of the Discretionary Dollar."

George S. Brady has edited for McGraw Hill Co. the eighth edition of the "The Materials Handbook." This covers metals, alloys, refractories, abrasives, woods and many others. Sources, substitutes, adulterants and uses for each are supplied.

"Advertising In America" is a debate handbook with the pro's and con's carefully evaluated. Herbert Prochnow of the National Bank of Chicago has just completed the first thorough study of "The Federal Reserve System." Nineteen prominent bankers and economists participated in this report which deserves the attention of those who work in occupations related to banking.

Several good escape packages are included in this week's new books. Allen Churchill, who wrote "The Improper Bohemians," writes of the Prohibition Era in "The Year the World Went Mad." U. S. Camera's 1960 yearbook is called "The Fifty Stars of the USA." Spectacular shots from Alaska and Hawaii compose most of the volume. An interesting inclusion is a series of Margaret Bourke White's war pictures.

Those who relish historical adventure should welcome John Edward Weems' "Race for the Pole" and Edward Ellsberg's "The Far Shore." In the first book all the drama and heartbreak of Peary's and Cook's battle to claim the North Pole back in 1909, provide the plot. The second volume concerns an American at D-Day in Normandy during World War II. Capt. Ellsberg was chief salvage officer for Eisenhower in this campaign.

"No Room In the Ark", by Alan Moorehead, was written after the author made four journeys in Africa. He reports that many of the primitive peoples are polite even though the men may wear nothing but feathers in their hair and the women are dressed in two bunches of leaves. A Chicago woman, Addie Clark Harding, writes of "Seaports and Seafaring People" in a beautifully illustrated travel guide.

Harry MacMahan claims to have produced more TV advertising than any other person in the industry. His book, "The Television Commercial," has just been revised. Paddy Chayefsky is certainly one of the great names in the creative phases of video. Six of his best "Television Plays," including the famous "Marty," have just been published in one volume.

Mrs. Margaret Duffy of R. D. 2 was treated yesterday afternoon for a laceration of the left palm suffered on a broken jar at home.

Harold Hochenberry, 30, of New Cumberland R. D. 2 was treated yesterday for a laceration of the right hand received on a broken bottle at home.

While at play at home, Shawn Cloran, 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cloran of Lisbon St. Ext., suffered a cut of the lip.

Also injured while at play was Joseph Mercer, 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Mercer, 1704 Alpha St., whose finger was accidentally struck by a neighborhood playmate, causing a laceration.

Virgil Heath, 36, of Newell was treated Saturday for lacerations of two fingers of the right hand received while at work on an auto.

Alberta Wyke, 210 Pennsylvania Ave., suffered a laceration of the thumb while opening a meat can at home Saturday.

Navy Investigates Ramming Of Escort By Swedish Vessel

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — The Navy today sought the reason for a baffling, clear-night collision in which a Swedish freighter rammed a destroyer escort and almost tore it in two.

Two reservist crewmen of the USS Darby died and another was seriously injured when the prow of the SS Soya-Atlantic knifed into the naval vessel Saturday at the mouth of Chesapeake Bay.

The weather was clear and the captain of the Darby reportedly was on the bridge at the time.

Lawyers for the Soya-Atlantic, which had been outbound for Venezuela, said the merchant ship came at the Darby from the starboard side, was showing her port light, and that the Darby's task was "to keep out of the way."

The Navy, however, detained the slightly damaged freighter until it can complete an inquiry by a special board that began after the Darby was towed into drydock before dawn Sunday.

Aboard the destroyer escort as she returned from a 16-day training cruise with 120-odd reservists were Rep. James E. Van Zandt (R-Pa), Assistant Navy Secretary Richard Jackson, and the commander of naval reserves, Rear Adm. Robert T. S. Keith.

The Soya-Atlantic, a 16-266-ton tanker and ore carrier, was empty except for 10,000 tons of water ballast in her oil tanks.

Chrysanthemums For Your Garden

(The following article was prepared by James L. Caldwell and D. C. Kiplinger of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry at Ohio State University.)

The chrysanthemum is one of the most colorful of all garden flowers. A wide selection of varieties is available in white, pink, yellow, lavender, bronze or red.

The plants can be grown rather easily and will provide long-lasting cut flowers for home decoration.

Chrysanthemums may be propagated in late April by division of the clumps. Yearly division prevents the shoots comprising the clump from becoming too crowded. Failure to divide the clumps will cause weak, spindly growth with few flowers.

Select strong-growing clumps and separate the individual shoots with an adequate root system, so the new small plant can become reestablished quickly. Avoid using the shoots in the center of the clump because a crown rot organism, which may weaken or kill the young plants, is often present.

CUTTINGS may be taken in April and May from plants heeled in a cold frame over winter. This is an excellent method of producing many plants of a desirable variety.

The cuttings should be four inches long. They may be rooted in coarse sand, a mixture of equal parts of sand and peat, Perlite, or a mixture of equal parts of Perlite and peat in a frame or greenhouse with bottom heat of 65 degrees. Rooting will require about three or four weeks. Treatment with growth substance will hasten the rooting process.

Seed of garden chrysanthemums do not develop true-to-type because of the hybrid nature of the parents; however, the seedlings provide interesting new types and colors because of this variation. Seed sown in March or April in cold frames will produce flowering plants in a single season.

Florists often grow flowering specimens of garden varieties for sale in spring. When there is one plant in a pot, it may be removed from the pot after the flowers have withered. Cut back the top, allowing several inches of stem and attached leaves to remain. Plant this in the garden and handle it the same as a division or rooted cutting. If pots contain two or more plants, separate and replant them to avoid overcrowding.

The soil for chrysanthemums should be well drained. The yearly addition of several inches of rotted manure, peat moss, leafmold, or other suitable organic matter is desirable. The plants should be set 18 to 24 inches apart to provide adequate space for development. Vigorous varieties may need a 30-inch distance to prevent crowding.

To produce compact, well-branched specimens, the plants must be pinched. This consists of breaking out or removing a small portion of the stem tip with its attached leaves.

Pinching should be started as soon as the stems are 3 to 4 inches long. When the new shoots attain this length they should be pinched again, and this practice should be continued until the middle of August. At that time the flower buds are forming on the earlier varieties; they may even be conspicuous. Plants not pinched or pinched only occasionally will be sprawly, which will detract from their beauty.

FREQUENT fertilization produces plants with thick stems and dark green foliage. This also increases the size and intensifies the color of the flowers. Any complete fertilizer, such as 4-12-4, 4-12-8 or 5-10-5, is satisfactory and should be applied at the rate of 3 to 4 pounds per 100 square feet.

Begin applications after the plants are established and continue them once each month. A convenient schedule is to fertilize and pinch plants the same day.

Thoroughly water the soil during periods of dry weather to keep the plants growing. Mulching to a depth of two inches with well-rotted manure, peat moss, ground corn cobs, sawdust, shredded bark or similar material prevents weed growth and keeps the soil surface from crusting. Watering is desirable after fertilization because plants cannot absorb dry fertilizer.

Plants may be grown in rows until early September, then lifted and planted in the flower border or other suitable location. Water such plants thoroughly to help establish a new root system. Plants handled in this way often winterkill because of failure to become well established.

There are a number of insects and allied pests and diseases which attack the chrysanthemum. Aphids or plant lice suck the juices of the young growth and cause malformation of the foliage. Grasshoppers chew the leaves and stems and leafrollers are small worms that feed on the underside of the foliage.

Mites are small pests that cannot be seen with the naked eye. They infect only the tips of the shoots and cause a curling and dwarfing of the foliage. They also stunt the growth of the plant.

The red spider or two - spotted mite is small but can be seen with the naked eye and is generally found on the underside of the foliage. This pest, which sucks the juices of the foliage, causes a light motting and devitalizes the plant.

Tarnished plant bugs sting the new growth, causing a branching of the stems, disfiguration of the flowers, or failure of the plant to flower.

Painting Tips Offered For 'Problem' Surfaces

There are a number of materials in every home which require a special, though simple, technique for a good paint job. Here is a guide on how to get satisfactory results on several of the most commonly used of these "problem" materials:

Asbestos cement — The problem here is the alkalinity of the surface. The solution is to use alkali-resistant paints. Any of the following will do the job: two coats of solvent-thinned rubber-based paint; two coats of exterior water-thinned latex paint; solvent - thinned rubber-based paint as a primer, followed by a top-coat of any desired exterior paint.

Hardboard — The problem here is uneven absorpotion and uneven gloss resulting from the lack of uniformity of the surface. The solution lies in proper sealing of the surface with latex paint, shellac, enamel undercoater or a primer-sealer.

Plywood — The problem here is that the grain pattern often shows through the top-coat. The solution consists in proper priming and sealing with two coats. Recommended are penetrating resin sealer, flat oil or alkyd paint, or enamel undercoater.

Exterior plywood— The problems are the same as for interior plywood, plus the danger of delamination of the plys from rain. The solution consists of sealing all edges as well as the surface to be-painted with a high grade exterior primer.

Aluminum — The problem is obtaining proper adherence. The solution consists in proper cleaning of the surface to remove loose oxide, dirt and grease and then applying a coat of zinc chromate primer. Finish with exterior enamel of desired color.

Galvanized steel — Again, the problem is proper adhesion. The solution consists of removing all dirt, oil grease and loose rust. Follow with zinc dust-zinc oxide paint as a prime coat. No need to wash new metal with acid.

Insulating siding—The problem is organic solvents used in conventional paints will cause the asphalt in the siding to bleed through and strain the paint brown. The solution is to use paints especially formulated for use on asphalt compositions or to use an exterior latex (water-thinned) paint. This can be followed with conventional house paint.

Subfloor Key To Sound Job

Even the most aristocratic tile design can be no better than its subfloor.

Installation of long wearing types of resilient flooring like rubber vinyl should be planned carefully as they can be counted on to keep their good looks for the life of the building with minimum maintenance.

If laid over a smooth subfloor, they will never buckle, curl or splinter.

Rough or uneven floors frequently can be made smooth by machine sanding. Small irregularities which sanding cannot remedy often can be corrected by use of patching materials.

When the subfloor is wood, it's very important to hammer down and countersink protruding nails with a nail punch.

Pay particular attention to patching cracks as well as holes. Plane or sand any joints that are rough or uneven. When in doubt, it's a wise long-term investment to lay a new subfloor of plywood or pressed board.

It is usually best to take up old flooring covering and molding entirely. Then clean the floor thoroughly. Make sure to remove all dirt, wax, old paints, grease, etc.

Most tiles are cemented down with fast-setting adhesives to obtain smooth floors. They should be rolled immediately before the adhesive sets. According to the Rubber and Vinyl Flooring Council, each three or four rows should be rolled as they are completed for best results.

Watch out particularly for joints of adjoining tile which are not even in the finished floor. High and low joints create dirt pockets which are particularly unattractive on light colored tile.

'Do-It-Yourself' Way Of Life Now Rather Than Fad

By The Associated Press

Remember, about 10 years ago, when nearly everybody was trying to guess how long the do-it-yourself "fad" would last?

In case you hadn't noticed, it's no longer a fad: it's an accepted part of the modern way of life. It is taken so much for granted that studies on the effect of the do-it-yourself movement are seldom heard of any more.

The truth is that more persons are doing-it-themselves these days than at any time in the past, even when the subect was being talked and written about a lot more.

Home owners are buying more lumber and other materials than they ever did. Books, magazines and newspaper articles featuring construction and repair projects are continuing to attract a large readership. And the sale of tools, especially those of the power variety, are at an all-time high.

It was thought for a time that the establishment of organizations specializing in home repairs might cut into the do-it-yourself field.

These groups enable a home owner to call a central point to get a repair job done rather than an individual plumber or electrician or carpenter. While these outfits appear to be doing well, there are no signs of any slackening in the sales if items used by the home owners who fix things themselves.

Among the most frequently mispronounced of ordinary words are: Again, toward, interesting, accept, address, automobile, forehead, research, column, leisure, mischievous, and stomach.

Care Advised In Selection Of Perennials

Perennials are the blooming plants that will last many, many years with proper care.

For this reason they are much more expensive than annuals and if planted by seed will take a longer time to raise.

Perennials are well worth their expense and care — but should be selected cautiously.

Make a planting plan. Measure so you do not overbuy. Consult nursery books and catalogues, talk to your local nurseryman — be sure you select the right plants for your particular soil and sunlight situation.

One wonderful way to get good perennials is to approach a "green thumb" expert of long standing. A true gardener loves to share his plants and flowers. Also, old perennials grow and flower better if they are divided occasionally.

In planning your perennial garden, be sure to take into consideration, the maximum height of the particular flower. Larger plants should be planted toward the back so all the blooms can be viewed with ease.

Remember too, perennials need plenty of room to grow, so leave room between clumps. Plant deeply and pat the earth hard around roots after setting in the ground. Do not plant near tree roots either, as the tree takes moisture and food away from them.

And, don't make up your mind quickly about perennials — plant annuals and take time to decide.

The right choice of perennials, planted wisely and given the necessary care will bring you years of pleasure and a bonus on your investment.

Rollers Are Available For Every Type Of Job

By The Associated Press

No matter what your painting job, there's a roller made for the purpose.

They come with a tiny surface for painting next to woodwork and for window frames. Others are wide enough to cover an entire wall in a couple dozen strokes.

There's also a variety in handles. Some are up to six feet long so you can paint the ceiling while standing on the floor.

Different types of finish are best applied with rollers meant for them. Your paint dealer is the best source of advice.

Chrysanthemums For Your Garden

(The following article was prepared by James L. Caldwell and D. C. Kiplinger of the Department of Horticulture and Forestry at Ohio State University.)

The chrysanthemum is one of the most colorful of all garden flowers. A wide selection of varieties is available in white, pink, yellow, lavender, bronze or red.

The plants can be grown rather easily and will provide long-lasting cut flowers for home decoration.

Chrysanthemums may be propagated in late April by division of the clumps. Yearly division prevents the shoots comprising the clump from becoming too crowded. Failure to divide the clumps will cause weak, spindly growth with few flowers.

Select strong-growing clumps and separate the individual shoots with an adequate root system, so the new small plant can become reestablished quickly. Avoid using the shoots in the center of the clump because a crown rot organism, which may weaken or kill the young plants, is often present.

CUTTINGS may be taken in April and May from plants heeled in a cold frame over winter. This is an excellent method of producing many plants of a desirable variety.

The cuttings should be four inches long. They may be rooted in coarse sand, a mixture of equal parts of sand and peat, Perlite, or a mixture of equal parts of Perlite and peat in a frame or greenhouse with bottom heat of 65 degrees. Rooting will require about three or four weeks. Treatment with growth substance will hasten the rooting process.

Seed of garden chrysanthemums do not develop true-to-type because of the hybrid nature of the parents; however, the seedlings provide interesting new types and colors because of this variation. Seed sown in March or April in cold frames will produce flowering plants in a single season.

Florists often grow flowering specimens of garden varieties for sale in spring. When there is one plant in a pot, it may be removed from the pot after the flowers have withered. Cut back the top, allowing several inches of stem and attached leaves to remain. Plant this in the garden and handle it the same as a division or rooted cutting. If pots contain two or more plants, separate and replant them to avoid overcrowding.

The soil for chrysanthemums should be well drained. The yearly addition of several inches of rotted manure, peat moss, leafmold, or other suitable organic matter is desirable. The plants should be set 18 to 24 inches apart to provide adequate space for development. Vigorous varieties may need a 30-inch distance to prevent crowding.

To produce compact, well-branched specimens, the plants must be pinched. This consists of breaking out or removing a small portion of the stem tip with its attached leaves.

Pinching should be started as soon as the stems are 3 to 4 inches long. When the new shoots attain this length they should be pinched again, and this practice should be continued until the middle of August. At that time the flower buds are forming on the earlier varieties; they may even be conspicuous. Plants not pinched or pinched only occasionally will be sprawly, which will detract from their beauty.

FREQUENT fertilization produces plants with thick stems and dark green foliage. This also increases the size and intensifies the color of the flowers. Any complete fertilizer, such as 4-12-4, 4-12-8 or 5-10-5, is satisfactory and should be applied at the rate of 3 to 4 pounds per 100 square feet.

Begin applications after the plants are established and continue them once each month. A convenient schedule is to fertilize and pinch plants the same day.

Thoroughly water the soil during periods of dry weather to keep the plants growing. Mulching to a depth of two inches with well-rotted manure, peat moss, ground corn cobs, sawdust, shredded bark or similar material prevents weed growth and keeps the soil surface from crusting. Watering is desirable after fertilization because plants cannot absorb dry fertilizer.

Plants may be grown in rows until early September, then lifted and planted in the flower border or other suitable location. Water such plants thoroughly to help establish a new root system. Plants handled in this way often winterkill because of failure to become well established.

There are a number of insects and allied pests and diseases which attack the chrysanthemum. Aphids or plant lice suck the juices of the young growth and cause malformation of the foliage. Grasshoppers chew the leaves and stems and leaffrollers are small worms that feed on the underside of the foliage.

Mites are small pests that cannot be seen with the naked eye. They infect only the tips of the shoots and cause a curling and dwarfing of the foliage. They also stunt the growth of the plant.

The red spider or two - spotted mite is small but can be seen with the naked eye and is generally found on the underside of the foliage. This pest, which sucks the juices of the foliage, causes a light motting and devitalizes the plant.

Tarnished plant bugs sting the new growth, causing a branching of the stems, disfiguration of the flowers, or failure of the plant to flower.

Here Are Tips On Good Gardening

(The following article is by E. C. Wittmeyer and E. L. Drollinger, specialists in vegetable crops with the Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State University.)

The first essential of a good garden is a good soil, loamy in texture, well drained and free from shade.

Sandy loam soils are considered ideal because they drain well and are easy to work. Very coarse sands are usually drouthy and it is difficult to maintain a high state of fertility. Very heavy soils are difficult to work and remain wet until late in the spring.

Many town and city gardens do not have the ideal soil. However, it is possible to grow a good garden on practically any soil type, providing it is well-drained and properly managed.

The garden should be close to the house, so odd moments may be used in growing and harvesting the crops. The availability of water is worth considering as irrigation will pay big dividends during dry weather.

—:—

WHEN THE garden is located in the best possible place it should be maintained in that location for an indefinite period. It is then possible to develop the soil to a high state of productivity by heavy fertilization and the addition of organic matter.

If enough land is available, the garden crops may be alternated between two plots. Soil improving crops can be grown in the alternate years for plowing under.

Soil fertility cannot be maintained where erosion is severe. Since gardens are cultivated intensively every year, there is little opportunity for protection against soil losses. If possible, avoid slopes where erosion will be a problem.

Good air drainage is a protection against frost and sometimes helps to reduce diseases.

Every garden should be "planted" on paper. The plan will insure the right amount of every desired vegetable. It also will save on the seed order. If space is limited, the most desired crops can be planned for, or if space is unlimited, the size of the garden determined. With the garden on paper, the variety wanted and the quantity of seed required can be listed. In that way, seed orders will be easy to make.

THE GARDEN plan will serve as a guide during the planting season. Early maturing crops should be planted adjacent to each other, so that a worthwhile area will become available for succession crop to follow. Row spacings and distances in the row should be included. Then, there will be no mistakes at planting time.

The crops to be grown should depend entirely upon the needs and tastes of the family. Vegetables the family will eat should be grown. If space is limited, crops which are most productive for the space available will be first choice.

Sweet corn and the vine crops for example, will require large amounts of space and to plant them in a very small garden would not be practical. They may be included, however, if the family demands them.

Perennial crops like asparagus and rhubarb should be planted along one side of the garden where they will not interfere with cultivation later on. These crops will remain in the garden for 4 or 5 to as long as 20 years.

Tall growing crops should be planted to one side of the garden where they will not shade smaller crops. Grouping together crops that mature early will also help in planning for later crops where more area may be needed. Allow ample space between rows for convenient cultivation.

Special plantings should be made to provide the necessary raw produce for home canning or freezing. To depend upon surpluses for preservation is unwise, since the amounts available may be so small they will hardly be worthwhile. By the time the vegetables become "surplus" their quality usually has deteriorated.

THE USE OF commercial fertilizer is essential to good yields and high quality. Although large and regular applications of manure or other organic materials are applied it is still desirable to supplement them with chemical fertilizers. Fertilizers may be applied in several different ways, depending on the amount to be applied, equipment available, and the soil type.

There are many different fertilizer analyses and brands available today. Gardners refer to fertilizer as 5-10-10, 4-16-8, 3-9-18 or other analyses. The first figure in the analysis always refers to the percentage of nitrogen in the fertilizer, the second refers to phosphorus as the percent of water soluble phosphoric acid equivalent, and the last refers to potassium as potash. A fertilizer like 10-10-10 is referred to as one high in nitrogen; one like 4-16-8 is high in phosphorus; while an analysis like 3-9-18 is high in potassium.

Generally, leafy crops such as spinach and lettuce need more nitrogen; root crops need more potassium and fruit crops respond to high phosphorus.

Row applications of fertilizer make the most efficient use of a small amount of fertilizer. These row applications must be made so the seed does not come in contact with the fertilizer.

The best method is to make a small furrow about 2 inches from each side of the row and 2 to 3 inches deep. The fertilizer is applied in the furrows using 1 to 2 pounds per 100 feet of row. The soil is then leveled off and a row is made midway between the strips of fertilizer.

Usually the home gardener will find it most practical and most satisfactory to purchase plants from a local plant grower. However, if it is desired to grow new or unusual varieties, or plants are not available, the growing of seedlings is necessary.

PLANTS MAY be grown in a hotbed or in a sunny window. Start the plants in a flat, if a hotbed is used, or in a box 4 to 6 inches deep for use in a window. The soil must be loose and friable for good results.

When a rich loamy soil is not available, a mixture of soil and compost or peat moss is recommended. If the soil is very heavy it will be improved by the addition of sand. After mixing, screen the soil through a ¼-inch mesh screen. Fill the box or flat and tamp.

Soil for plant growing should be sterilized to eliminate soil-borne diseases and to reduce the risk of damping off. The loss of seedlings by damping off may occur before plants emerge or afterwards. A practical method of soil sterilization is to mix formaldehyde dust with the soil. Instructions for preparing and using formaldehyde dust are available from county agricultural agents.

Sow the seed in rows 2 inches apart. Seed may be distrubuted in the row as close as 4 per inch, as the young plants should be transplanted as soon as the first true leaves are formed. Cover the seed lightly with soil or sand, and water with a fine spray. A burlap cover over the soil will help reduce drying out until plants are up. Remove burlap as soon as first plants emerge.

POWER PANEL. Among recent additions to kitchen engineering are appliance centers like this one, which provide electric "horsepower" where it's needed. A 220-volt, 3-wire cable brings power to the built-in unit, which can then provide full wattage to as many as five electric appliances at one time. It is equipped with three retractable cords, two convenience outlets and a timer.

Ceramic Tile Peps Up Room

That eyesore of a radiator top in your living room can be converted into the decorative focus of the whole room.

Surface the top with colorful ceramic tile, a time-tested covering material. Readily available in over 200 colors, a multitude of shapes, sizes, textures and patterns, ceramic tile is waterproof, scratchproof and one of the most durable of all surfacings.

The job can be done quickly and easily by using an adhesive. If it's necessary to cut glazed tile, use an ordinary glass cutter. Score the glazed surface along the line of cut and break the tile in two by placing its unglazed surface over a nail and pressing down.

Trim tiles should be used around the edges of the radiator top. These pieces have edges that slope down and are known as "surface bullnose" units. A "double surface bullnose" is made for corners.

Don't worry about spacing tiles. Modern U. S.-made ceramic tiles have spacing lugs on their sides that automatically do the job for you.

Make sure the surface to be tiled is clean and dry. Butter the tiles individually with a thin layer of adhesive. Press the tiles firmly into place.

Wait a day before the next step. Then mix grout with water to the consistency of heavy cream. Grout is the fine, white portland cement used for filling in tile joints. Like the adhesive aind tiles, it can be purchased from your local building supply outlet.

The grout can be forced into the tile joints with a sponge or squeegee. Once the joints are thoroughly filled, wipe away excess with a damp cloth or sponge and polish with a dry towel.

For complete curing, the tile joints should be kept moist for about three days with wet newspapers.

Bound To Grand Jury

CINCINNATI (AP)—Willie Lee Griffin, 31, has waived examination on a charge of second-degree manslaughter in the traffic death of Reuben B. Robertson, 51, Hamilton industrialist. Judge Clarence Denning bound him to the grand jury Friday in $3,500 bond. Robertson was struck and killed by Griffin's car here early Sunday morning.

Here Are Tips On Good Gardening

(The following article is by E. C. Wittmeyer and E. L. Dreilinger, specialists in vegetable crops with the Agricultural Extension Service at Ohio State University.)

The first essential of a good garden is a good soil, loamy in texture, well drained and free from shade.

Sandy loam soiis are considered ideal because they drain well and are easy to work. Very coarse sands are usually drouthy and it is difficult to maintain a high state of fertility. Very heavy soils are difficult to work and remain wet until late in the spring.

Many town and city gardens do not have the ideal soil. However, it is possible to grow a good garden on practically any soil type, providing it is well-drained and properly managed.

The garden should be close to the house, so odd moments may be used in growing and harvesting the crops. The availability of water is worth considering as irrigation will pay big dividends during dry weather.

—:—

WHEN THE garden is located in the best possible place it should be maintained in that location for an indefinite period. It is then possible to develop the soil to a high state of productivity by heavy fertilization and the addition of organic matter.

If enough land is available, the garden crops may be alternated between two plots. Soil improving crops can be grown in the alternate years for plowing under.

Soil fertility cannot be maintained where erosion is severe. Since gardens are cultivated intensively every year, there is little opportunity for protection against soil losses. If possible, avoid slopes where erosion will be a problem.

Good air drainage is a protection against frost and sometimes helps to reduce diseases.

Every garden should be "planted" on paper. The plan will insure the right amount of every desired vegetable. It also will save on the seed order. If space is limited, the most desired crops can be planned for, or if space is unlimited, the size of the garden determined. With the garden on paper, the variety wanted and the quantity of seed required can be listed. In that way, seed orders will be easy to make.

THE GARDEN plan will serve as a guide during the planting season. Early maturing crops should be planted adjacent to each other, so that a worthwhile area will become available for succession crop to follow. Row spacings and distances in the row should be included. Then, there will be no mistakes at planting time.

The crops to be grown should depend entirely upon the needs and tastes of the family. Vegetables the family will eat should be grown. If space is limited, crops which are most productive for the space available will be first choice.

Sweet corn and the vine crops for example, will require large amounts of space and to plant them in a very small garden would not be practical. They may be included, however, if the family demands them.

Perennial crops like asparagus and rhubarb should be planted along one side of the garden where they will not interfere with cultivation later on. These crops will remain in the garden for 4 or 5 to as long as 20 years.

Tall growing crops should be planted to one side of the garden where they will not shade smaller crops. Grouping together crops that mature early will also help in planning for later crops where more area may be needed. Allow ample space between rows for convenient cultivation.

Special plantings should be made to provide the necessary raw produce for home canning or freezing. To depend upon surpluses for preservation is unwise, since the amounts available may be so small they will hardly be worthwhile. By the time the vegetables become "surplus" their quality usually has deteriorated.

THE USE OF commercial fertilizer is essential to good yields and high quality. Although large and regular applications of manure or other organic materials are applied it is still desirable to supplement them with chemical fertilizers. Fertilizers may be applied in several different ways, depending on the amount to be applied, equipment available, and the soil type.

There are many different fertilizer analyses and brands available today. Gardners refer to fertilizer as 5-10-10, 4-16-8, 3-9-18 or other analyses. The first figure in the analysis always refers to the percentage of nitrogen in the fertilizer, the second refers to phosphorus as the percent of water soluble phosphoric acid equivalent, and the last refers to potassium as potash. A fertilizer like 10-10-10 is referred to as one high in nitrogen; one like 4-16-8 is high in phosphorus; while an analysis like 3-9-18 is high in potassium.

Generally, leafy crops such as spinach and lettuce need more nitrogen; root crops need more potassium and fruit crops respond to high phosphorus.

Row applications of fertilizer make the most efficient use of a small amount of fertilizer. These row applications must be made so the seed does not come in contact with the fertilizer.

The best method is to make a small furrow about 2 inches from each side of the row and 2 to 3 inches deep. The fertilizer is applied in the furrows using 1 to 2 pounds per 100 feet of row. The soil is then leveled off and a row is made midway between the strips of fertilizer.

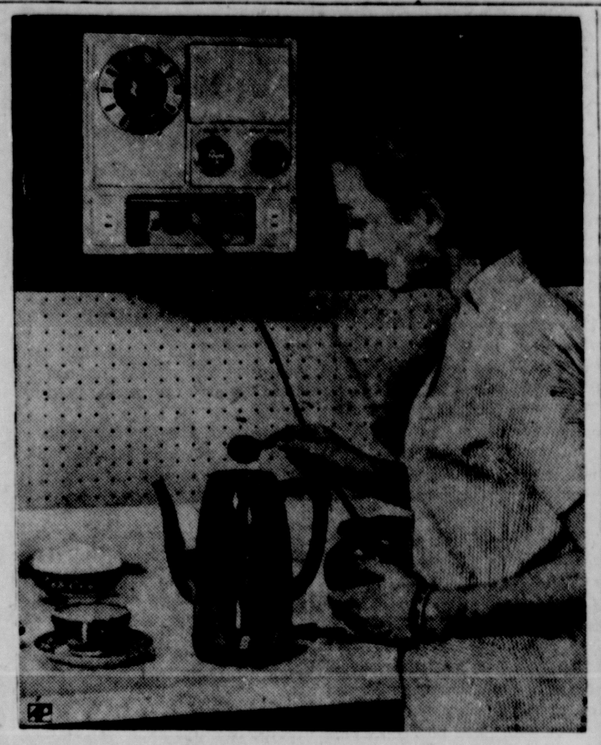
Usually the home gardener will find it most practical and most satisfactory to purchase plants from a local plant grower. However, if it is desired to grow new or unusual varieties, or plants are not available, the growing of seedlings is necessary.

PLANTS MAY be grown in a hotbed or in a sunny window. Start the plants in a flat, if a hotbed is used, or in a box 4 to 6 inches deep for use in a window. The soil must be loose and friable for good results.

When a rich loamy soil is not available, a mixture of soil and compost or peat moss is recommended. If the soil is very heavy it will be improved by the addition of sand. After mixing, screen the soil through a ¼-inch mesh screen. Fill the box or flat and tamp.

Soil for plant growing should be sterilized to eliminate soil-borne diseases and to reduce the risk of damping off. The loss of seedlings by damping off may occur before plants emerge or afterwards. A practical method of soil sterilization is to mix formaldehyde dust with the soil. Instructions for preparing and using formaldehyde dust are available from county agricultural agents.

Sow the seed in rows 2 inches apart. Seed may be distrubuted in the row as close as 4 per inch, as the young plants should be transplanted as soon as the first true leaves are formed. Cover the seed lightly with soil or sand, and water with a fine spray. A burlap cover over the soil will help reduce drying out until plants are up. Remove burlap as soon as first plants emerge.



POWER PANEL. Among recent additions to kitchen engineering are appliance centers like this one, which provide electric "horsepower" where it's needed. A 220-volt, 3-wire cable brings power to the built-in unit, which can then provide full wattage to as many as five electric appliances at one time. It is equipped with three retractable cords, two convenience outlets and a timer.

Ceramic Tile Peps Up Room

That eyesore of a radiator top in your living room can be converted into the decorative focus of the whole room.

Surface the top with colorful ceramic tile, a time-tested covering material. Readily available in over 200 colors, a multitude of shapes, sizes, textures and patterns, ceramic tile is waterproof, scratchproof and one of the most durable of all surfacings.

The job can be done quickly and easily by using an adhesive. If it's necessary to cut glazed tile, use an ordinary glass cutter. Score the glazed surface along the line of cut and break the tile in two by placing its unglazed surface over a nail and pressing down.

Trim tiles should be used around the edges of the radiator top. These pieces have edges that slope down and are known as "surface bullnose" units. A "double surface bullnose" is made for corners.

Don't worry about spacing tiles. Modern U. S.-made ceramic tiles have spacing lugs on their sides that automatically do the job for you.

Make sure the surface to be tiled is clean and dry. Butter the tiles individually with a thin layer of adhesive. Press the tiles firmly into place.

Wait a day before the next step. Then mix grout with water to the consistency of heavy cream. Grout is the fine, white portland cement used for filling in tile joints. Like the adhesive aind tiles, it can be purchased from your local building supply outlet.

The grout can be forced into the tile joints with a sponge or squeegee. Once the joints are thoroughly filled, wipe away excess with a damp cloth or sponge and polish with a dry towel.

For complete curing, the tile joints should be kept moist for about three days with wet newspapers.

Family Personality Seen Vital In Choosing House

By NORA GAUHN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Do a bit of self study before you buy a place to live. Then pass on what you find to home builders.

That's the way to get houses more satisfying to the public, a Cornell University research study states.

Interviews with 2,732 urban and rural families were directed by Prof. Glenn H. Beyer of the New York State College of Home Economics at Cornell.

Beyer based his questions on how great a value people placed on such things as freedom, privacy, economy and family health in relation to housing.

"Unfortunately," he says, "many families do not know themselves well enough to select the kind of home in which they will be most content.

"On the other hand, a family may know exactly what it wants in housing but not be able to find it."

—:—

HE FOUND that virtually all homemakers — nearly 90 per cent — agreed they want a house where family members can spend their time together.

They were less willing to concede, however, that the house should have a location which would make it easy for relatives to visit.

Three-fourths of the families agreed it was important to have a house where children's needs could be considered before others. But once the bird leaves the nest, it can stay away — only 12 per cent wanted a house big enough for married children to move in.

In general, Beyer found two natural groupings of householders: the first group was the practical type, realistic and extroverted; the other was individualistic and idealistic, with a desire to indulge in luxuries.

The first group, Beyer says, "are apt to place relatively little emphasis on privacy, especially when privacy can be achieved only at the expense of other family members."

FOR INSTANCE, they would want separate bedrooms primarily for the good of the child; the second group would want such privacy "to keep the child out of the parents' hair."

Persons placing a high value on freedom, prestige and leisure might want a home that will appeal to their sense of beauty rather than one with maximum comforts and convenience.

"Yet such persons may occasionally sacrifice what the other group would consider basic necessities to indulge in luxuries."

City dwellers consider the location of a house more important than do rural residents.

And urban home owners are more highly motivated by social consciousness — they are more likely to respond to the social pressures of keeping up with the Joneses.

The prestige group, Beyer comments, "was least concerned with leaving the car out all night. A possible explanation may be that the car is one of the most common status symbols and a symbol has little value, obviously, unless it is displayed."

The study found that persons basing their house choice mainly on cost gave the least attention to architectural planning features.

They were less concerned with having to walk in the rain from car to house, hearing kitchen noises in the living room, and sharing rooms with other family members.

"Spare rooms and special features are likely to be looked upon very coldly by this group as being unnecessary and too expensive," Beyer says.

Beyer says his findings indicate that learning not just what people want in a house but their underlying reasons "may lead to new solutions that more nearly fit people's requirements for shelter."

Proper Insulation For Home Seen 'Blue Chip' Investment

By The Associated Press

Wall Street investors can't match the cash dividends many home owners collect each year.

These cash dividends are paid to home owners on improvements that make a home easier and more comfortable to live in and less expensive to maintain.

One of the leading "blue-chip" investments in home improvement is insulation. This investment often pays a yearly cash return of more than 15 per cent.

Here's how this investment plan works:

Suppose a new home has about 1,500 square feet of living space and a home owner decides to save money by skipping insulation.

In a central climate zone it will cost about $150 to heat the uninsulated house during the five-month heating season — more in colder areas.

On the other hand, if thick mineral wool is installed during the construction—at least 4 inches in the ceiling and 3 inches in walls—it would cost about $350, based on average national prices.

The $350 investment in insulation would cut the heating bill from $150 to about $90—an annual dividend of $60, or 17 per cent.

Besides increasing the value of the home by at least $350, the home owner continues to collect the cash dividend of $60 a year in heat savings as long as he lives in the house.

An extra dividend is the fact that thick insulation provides more comfort in winter by helping to keep room temperatures even and stop cold drafts. In summer, it helps keep heat oustide.

Owners of existing homes can take advantage of this same investment by having mineral wool blown into walls and ceilings by a professional insulation contractor.

California has more motor vehicles than any other state or any foreign country in the world.

Construction Plans Offered For Barbecue

By The Associated Press

Even a beginner at do-it-yourself projects can produce a good looking barbecue if he follows the timeless injunction: Plan Ahead.

If your home has a stone exterior wall or a stone chimney, you might consider choosing a matching or complementary type of stone for your barbecue. Construction with brick, of course, would follow the same general rules.

Pick your location facing away from the direction of prevailing summer winds and near enough to your kitchen to minimize transportation time.

The next step is to choose your grill equipment. Size of top opening in your barbecue will be determined by the grill and the grate size. Height of cooking surface should be 24 to 30 inches. Floor of firebox should be 6 to 9 inches below the grille for charcoal fuel and 9 to 12 inches for wood fuel.

—:—

FOR MOST normal size barbecues a reinforced concrete slab foundation about 6 inches in depth makes a satisfactory base.

In areas where frost occurs, the bottom of the slab should be below the frost line. The outside dimensions of the slab should be about 6 inches greater all around than the outside of the barbecue. Beauty will be enhanced if the slab surface is slightly below the ground line.

Lay out the boundaries of the foundation with stakes and string and excavate to the required depth. Build a level wood form and brace the outside with stakes so it will resist the pressure of the fluid concrete.

When you have poured concrete to the top of the form, skim it level with the edge of a straight board. Smooth the surface with a flat wooden trowel known as a "float." (You can make a float by attaching a door pull to a 10" piece of 1x6.)

After the slab has set for two days, you may begin the stone work. Brick or ashlar stonework (cut stones laid in courses like brick) should be used.

Attempting to build with natural odd-shaped stones is very tricky and often results in a "monsterpiece" when attempted by the novice.

INDIVIDUAL stones should be laid as they would naturally on the ground and not on end or in unnatural positions. Stones of the same size or shape should not be set side-by-side. A strong wall requires "bonding," the overlapping of two stones by another, and occasional "headers," which is running a stone crosswise in the wall.

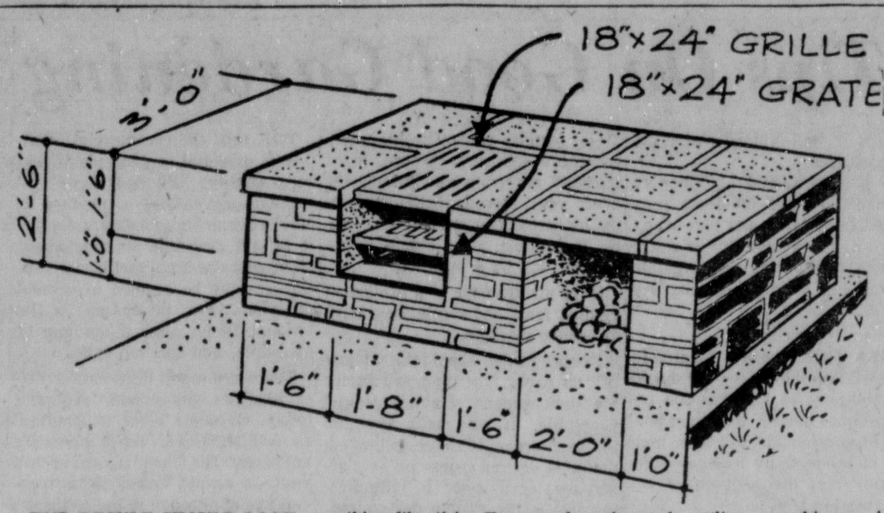
Ask your stone dealer to estimate the amount of mortar you will need. The following mortar mix is recommended for stonework: 1 part cement, 3 parts clean sand, ½ part fireclay.

String guide lines and keep the face of the wall flush by selected stones and setting them so they do not project beyond the face of the wall.

Make the joints as thin as possible and fill completely with mortar. Insert small chips of stone in all empty spaces between the stones in the interior of the wall and fill with mortar.

After you have laid several stones, smooth out the joints on the facing before the mortar sets by using a stick with a dull point. Thoroughly brush off all excess mortar.

Barbecue equipment such as metal grate slides, cleanout and draft doors should be placed in position and the stone laid around them. Do not try to put them in after the barbecue is finished.



END RESULT SHOULD LOOK something like this. For popular charcoal grilling, no chimney is necessary. Wide, low lines yield modern look necessary with most new homes.

Buyer Should Beware When House Shopping

By The Associated Press

Buying an old house is a lot like buying a used car.

In each case the rule is "Let the Buyer Beware."

When shopping for a used car, a lot of people betray their ignorance by delivering a swift kick to each tire. There's no scientific logic in this test for roadbility, but it's one of the most commonly applied.

Just as tire-kicking sheds no light on car values, wall-rapping yields little knowledge about a house up for sale. A lot of sins can be covered with wallpaper, and wall-rapping is not the best way to find them.

If you don't know how to tell a sound home from one past the point of economical repair, it's a good idea to take along someone who does.

A contractor or architect can check into construction details the layman may not be familiar with. The security they can supply is well worth the fee.

Tax Report Given

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Auditor James A. Rhodes reports that Ohioans paid $195,157,408 in tangible personal property taxes last year compared with $183,392,366 in 1958. They paid $31,749,735 in intangible personal property taxes last year, compared with $31,509,194 the year before.

In a central climate zone it will cost about $150 to heat the uninsulated house during the five-month heating season — more in colder areas.

On the other hand, if thick mineral wool is installed during the construction—at least 4 inches in the ceiling and 3 inches in walls—it would cost about $350, based on average national prices.

The $350 investment in insulation would cut the heating bill from $150 to about $90—an annual dividend of $60, or 17 per cent.

Besides increasing the value of the home by at least $350, the home owner continues to collect the cash dividend of $60 a year in heat savings as long as he lives in the house.

An extra dividend is the fact that thick insulation provides more comfort in winter by helping to keep room temperatures even and stop cold drafts. In summer, it helps keep heat oustide.

Owners of existing homes can take advantage of this same investment by having mineral wool blown into walls and ceilings by a professional insulation contractor.

Construction Plans Offered For Barbecue

By The Associated Press

Even a beginner at do-it-yourself projects can produce a good looking barbecue if he follows the timeless injunction: Plan Ahead.

If your home has a stone exterior wall or a stone chimney, you might consider choosing a matching or complementary type of stone for your barbecue. Construction with brick, of course, would follow the same general rules.

Pick your location facing away from the direction of prevailing summer winds and near enough to your kitchen to minimize transportation time.

The next step is to choose your grill equipment. Size of top opening in your barbecue will be determined by the grill and the grate size. Height of cooking surface should be 24 to 30 inches. Floor of firebox should be 6 to 9 inches below the grille for charcoal fuel and 9 to 12 inches for wood fuel.

—:—

FOR MOST normal size barbecues a reinforced concrete slab foundation about 6 inches in depth makes a satisfactory base.

In areas where frost occurs, the bottom of the slab should be below the frost line. The outside dimensions of the slab should be about 6 inches greater all around than the outside of the barbecue. Beauty will be enhanced if the slab surface is slightly below the ground line.

Lay out the boundaries of the foundation with stakes and string and excavate to the required depth. Build a level wood form and brace the outside with stakes so it will resist the pressure of the fluid concrete.

When you have poured concrete to the top of the form, skim it level with the edge of a straight board. Smooth the surface with a flat wooden trowel known as a "float." (You can make a float by attaching a door pull to a 10" piece of 1x6.)

After the slab has set for two days, you may begin the stone work. Brick or ashlar stonework (cut stones laid in courses like brick) should be used.

Attempting to build with natural odd-shaped stones is very tricky and often results in a "monsterpiece" when attempted by the novice.

INDIVIDUAL stones should be laid as they would naturally on the ground and not on end or in unnatural positions. Stones of the same size or shape should not be set side-by-side. A strong wall requires "bonding," the overlapping of two stones by another, and occasional "headers," which is running a stone crosswise in the wall.

Ask your stone dealer to estimate the amount of mortar you will need. The following mortar mix is recommended for stonework: 1 part cement, 3 parts clean sand, ½ part fireclay.

String guide lines and keep the face of the wall flush by selected stones and setting them so they do not project beyond the face of the wall.

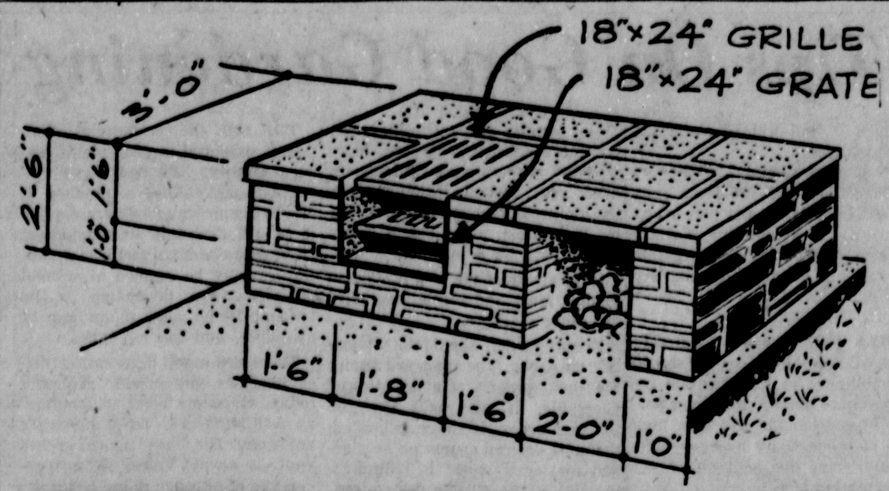
Make the joints as thin as possible and fill completely with mortar. Insert small chips of stone in all empty spaces between the stones in the interior of the wall and fill with mortar.

After you have laid several stones, smooth out the joints on the facing before the mortar sets by using a stick with a dull point. Thoroughly brush off all excess mortar.

Barbecue equipment such as metal grate slides, cleanout and draft doors should be placed in position and the stone laid around them. Do not try to put them in after the barbecue is finished.

Tax Report Given

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—State Auditor James A. Rhodes reports that Ohioans paid $195,157,408 in tangible personal property taxes last year compared with $183,392,386 in 1958. They paid $31,749,736 in intangible personal property taxes last year, compared with $31,509,194 the year before.



END RESULT SHOULD LOOK something like this. For popular charcoal grilling, no chimney is necessary. Wide, low lines yield modern look necessary with most new homes.

Eyes 'Political' Bottle

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Liquor Department is studying the possibility of selling whisky packaged in bottles shaped like the Democratic donkey or Republican elephant. The department is trying to decide if any trouble might result from accepting the idea of the Kentucky distillery which is marketing the product.

Buyer Should Beware When House Shopping

By The Associated Press

Buying an old house is a lot like buying a used car.

In each case the rule is "Let the Buyer Beware."

When shopping for a used car, a lot of people betray their ignorance by delivering a swift kick to each tire. There's no scientific logic in this test for roadbility, but it's one of the most commonly applied.

Just as tire-kicking sheds no light on car values, wall-rapping yields little knowledge about a house up for sale. A lot of sins can be covered with wallpaper, and wall-rapping is not the best way to find them.

If you don't know how to tell a sound home from one past the point of economical repair, it's a good idea to take along someone who does.

A contractor or architect can check into construction details the layman may not be familiar with. The security they can supply is well worth the fee.

Basement Shelter Could Save Life

By JOHN SCAMEHORN

BATTLE CREEK, Mich. (AP)—A basement shelter can save your life—and an atomic attack isn't necessary to make it pay off.

Naturally, it's the safest place to be in case of enemy attack. But it's also handy in case of tornados or extreme storms.

Of the various types of shelters—basement, above ground, and underground—the basement type is easiest to build and is primarily designed for the do-it-yourself fan.

A fallout shelter needs thickness to keep out deadly radio-activity, not just strength to hold it together.

The Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization in Battle Creek says that eight inches of concrete is sufficient shielding, the equivalent of 12 inches of earth or 30 inches of wood.

—:—

THE SHELTER should have 10 square feet of floor space for each person who will be using it.

It should provide for the needs of a family for two weeks, and must have ample room for storage, movement and sleeping.

A typical basement shelter, recommended by the OCDM, and adequate for a family of six, is just over 7 x 8 feet and can be built of timber and solid concrete block for material cost of from $150 to $200, according to the government agency. Blocks are 4 x 8 x 16 inches and wood ranges from 1" shealthing to 4 x 4 posts and 2 x 6 joists.

The roof, with timber support, is covered with two layers of blocks. A baffle-type entrance provides access and vent holes low in the wall provide fresh air. Bricks may be used for this type shelter, but should be 10" thick for the same protection as 8" concrete blocks.

—:—

ITEMS TO remember in planning a shelter, as recommended by OCDM, include:

1.—The entrance should have at least one right-angle turn, as most radiation goes in straight lines, an little will bounce around the corner.

2.—The open entrance and wall vents will provide ventilation in the recommended basement shelter, and may be augmented by a blower or vent pipes.

3.—A radio is necesary to receive instructions, but the shelter mass may cut down reception. A reception check should be made after the shelter is built, and an outside antenna installed if necessary.

4.—Provision must be made for non-commercial electricity. Batteries and unshielded flashlight bulbs will provide "night-light" illumination, with flashlights or lanterns for more light. An electric outlet should be built in, as commercial power may still be available after a tornado or attack.

5.—Windows should be shielded with concrete for radiation protection if they're in the shelter. Other windows should be blocked off to prevent shattered glass in the basement.

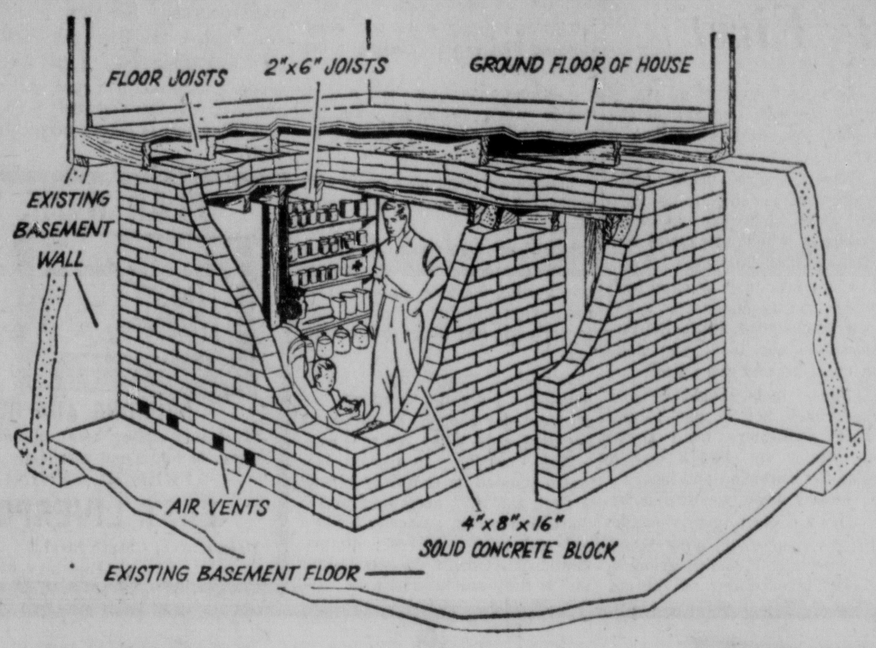
—:—

SHELTER contents should include bunks, a two-week supply of food (canned) and a two-week supply of water (minimum seven gallons per person). Any necessary special foods, utensils, cooking equipment, matches, paper plates, napkins and cups also should be included.

Sanitary facilities also are necessary—a 20-gallon garbage can, a 10-gallon can for human waste, chlorine and DDT as disinfectants.

A battery radio, lighting equipment, clothing, bedding, reading and writing material, toys and games for youngsters and adults alike, hand tools, and first aid materials and instruction books, all are necessary. Home fire-fighting and rescue equipment should be kept within easy reach outside the shelter.

Detailed plans for several types of shelters with varying costs, as well as information on stocking shelters and other civil defense information, are contained in the "Family Fallout Shelter" booklet, available form local or state Civil Defense officials or from the Office of Civil and Defense Mobilization, Battle Creek, Mich.



RECOMMENDED RETREAT. This drawing shows design for a shelter adequate for six persons. More construction details are available free from local or state Civil Defense officials or from the Office of Civil Defense Mobilization, Battle Creek, Mich.

Annuals Offer Quick Way To Garden Color

Is your home lacking in the proper landscaping?

Well, it needn't have a bleak appearance much longer — thanks to annual flowers.

Annuals are not a substitute for trees, hedges and permanent blooms — they are temporary color display plants.

Annuals have a brief life. Seed is sown in the spring after the soil has warmed up. Flowers appear from late June until frost.

Some of the choice annuals for this purpose are petunias, zinnias, marigolds, sweet alyssum, cornflower, cleome, salpiglossis, scabiosa, and nicotiana.

Annuals may be gown most any place on treeless property — they do need about five hours of sun a day or more.

For a temporary screening, where hedges are lacking, try castor bean or moonflowers.

Even after finishing your landscaping, through the years you will find a need for annuals to fill in plants that drop by the wayside or to fill in holes where a shrub decided not to grow. You'll enjoy them as the variety that adds spice to gardens.

Corn—4,036,000 acres this year, or 101 per cent of last year.

Oats—1,097,000, or 92 per cent.

Soybeans—1,609,000, or 108 per cent.

Sugar beets—24,000, or 104 per cent.

Tobacco—13,400, or 102 per cent.

Potatoes (late summer and fall crops)—19,000, or 97 per cent.

Backyard Pools Enjoy Popularity

CHICAGO (AP) — Whether for swimming or as a showy symbol of status, backyard pools are enjoying a wave of popularity.

Some 41,000 installations will be made in 1960, according to the National Swimming Pool Institute.

The institute is sponsored by producers of swimming pool equipment.

Whether you contract or attempt to build it yourself, a swimming pool is quite a special project.

You can install a pool for the price of an automobile up to the cost of a home. You can use a pre-fabricated unit with vinyl liner and walls of chemically - treated douglas fir. You can dig a hole and line it with bricks cemented in place.

—:—

YOU CAN use reinforced concrete or utilize the new technique of firing fiberglass from a gun to seal up the walls of the pool.

However you build, you'll need a ladder, filter unit, diving board, water skimmer to clean the surface of the water of debris, underwater light as accessories to dress up the lovely hole in the ground.

If you are one of the residents who will live in the proposed skyscraper and commercial - apartment building of the Building Service Employes International to be erected along the Chicago River in downtown Chicago, you can forget the whole thing.

It will have a swimming pool in a three - acre roof-deck park.

Then, too, if you happen to be an employe of the firm near Bensenville, Ill., you needn't bother with a pool at home.

The president of the firm installed a huge swimming pool at his plant to provide fun for employes and families evenings and weekends. Home pool projects are meeting resistance by some city authorities. They are encouraging legislation to set stringent health, water and construction requirements.

For example, specifications for residential pools in Chicago are the same as for commercial pools of heavy usage.

PASSED TWO years ago, the Chicago ordinance requires a six-hour turnover of water, a larger than average building lot and limits the number of people who may use the pool.

To build to Chicago requirements costs from $10,000 to $12,000.

Dade County, Fla., also controls the building of swimming pools. So far it is only the second spot in the nation where swimming pool building is under a permit system, with erection confined to only cinder block or concrete types.

Haledon, N. J., also is considering an ordinace controlling swimming pools. It says the borough is not obliged to furnish water for a pool and no one shall connect a pool to the town's water supply without a written permit.

It also will require a four-foot fence around the pool.

CULTIVATING between rows of flowers or vegetables, which can be one of the most difficult garden chores, is effortless with this newest model garden tiller.

Vermont was the first state to give every man a vote, regardless of race, color, creed or circumstance.

Real Home Handyman Plays It 'Safety First'

An amazing transformation sometimes takes place in many men when they swing into action in a home workshop.

Careful, methodical types suddenly throw caution and intelligence to the wind. They feed work into power saws, grinding machines and lathes with the abandon of a maniac. As a result home handymen contribute their full share to the four million home accidents which occur every year.

A committee sponsored by a large drug firm recently compiled a series of safety hints after a survey of common accidents that originate with the home handyman. Here they are:

1.—First of all, get organized. Have all your material close at hand so you don't have to step over obstacles to get to items you'll need.

2.—Don't look away when you're using equipment; one slip of the saw and you may be minus a finger.

3.—When you're using tools, try to avoid uncomfortable positions. Don't take an awkward stance from which you could easily be thrown off balance.

4.—Use power tools or hand tools only for the functions for which they were designed. Know the limitations of your tools and don't push them beyond those limits.

5.—Power tools should be padlocked when not in use to discourage youngsters from trying them. Better yet, find a way to enclose the workshop and keep the door locked when you are away.

6.—Don't neglect to use goggles if there's danger of flying splinters, especially if you're grinding.

7.—Don't reach toward the cutting edges of a machine until the power switch has been turned off and the blades have stopped moving.

8.—Don't wear a tie or other clothing that can get caught in the machinery.

9.—Don't overreach; use a step-ladder when necessary, but be sure to have someone standing by if you're climbing high.

10.—Never stand on a chair with rollers; it can slip out from under you.

11.—Vary your task. A professional carpenter will cut lumber for awhile, turn to nailing, then measuring and then return to sawing. This is less tiring and cramping.

12. Don't work until you're overtired. Tiredness increases your chances of having an accident. Quit while you're ahead.

"No workshop, no matter how well equipped, is complete without a first aid kit," according to Dr. John Henderson, authority on first aid and safety. "Even with precautions accidents do occur. Having a first aid kit close at hand will lessen possible serious after-effects."

No first aid kit is worth its salt unless you know the basic principles of first aid. Most kits sold nowadays come with a first aid booklet enclosed. Make sure you're familiar with its contents. The time to do this is before accidents occur.

Easy-To-Handle Pipe Eases Plumber's Task

Plagued by rusty, leaking or stopped-up water supply? One of the standard do-it-yourself chores in an old house is replacing rusted pipes with new material, assuming, of course, that the house is in an area where the plumbing code permits the home owner to perform such work.

It's a big job, but it's nothing to be afraid of. If you start out on a branch line which can be shut down without depriving the whole house of water, you will be able to get in some practice before causing any real disruption to the household.

After this first experience, you should be able to judge whether you have sufficient skill to tackle bigger parts of the system.

The common rustproof water carriers are brass pipe and copper tubing. Brass pipe has to be threaded and for most amateur plumbers is harder to handle than copper.

Major virtues of copper are its easy cutting and simple connections. It comes as both a rigid tube and in a flexible form that permits bending around corners.

This last feature makes flexible tube the usual choice for runs through existing walls. Flare fittings are used on flexible tubing.

For open runs — as in lines running across basement ceilings — hard-drawn rigid tubing with solder fittings ordinarily is used.

Six steps are needed for a good solder joint:

1. — Measure length of tube needed, cut off square at each end with a hacksaw or tube cutter, and ream out burrs and metal slivers.

2. — Clean the end of the tube and the fitting socket with steel wool or sandpaper. For sound joints, this step should not be omitted.

3. — Apply a good paste flux to the cleaned surfaces.

4. — Assemble tube and fitting, making sure the tube seats firmly in the socket of the fitting.

5. — Apply heat with blowtorch and solder. Heat from the torch is applied only to the fitting. The flame is kept in motion to apply heat evenly. When the metal is hot enough to melt solder, the flame is moved away and the tip of the solder is touched to the joint. If the joint is hot enough, the solder will melt and be suucked into the joint by capillary attraction.

If the solder doesn't melt on contact, more heat should be applied. The flame should never be played on the solder itself. If a joint has been overheated and the flux has charred, the solder will not enter the joint. In this case the joint must be opened, re-cleaned and re-fluxed before attempting to solder again.

6. — After soldiering, surplus solder and flux are removed readily with a rag or brush while the joint is still hot.

Backyard Pools Enjoy Popularity

CHICAGO (AP) — Whether for swimming or as a showy symbol of status, backyard pools are enjoying a wave of popularity.

Some 41,000 installations will be made in 1960, according to the National Swimming Pool Institute.

The institute is sponsored by producers of swimming pool equipment.

Whether you contract or attempt to build it yourself, a swimming pool is quite a special project.

You can install a pool for the price of an automobile up to the cost of a home. You can use a pre-fabricated unit with vinyl liner and walls of chemically - treated douglas fir. You can dig a hole and line it with bricks cemented in place.

—:—

YOU CAN use reinforced concrete or utilize the new technique of firing fiberglass from a gun to seal up the walls of the pool.

However you build, you'll need a ladder, filter unit, diving board, water skimmer to clean the surface of the water of debris, underwater light as accessories to dress up the lovely hole in the ground.

If you are one of the residents who will live in the proposed skyscraper and commercial - apartment building of the Building Service Employes International to be erected along the Chicago River in downtown Chicago, you can forget the whole thing.

It will have a swimming pool in a three - acre roof-deck park.

Then, too, if you happen to be an employe of the firm near Bensenville, Ill., you needn't bother with a pool at home.

The president of the firm installed a huge swimming pool at his plant to provide fun for employes and families evenings and weekends. Home pool projects are meeting resistance by some city authorities. They are encouraging legislation to set stringent health, water and construction requirements.

For example, specifications for residential pools in Chicago are the same as for commercial pools of heavy usage.

PASSED TWO years ago, the Chicago ordinance requires a six-hour turnover of water, a larger than average building lot and limits the number of people who may use the pool.

To build to Chicago requirements costs from $10,000 to $12,000.

Dade County, Fla., also controls the building of swimming pools. So far it is only the second spot in the nation where swimming pool building is under a permit system, with erection confined to only cinder block or concrete types.

Haledon, N. J., also is considering an ordinace controlling swimming pools. It says the borough is not obliged to furnish water for a pool and no one shall connect a pool to the town's water supply without a written permit.

It also will require a four-foot fence around the pool.

CULTIVATING between rows of flowers or vegetables, which can be one of the most difficult garden chores, is effortless with this newest model garden tiller.

Vermont was the first state to give every man a vote, regardless of race, color, creed or circumstance.

Real Home Handyman Plays It 'Safety First'

An amazing transformation sometimes takes place in many men when they swing into action in a home workshop.

Careful, methodical types suddenly throw caution and intelligence to the wind. They feed work into power saws, grinding machines and lathes with the abandon of a maniac. As a result, home handymen contribute their full share to the four million home accidents which occur every year.

A committee sponsored by a large drug firm recently compiled a series of safety hints after a survey of common accidents that originate with the home handyman. Here they are:

1.—First of all, get organized. Have all your material close at hand so you don't have to step over obstacles to get to items you'll need.

2.—Don't look away when you're using equipment; one slip of the saw and you may be minus a finger.

3.—When you're using tools, try to avoid uncomfortable positions. Don't take an awkward stance from which you could easily be thrown off balance.

4.—Use power tools or hand tools only for the functions for which they were designed. Know the limitations of your tools and don't push them beyond those limits.

5.—Power tools should be padlocked when not in use to discourage youngsters from trying them. Better yet, find a way to enclose the workshop and keep the door locked when you are away.

6.—Don't neglect to use goggles if there's danger of flying splinters, especially if you're grinding.

7.—Don't reach toward the cutting edges of a machine until the power switch has been turned off and the blades have stopped moving.

8.—Don't wear a tie or other clothing that can get caught in the machinery.

9.—Don't overreach; use a step-ladder when necessary, but be sure to have someone standing by if you're climbing high.

10.—Never stand on a chair with rollers; it can slip out from under you.

11.—Vary your task. A professional carpenter will cut lumber for awhile, turn to nailing, then measuring and then return to sawing. This is less tiring and cramping.

12. Don't work until you're overtired. Tiredness increases your chances of having an accident. Quit while you're ahead.

"No workshop, no matter how well equipped, is complete without a first aid kit," according to Dr. John Henderson, authority on first aid and safety. "Even with precautions accidents do occur. Having a first aid kit close at hand will lessen possible serious after-effects."

No first aid kit is worth its salt unless you know the basic principles of first aid. Most kits sold nowadays come with a first aid booklet enclosed. Make sure you're familiar with its contents. The time to do this is before accidents occur.

How To Set Up A Sprinkler System

By The Associated Press

One of the most irksome chores facing the home owner and one of the common faults of lawns can be eliminated in one step with the installation of an automatic sprinkler system for the front and back yards.

Once seen almost exclusively in the most expensive lawns, sprinkler systems have been put within reach of more people through the development of plastic pipe and easy "do-it-yourself" installations.

Most home-owners recognize the importance of water for healthy lawns.

If you have a reasonably good soil to start with, consistent watering is the most important factor that determines the kind of growth you will achieve.

An underground irrigating system makes it possible to water the lawn evenly, and to a degree that can be carefully predetermined in advance.

The plastic pipe is available in either rigid or flexible types. Your local plumber or building supply dealer can suggest which will be best suited to your purposes.

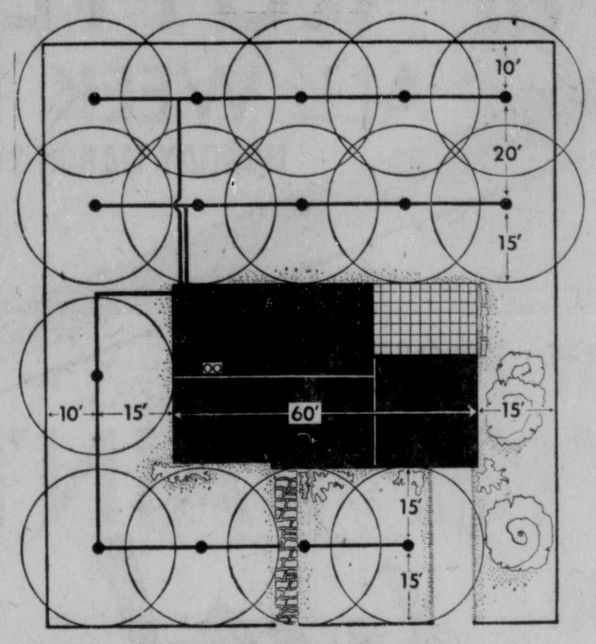
THE FIRST step in building a sprinkler system is to measure the dimensions of the lawn to be watered, and to determine how far each sprinkler nozzle will throw its spray.

This depends on the particular kind of nozzle and the water pressure at the outlet. Once these factors have been determined, you can tell how many sprinkler heads will be needed to cover the entire area.

The plastic pipe, which carries water to the sprinklers, is easy to install. You need a trench, about 10 inches wide and 10 inches deep, from the existing water outlet inside or outside the house to all the sprinklers in the system.



TYPICAL LAYOUT. Diagram shows a standard pattern for sprinkler heads and pipe runs. Each sprinkler covers circle with radius of 15 feet. Each circle overlaps neighbor by 5 feet.

The pipe itself is easy to cut—either a sharp knife or hacksaw will do the job. Pipe sections can be permanently joined with inserts and clamps for the flexible type or threaded and unthreaded fittings which are cemented permanently to rigid type pipe.

Sprinkler heads for this system are designed to be connected to fittings which rise to the surface from the trench where the pipe is laid. Sprinklers are designed to throw water either in circular or rectangular patterns.

ONLY A few simple precautions will protect the pipe and insure permanent service. Long runs of pipe should not be laid in a straight line, but in a series of slight angles if the rigid kind is used, or in gentle curves if the flexible type is installed.

Pipe laid this way will be able to move slightly when water flows through it or when the ground thaws after a winter freeze. Also be sure to make provision for draining or blowing the pipe dry in winter.

Plastic pipe should not be laid against sharp stones or other materails that might wear against it over the years.

Just make sure that soil immediately surrounding it is soft and free of stones. Flexible pipe can be bent around big stones, roots or other obstacles.

Because plastic pipe can be laid so quickly, a home handyman of average competence probably could install a sprinkler system for his front lawn in a day's time.

The pipe can be connected either to an outlet by the outside wall of the house or to the main water supply line inside. If a direct hookup is made to the house supply line, your local code may require you to install a check valve device — a gadget which prevents water from backing up from the sprinkler system into the domestic supply line.

WITH YOUR system installed, it is fairly easy to determine how long you should allow the sprinklers to work at any given time.

A common rule of thumb in northern states is that one inch of water per week will keep grass well-nourished and looking its best. Simply take an open pan to any part of your lawn, turn on the valve, and clock the time required to bring the water level in the pan up to the one inch mark.

If your system has been properly balanced, the time you have clocked will be all that is needed to do a satisfactory watering job over all areas of the lawn in the future.

To make things even simpler, easy-to-install timer systems are available.

You just set the timer for as long as you need to provide the necessary soaking and your job for the week is done. At the specified time, the main valve will shut off automatically.

Steelmakers Seen Waiting To Hike Price

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steelmakers probably will wait until December to make across-the-board price increases, says the magazine Steel.

New fringe benefits for production workers are raising costs already, Steel noted, but the magazine doubted the industry would try to make general price boosts in the next few months.

"It would be hard to justify an increase in the wake of record first quarter profits," it said. "Chances are there will be no across-the-board price moves until December. At that time, steelmakers can: 1. Point to comparatively poor third quarter results. 2. Cite higher wage costs, effective Dec. 1. If there are any increases in the next few months, they'll probably be selective, with some coming in the form of higher extras."

Steel production was off two points last week to 91.9 per cent of rated capacity.

The magazine's composite price on the premium grade of heavy melting scrap dropped to $34 a ton, down 33 cents. That was the lowest level since last May, and steel commented that it remains to be seen whether scrap prices have hit the bottom.

Current problems of the steel industry, as described by the trade publication, includes these: The effect of bad weather on products used in the construction industry and in oil country drilling. Stiff competition for business in various metals and hard goods lines. Slowness in getting large pipeline projects approved by the federal power commission.

Steel said, "The stock market decline seems to have shaken confidence in the economy a little."

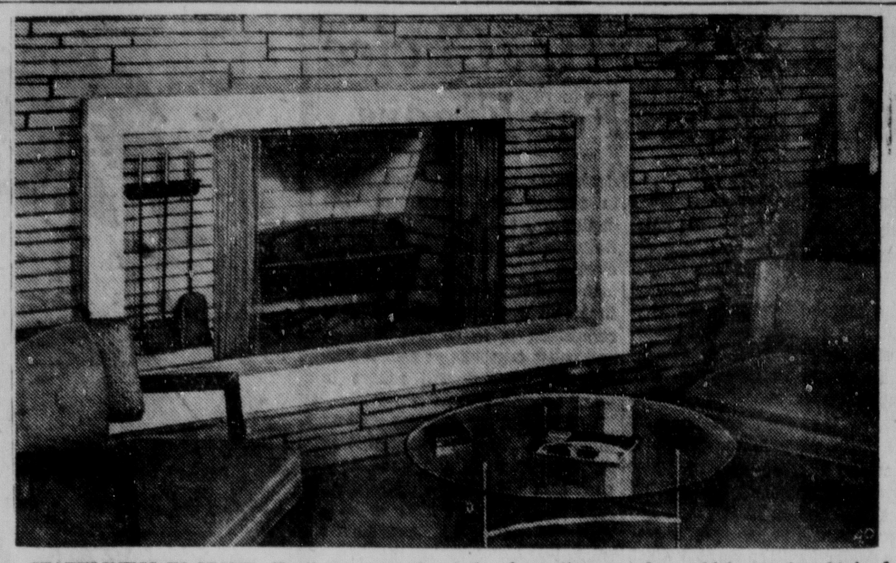
Man Finds Plaything In Coats Of Arms

GLEN RIDGE, N. J. (AP)—Henry M. Rose II, a plant engineer, has found a good plaything in status symbols. His hobby is designing unofficial coats of arms for anyone who wants to order them.

Rose's heraldry shows major aspects in a person's life, either serious or humorous. His hobby started as a joke a few years ago. Then orders began pouring in from everywhere.

He squeezes 30 or 40 items relating to a person's life into each coat of arms. The finishing touch is a "garbled Latin" motto beneath the crest—such as a phony Latin translation of "Ask Dad a Question and You Get a 45-Minute Lecture."

Slips from your vines or bushy-type plants will root easily. Roots form in soil, but vermiculite or sand is better. Cut 5 inches from your old plant, slightly below a leaf. Cut off lower leaves. Cover 2 inches of stem. Cover with a glass drinking glass to hasten rooting.



STATELINESS IN STONE. Here's an example of the decorating grandeur which can be obtained with stone. Fireplace border is a grey-toned marble, the background is quartzite.

Harder Than It Looks

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — The rodeo cowboys make bull riding appear fairly easy. That was the excuse J. L. Grooms, 20, gave at a hospital where he was recovering from injuries inflicted by an uncooperative bull at his parents' farm.

Faulty Soil, Bad Cutting Add Up To Poor Lawns

(The following article was prepared by the agricultural extension service at Ohio State University.)

There are two basic reasons for poor lawns — poor soils and destructive cutting treatments.

Given proper cutting on good soil, bluegrass is nearly indestructible by anything short of continued tramping. Removing bluegrass growing where you don't want it is a real problem.

Subsoil taken from the basement, often with inclusions of plaster, cement, lumber and other debris is a poor soil for a lawn.

Every house - building contract should provide that all topsoil is to be piled separately for the final grading, and for debris to be removed—not buried on the site.

For most of us, the problem will be using the soil we have. Soils are generally poor because of lack of plant food, which is easily cured by fertilizer, and poor physical make-up of the soil, which is a much more serious matter.

OHIO SUBSOILS in general and soils of the average graded lawn contain a high proportion of clay. They dry into hard crusts. They are sticky and impervious when wet, slow to absorb water when dry, and furnish little water to plants. Drouth quickly affects plants growing on clay soils.

Lawns can be grown on clay, even subsoil clay; but they will be less vigorous and satisfactory and will require more skill and more work than lawns on soils of good physical make-up. Even on good soils a lawn requires work and care. You can't sit back and expect a perfect lawn to appear.

We have the soils. What can we do about them?

1. Buy Topsoil?—This is expensive and much so-called topsoil is not materially better than the soil we have. If you buy topsoil, insist on good loamy texture or don't buy it. It need not be black.

How much topsoil is needed? The more the better — from 3 to 4 up to 6 or 8 inches.

2. Add Sand?—Frequently recommended, this addition is of little value, unless enough is applied to make up 50 to 80 percent of the resulting soil. "Clay on sand is money in the hand; sand on clay is money thrown away." Did you ever mix concrete? In adding sand to a clay soil, the clay takes the place of the cement in the concrete —and the result is similar! Sifted coal ashes are much more effective than sand, bulk for bulk. Even so, at least a 2-inch layer of coal ashes should be mixed with top 6 inches of soil.

3. ADD ORGANIC Matter? — This is the one real remedy for heavy soils. The difficulty lies in doing it. Manure is out of the question except on the farm, where lawn soils are generally best. Compost is entirely practical and could be used. But, if you have a compost pile, you are probably a gardener and will use all of the compost on the garden instead of the lawn.

In starting a new lawn, peat added to heavy basement soil will improve its physical make-up greatly, if enough peat is used. Get fibrous peat (ground, baled sphagnum peat is best), not muck containing a considerable amount of clay. Mix the peat with the upper 3 or 4 inches of soil, or with less soil if only a small amount of peat is used. At least a 1-inch layer of peat or compost should be applied.

4. Grow Green Manure Crops?—Sometimes recommended, a green manure crop usually takes too long for the results obtained, unless the area is not yet actually a lawn.

The best way to build up the organic matter content of poor soils is to grow grass. A good way to a better lawn is to grow as good a lawn as possible. If this "best" is poor enough to need tearing up and reseeding later, keep the surface layer at the surface! Do not work over 3 inches deep.

5. Improve Drainage? — Good surface drainage, so that water does not stand on the lawn, is essential. Plenty of organic matter and large amount of sand or coal ashes will improve the underdrainage, that is, the speed with which water moves through the soil. Tile under-drainage is desirable; but its effect is slow, if the tile is covered by basement soils. Considering the difficulty of obtaining outlets for tile,

How To Set Up A Sprinkler System

By The Associated Press

One of the most irksome chores facing the home owner and one of the common faults of lawns can be eliminated in one step with the installation of an automatic sprinkler system for the front and back yards.

Once seen almost exclusively in the most expensive lawns, sprinkler systems have been put within reach of more people through the development of plastic pipe and easy "do-it-yourself" installations.

Most home-owners recognize the importance of water for healthy lawns.

If you have a reasonably good soil to start with, consistent watering is the most important factor that determines the kind of growth you will achieve.

An underground irrigating system makes it possible to water the lawn evenly, and to a degree that can be carefully predetermined in advance.

The plastic pipe is available in either rigid or flexible types. Your local plumber or building supply dealer can suggest which will be best suited to your purposes.

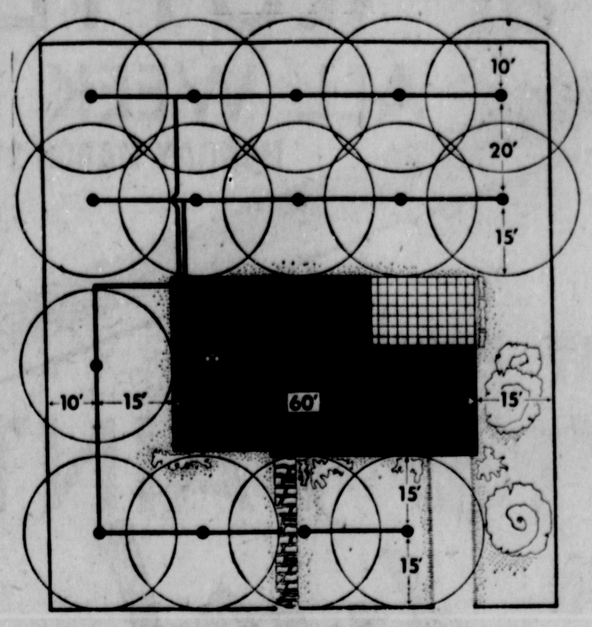
THE FIRST step in building a sprinkler system is to measure the dimensions of the lawn to be watered, and to determine how far each sprinkler nozzle will throw its spray.

This depends on the particular kind of nozzle and the water pressure at the outlet. Once these factors have been determined, you can tell how many sprinkler heads will be needed to cover the entire area.

The plastic pipe, which carries water to the sprinklers, is easy to install. You need a trench, about 10 inches wide and 10 inches deep, from the existing water outlet inside or outside the house to all the sprinklers in the system.



TYPICAL LAYOUT. Diagram shows a standard pattern for sprinkler heads and pipe runs. Each sprinkler covers circle with radius of 15 feet. Each circle overlaps neighbor by 5 feet.

The pipe itself is easy to cut—either a sharp knife or hacksaw will do the job. Pipe sections can be permanently joined with inserts and clamps for the flexible type or threaded and unthreaded fittings which are cemented permanently to rigid type pipe.

Sprinkler heads for this system are designed to be connected to fittings which rise to the surface from the trench where the pipe is laid. Sprinklers are designed to throw water either in circular or rectangular patterns.

ONLY A few simple precautions will protect the pipe and insure permanent service. Long runs of pipe should not be laid in a straight line, but in a series of slight angles if the rigid kind is used, or in gentle curves if the flexible type is installed.

Pipe laid this way will be able to move slightly when water flows through it or when the ground thaws after a winter freeze. Also be sure to make provision for draining or blowing the pipe dry in winter.

Plastic pipe should not be laid against sharp stones or other materails that might wear against it over the years.

Just make sure that soil immediately surrounding it is soft and free of stones. Flexible pipe can be bent around big stones, roots or other obstacles.

Because plastic pipe can be laid so quickly, a home handyman of average competence probably could install a sprinkler system for his front lawn in a day's time.

The pipe can be connected either to an outlet by the outside wall of the house or to the main water supply line inside. If a direct hookup is made to the house supply line, your local code may require you to install a check valve device — a gadget which prevents water from backing up from the sprinkler system into the domestic supply line.

WITH YOUR system installed, it is fairly easy to determine how long you should allow the sprinklers to work at any given time.

A common rule of thumb in northern states is that one inch of water per week will keep grass well-nourished and looking its best. Simply take an open pan to any part of your lawn, turn on the valve, and clock the time required to bring the water level in the pan up to the one inch mark.

If your system has been properly balanced, the time you have clocked will be all that is needed to do a satisfactory watering job over all areas of the lawn in the future.

To make things even simpler, easy-to-install timer systems are available.

You just set the timer for as long as you need to provide the necessary soaking and your job for the week is done. At the specified time, the main valve will shut off automatically.

Faulty Soil, Bad Cutting Add Up To Poor Lawns

(The following article was prepared by the agricultural extension service at Ohio State University.)

There are two basic reasons for poor lawns — poor soils and destructive cutting treatments.

Given proper cutting on good soil, bluegrass is nearly indestructible by anything short of continued tramping. Removing bluegrass growing where you don't want it is a real problem.

Subsoil taken from the basement, often with inclusions of plaster, cement, lumber and other debris is a poor soil for a lawn.

Every house - building contract should provide that all topsoil is to be piled separately for the final grading, and for debris to be removed—not buried on the site.

For most of us, the problem will be using the soil we have. Soils are generally poor because of lack of plant food, which is easily cured by fertilizer, and poor physical make-up of the soil, which is a much more serious matter.

OHIO SUBSOILS in general and soils of the average graded lawn contain a high proportion of clay. They dry into hard crusts. They are sticky and impervious when wet, slow to absorb water when dry, and furnish little water to plants. Drouth quickly affects plants growing on clay soils.

Lawns can be grown on clay, even subsoil clay; but they will be less vigorous and satisfactory and will require more skill and more work than lawns on soils of good physical make-up. Even on good soils a lawn requires work and care. You can't sit back and expect a perfect lawn to appear.

We have the soils. What can we do about them?

1. Buy Topsoil?—This is expensive and much so-called topsoil is not materially better than the soil we have. If you buy topsoil, insist on good loamy texture or don't buy it. It need not be black.

How much topsoil is needed? The more the better — from 3 to 4 up to 6 or 8 inches.

2. Add Sand?—Frequently recommended, this addition is of little value, unless enough is applied to make up 50 to 80 percent of the resulting soil. "Clay on sand is money in the hand; sand on clay is money thrown away." Did you ever mix concrete? In adding sand to a clay soil, the clay takes the place of the cement in the concrete —and the result is similar! Sifted coal ashes are much more effective than sand, bulk for bulk. Even so, at least a 2-inch layer of coal ashes should be mixed with top 6 inches of soil.

3. ADD ORGANIC Matter? — This is the one real remedy for heavy soils. The difficulty lies in doing it. Manure is out of the question except on the farm, where lawn soils are generally best. Compost is entirely practical and could be used. But, if you have a compost pile, you are probably a gardener and will use all of the compost on the garden instead of the lawn.

In starting a new lawn, peat added to heavy basement soil will improve its physical make-up greatly, if enough peat is used. Get fibrous peat (ground, baled sphagnum peat is best), not muck, containing a considerable amount of clay. Mix the peat with the upper 3 or 4 inches of soil, or with less soil if only a small amount of peat is used. At least a 1-inch layer of peat or compost should be applied.

4. Grow Green Manure Crops?—Sometimes recommended, a green manure crop usually takes too long for the results obtained, unless the area is not yet actually a lawn.

The best way to build up the organic matter content of poor soils is to grow grass. A good way to a better lawn is to grow as good a lawn as possible. If this "best" is poor enough to need tearing up and reseeding later, keep the surface layer at the surface! Do not work over 3 inches deep.

5. Improve Drainage? — Good surface drainage, so that water does not stand on the lawn, is essential. Plenty of organic matter and large amount of sand or coal ashes will improve the underdrainage, that is, the speed with which water moves through the soil. Tile under-drainage is desirable; but its effect is slow, if the tile is covered by basement soils. Considering the difficulty of obtaining outlets for tile,

Steelmakers Seen Waiting To Hike Price

CLEVELAND (AP) — Steelmakers probably will wait until December to make across-the-board price increases, says the magazine Steel.

New fringe benefits for production workers are raising costs already, Steel noted, but the magazine doubted the industry would try to make general price boosts in the next few months.

"It would be hard to justify an increase in the wake of record first quarter profits," it said. "Chances are there will be no across-the-board price moves until December. At that time, steelmakers can: 1. Point to comparatively poor third quarter results. 2. Cite higher wage costs, effective Dec. 1. If there are any increases in the next few months, they'll probably be selective, with some coming in the form of higher extras."

Steel production was off two points last week to 91.9 per cent of rated capacity.

The magazine's composite price on the premium grade of heavy melting scrap dropped to $34 a ton, down 33 cents. That was the lowest level since last May, and steel commented that it remains to be seen whether scrap prices have hit the bottom.

Current problems of the steel industry, as described by the trade publication, includes these: The effect of bad weather on products used in the construction industry and in oil country drilling. Stiff competition for business in various metals and hard goods lines. Slowness in getting large pipeline projects approved by the federal power commission.

Steel said, "The stock market decline seems to have shaken confidence in the economy a little."

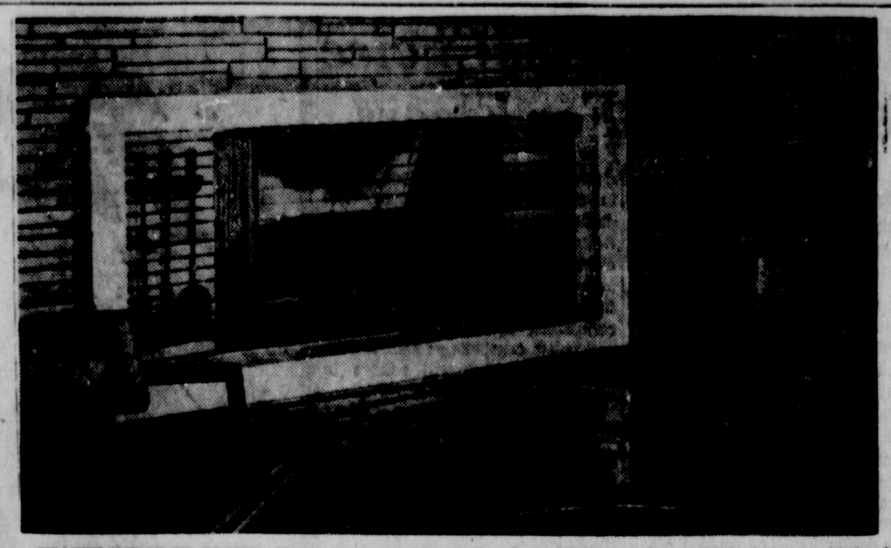
Man Finds Plaything In Coats Of Arms

GLEN RIDGE, N. J. (AP)—Henry M. Rose II, a plant engineer, has found a good plaything in status symbols. His hobby is designing unofficial coats of arms for anyone who wants to order them.

Rose's heraldry shows major aspects in a person's life, either serious or humorous. His hobby started as a joke a few years ago. Then orders began pouring in from everywhere.

He squeezes 30 or 40 items relating to a person's life into each coat of arms. The finishing touch is a "garbled Latin" motto beneath the crest—such as a phony Latin translation of "Ask Dad a Question and You Get a 45-Minute Lecture."

Slips from your vines or bushy-type plants will root easily. Roots form in soil, but vermiculite or sand is better. Cut 5 inches from your old plant, slightly below a leaf. Cut off lower leaves. Cover 2 inches of stem. Cover with a glass drinking glass to hasten rooting.



STATELINESS IN STONE. Here's an example of the decorating grandeur which can be obtained with stone. Fireplace border is a grey-toned marble, the background is quartzite.

Harder Than It Looks

CHICKASHA, Okla. (AP) — The rodeo cowboys make bull riding appear fairly easy. That was the excuse J. L. Grooms, 20, gave at a hospital where he was recovering from injuries inflicted by an uncooperative bull at his parents' farm.

Householder Has Choice Of Finishes For Floors

By The Associated Press

Sometimes the way to obtain a lovely floor is not by putting down a new covering, but exposing the old.

The householder has a choice of a number of different finishes to beautify and protect his floors—clear varnish, varnish stain, penetrating sealer and floor enamel.

Where the wood has a beautiful grain pattern, the choice is generally a clear varnish which gives a richer appearance, higher gloss and deeper luster than any other finish. But be sure to ask your dealer for floor varnish which is formulated to withstand abrasion.

Many people prefer a penetrating sealer which penetrates into the wood and seals the fibers into a solid mass. Since this is not a surface finish, it wears only as the wood itself wears.

Scratches and dents don't show. But this finish can be applied only to bare wood or to floors on which it has been previously used. Varnish must be removed completely before a penetrating sealer is applied.

If the color of the floor is not quite what you want, it is possible to stain the bare wood to the desired shade and then varnish over it. A simpler method is to use a varnish stain which combines a stain with a varnish and can be used over old varnish, saving the trouble of sanding.

On any refinishing job, if the old varnish is badly worn and scratched, the best thing to do is to remove it entirely with a a sanding machine that can be rented either from many paint dealers or companies specializing in renting such equipment. The dealer will tell you how to use it. Be sure to follow his directions closely.

If sanding is not required, the first and most important step in refinishing is to remove all wax and polish completely: neither varnish nor enamel will adhere to these substances.

Use turpentine, odorless paint thinner, naphtha or special wax removers, blotting up the dissolved wax with old rags and changing rags frequently. Be sure to have plenty of ventilation. And don't smoke!

After wax has been removed, get rid of any ingrained dirt from bare spots with steel wool and then touch up these spots with varnish. After the touch-up work has dried, apply one or two coats to the entire floor. Work toward a door and you won't paint yourself into a corner.

Varnish should not be stirred or shaken because this causes air bubbles which will give an uneven surface. Varnish — and enamel—should not be brushed out like paint.

The correct method is to load the brush generously and then flow the varnish or enamel with grain of the wood.

Then stroke across the grain. Finally, using a nearly dry brush, go lightly with the grain, using long strokes to pick up any surplus.

Varnish should be applied only when the humidity is low, the temperature between 60 and 80 degrees, and with adequate ventilation. The room should be as dust-free as possible.

Proper Type Of Paint Ends Basement Gloom

Free alkali and moisture, both of which are often present in basement walls, will usually attack ordinary paint.

Fortunately, the paint industry has developed alkali-resistant paints to meet these two problems.

The first step is to prepare the surface properly by removing dirt and dust as well as crumbly material by vigorous brushing or scrubbing with plain water.

Grease and oil are wiped away with an odorless solvent. Cracks and holes should be filled with special products made for this purpose and sold by paint dealers. Where there is very severe chalking, special hardeners should be used.

Where the walls are generally dry, the home owner has a choice of solvent-thinned masonry paints and increasingly popular latex paints.

These dry in an hour or less and are odorless. Portland cement paint, manufactured by several companies, is always highly recommended.

Latex and portland cement paints are the best bet where walls are damp. When the dampness is likely to be permanent, the one safe paint is portland cement paint, since moisture improves its cure.

When basement walls are made of porous concrete block, a special type of heavy-bodied portland cement paint is recommended. This is known as the aggregate type.

For the floor, a basement decorator has the choice of either traditional solvent-thinned floor enamels or the newer water-thinned floor paints.

Don't use portland cement paint on floors. Where the floor (or walls) have been given a particularly smooth finish, it is sometimes necessary to etch them with diluted muriatic acid both to roughen the surface and to get rid of excess alkalinity. Check with your paint dealer on this.

Incidentally, a floor that is always damp, should not be painted at all.

Here's How To Figure Area Of Peaked Roof

Problem: How to measure the area of a peaked roof in order to get an accurate estimate from several roofers on the cost of a new roof, without climbing it.

Solution: Measure the square footage of the attic floor or roof deck and add 50 per cent to this total. An attic floor measuring 1,600 square feet means the roof area totals about 2,400 square feet.

Roofers figure their costs on the basis of so much per "square," which is 100 square feet. To determine the number of roofing squares needed, divide the roof area by 100 — in this case, the answer is 24.

Accidents caused 91,000 deaths in the U.S. in 1958. Motor vehicle deaths took the greatest toll — 37,000.

FINISHED TERRACE adds a new dimension to outdoor living. Pleasing pattern was not the result of chance, but of careful planning which started before stone was ordered.

Easily-Installed Tiling Hides Cracks In Ceiling

Few signs of old age can give a house a dilapidated look as quickly as plaster cracks in the ceiling.

And the sad fact is that ceilings often crack long before the rest of the house is in need of major repairs.

There's an easy way to end ceiling woes while at the same time increasing the attractiveness and livability of the room.

Perforated insulating ceiling tiles designed to cut down noise and provide a decorative surface at the same time will do the trick in any room of the house.

According to Sheldon Cady of Allied Chemical's Barrett Division, these tiles will absorb 30 to 40 per cent of the noise that would rebound from an ordinary ceiling.

An indication of the popularity of ceiling tiles is the prediction from housing specialists that by 1965 there will be a 400 per cent increase in the use of acoustic tiles in the construction of new homes.

Available at lumber dealers, insulating tiles have interlocking tongue-and-groove edges to make application quick and easy.

There are two ways to apply insulating tile to ceilings or walls—directly to the existing surface with cement, or by first nailing wood furring strips and then stapling the tile to these. It's always a good idea to make a scale plan of your ceiling before you start.

Ideally, you should start at the center of the ceiling and work out from that point. This will make your tile come out exactly equal on all four sides of the room. For attaching the tiles to furring strips, the only tool you need is a stapling gun which you can buy or rent from lumber dealers.

Unexpected Discount Received On Laundry

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jane Da Silva, a Marquette Universiity graduate student from Bombay, India, received an unexpected discount when she called for her laundry at a dry cleaning establishment.

Miss Da Silva wears the traditional sari of her country and she had taken two of her native costumes to be cleaned. She received this bill:

"Two tablecloths at 50 cents each; no napkins, less 6 cents each; total 88 cents."

Plant 'Re-Potting' Hints Are Offered

When an indoor plant's foliage begins to turn yellow — particularly when it previously has been healthy, growing in the same environment — it may need to be shifted to a larger pot.

If possible, do your re-potting in the spring — the time most plants are most actively growing. With this vigor, they can recover more easily from the shock of being re-potted.

Clay pots are best for growing house plants. They admit moisture and the vital aeration, through their porous walls.

Soak a pot 24 hours before you use it so that it won't harmfully absorb moisture from the soil around the plant's roots.

Give the soil mix just enough moisture to make it barely hold together when you try to ball it in your fist. This prevents soil packing too firmly in the pot.

Water when the potting operation is completed to settle the soil and to insure that the soil particles will be in close contact with the roots.

Finally, set the re-potted specimens in a shady place for a couple of days to prevent loss of moisture. That's all there is to re-potting your house plants.

FINISHED TERRACE adds a new dimension to outdoor living. Pleasing pattern was not the result of chance, but of careful planning which started before stone was ordered.

Easily-Installed Tiling Hides Cracks In Ceiling

Few signs of old age can give a house a dilapidated look as quickly as plaster cracks in the ceiling.

And the sad fact is that ceilings often crack long before the rest of the house is in need of major repairs.

There's an easy way to end ceiling woes while at the same time increasing the attractiveness and livability of the room.

Perforated insulating ceiling tiles designed to cut down noise and provide a decorative surface at the same time will do the trick in any room of the house.

Strawberries Well Suited For The Home Garden

(The following article is by Robert G. Hill Jr. and Vernon Patterson of the Agricultural Extension Service of Ohio State University.)

Of all the fruit crops, strawberries are the best suited for the home garden. When properly managed, the plants will produce large yields of high quality berries in a limited amount of space.

Unlike many other fruit crops, strawberries do not require the grower to follow a complicated spray program. Those pesticides that may be needed can be applied with simple inexpensive equipment.

As with any gardening venture, a grower's success with strawberries depends upon careful attention to the cultural details. He may expect nearly a full quart of berries from each plant in the home garden, if he cares for it properly.

STRAWBERRIES, in addition to being an attractive and delightly desert fruit, are highly nutritious. A single portion of fresh berries will supply more than the minimum daily vitamin C requirement, as established by the United States Food and Drug Administration. Surplus berries from the garden make a welcome addition to the home freezer.

Fortunately, the strawberry will grow and produce satisfactorily in a wide range of soil types, from sandy to heavy loams. Also, strawberries are not particularly sensitive to soil reaction, pH; however, they produce best on sandy loam soils with a pH of 5.8 to 6.5. If soil reaction is unknown, the local county agent can determine it. In general, strawberries can be grown on any good garden soil, preferably one amply supplied with organic matter.

The best type of plant is one that is virus-free. Such virus-free plants usually yield 50 to 75 per cent more than plants from ordinary planting stock. They are also more vigorous than conventional plants.

—:—

THERE IS NO distinct visual difference between these two kinds of plants. The only way to be certain the plants are virus-free is to purchase "registered" plants. These have been grown under state supervision, and the word, Registered, indicates that the plants are substantially virus-free, the best that can be obtained.

Virus-free plants of many varieties, but not all, are presently available. Growers should use them whenever possible.

Another class of plants, called "Certified," is also grown under state supervision. This certification indicates that the plants are free of most noxious diseases and insects; however, they may carry virus. These plants are the best available for many varieties.

Dormant strawberry plants are best for planting. Plants dug early and held dormant in storage, if properly stored, are as good as freshly-dug ones. Handle plants carefully to prevent their drying out.

WHEN PLANTS arrive, check the bundles and moisten the plants, if necessary. Unless planting can be done within a few days, "heel in" the plants until it is possible to plant them. To do this, dig a shallow trench, deep enough to accommodate the root system, in a sheltered area where the soil is well drained.

Open the bundles and place a single layer of plants against one side of the trench, so the crowns are partially above the soil line. Cover the roots with soil and firm it carefully. Plants so handled can be held for several weeks, if they are not allowed to dry out. Do not leave plants heeled in any longer than absolutely necessary.

It is generally wiser and cheaper, in the long run, to purchase nursery stock than to secure planting stock from your own or your neighbor's plantings. The better the planting stock, the better the yields you can expect.

Ideally, the proposed strawberry site should be used to grow a cultivated crop the season prior to planting. If, due to space limitations, it is necessary to plant an area that has been in sod, that sod should be plowed down the fall prior to planting.

THE TRAINING system to be followed in the strawberry planting determines the distance between the rows and between the plants in the row.

The majority of home gardeners use the matted row. With this system no effort is made to limit the number of runner plants, but these runner plants are kept within a row 18 to 24 inches wide. The plants are usually set 18 inches apart in rows 48 inches apart.

The other system is called the spaced row. In such plantings the number and location of runner plants is predetermined. The spaced row system requires much more care than the matted row.

Early spring planting is best. Plants should be set as soon as it is possible to prepare the site. Normally, this can be done during late March and early April. Do not attempt to plant until the soil is dry enough to work.

Prior to planting, remove all but two or three of the most vigorous leaves and prune away about one-third of the root system. Place the plants is predetermined. The spactem is spread out. Cover the roots until the crown (where the leaves arise) is level with the surface of the soil. If the crown is covered with soil, or the roots are exposed, the plants will do poorly and may die.

ROSES ARE America's most popular flower. Modern roses are ever-blooming and flower from late spring to fall. They're the ideal plant for any garden—large or small — advises the American Association of Nurserymen.

Here's One Way To Solve Problem Of Cry For Water

By The Associated Press

If you're tired of the constant summer refrain, "Mommy can I have a drink of water?"—who not do something about it.

A simple solution is an outdoor children's drinking fountain. The whole neighborhood can tank up on the hour without a single footprint on your newly-waxed kitchen floor.

The job is a lot easier than you'd think. It's no great chore with metal pipe, and a real cinch if you use the new plastic pipe.

Lightweight, flexible and easily handled plastic pipe will probably save both time and money if the drinking fountain is to be installed a fair distance away from the present outside faucet.

When plastic pipe is used for a fountain, make sure you get pipe with the NSF Seal of Approval. This NSF seal is the buyer's guarantee that the pipe has been approved by the National Sanitation Foundation for transporting potable water.

The pipe is joined to the source of water—usually a second outdoor faucet installed next to the original one—by screwing a special insert fitting into the spigot and attaching the plastic pipe over it with a stainless steel clamp.

The other end is hooked up in much the same way to the drinking fountain obtained from hardware store or plumbing supply house.

One type of fountain can be supported by a metal shaft driven into the ground.

In this case, the pipe can be attached to the shaft with clamps. If a large free-standing fountain is used, the pipe can be run up inside and will not show.

A trench 8 to 10 inches deep by about 8 inches wide is dug to bury the pipe, which is snaked into the trench to allow for earth movements.

The pipe will not rust or corrode and will give years of trouble-free service with little or no maintenance required. Provision should be made for draining the pipe in the winter.

Air Is Freshened By Trees, Shrubs

If you want a cleaner, healthier property — plant trees and shrubs, advises the American Association of Nurserymen.

For every pound of the dry weight of trees and shrubs in your yard, 11 cubic feet of pure oxygen have been given off. Trees and shrubs also help prevent dusts from blowing on your property—the air always is cleaner on the lee side of a group of trees, tests have shown.

Temperature changes in summer at ground level during hot weather are always less on the well planted property, because the heat level largely is transferred from the ground to the tree tops.

Climate control of properties with hedges and windbreaks makes a big difference in the livibility of home grounds. Much interesting data is being developed in the relation of trees and plants to health according to the nurserymen.

A major crime is committed somewhere in the United States on an average of every 4.3 seconds.

Blind Youth Pledges Eyes So 2 Might See

CHESTER, N. Y. (AP) — A blind young man has pledged his eyes so that two other blind persons may see.

Robert L. Card lost his sight in an automobile accident two years ago.

During his hospitalization, he had time to ponder his situation.

"Either I could lay around feeling sorry for myself and make everyone around me miserable, or I could make the best of it, start life again and try to get a job."

Recently, Card pledged his corneas during an eye conservation drive by the Middletown Lions Club. His corneas were not damaged. When he dies, they will be transplanted in the eyes of two blind persons.

A transplant cannot help Card.

Flat Paint Is Advised For Use On Radiator

Even though radiators are made of metal, don't use aluminum paint on them.

Although aluminum paint is designed for use on metal, if you put it on a radiator its reflective qualities serve to keep the heat inside instead of allowing it to pass through the radiator walls.

The proper procedure is to paint radiators with a flat paint, usuually the same paint you use for the walls.

Besides permitting maximum radiation, the use of the same color makes the bulky radiator fade into the background and become less noticeable.

Always turn the radiators off before painting. You can't do a good job if the surface is hot.

Old-Fashioned Hand Tool Still Serves Useful Role

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures Writer

The entrance of power tools into the workshop of the home handyman has not eliminated the need for a variety of hand tools.

A project on which electrically-driven machines are being utilized can be stymied by the absence of a particular hand tool at the proper moment during the undertaking.

As a general rule, most persons use a reasonable amout of care in the selection of power tools.

Price, naturally, plays a part in their choice, but they give consideration to other factors. They look at the construction of a machine, want to see how it operates and express more than passing interest in the name of the manufacturer.

In short, there is a firm realization in the value of quality. They want a product that will give good service and have a long life.

THIS ATTENTION to quality is far less noticeable in the matter of hand tools.

The average person, unlike the professional mechanic, is far too inclined to put price first in the purchase of screwdrivers, pliers, hammers and other hand tools. Yet it is in this particular area where quality is vital, since a poorly-made hand tool will not work properly from the start, entirely aside from the fact that it may be completely inoperative in a short time.

It is unfortunate, but true, that most of us can not detect the difference between a good hand tool and a poor one.

We know only after we have used it. The appearance of a quality tool is copied closely. The professional can tell the difference instantly. The amateur can not.

What, then, is the solution to this ever-present problem? How do you and I know that the hand tool we are about to buy is a good one?

Frankly, we can't be sure. We have to rely, to a certain extent, on the reliability of the manufacturer and, to a certain extent, on the price, since we can not escape the fact that, in this realistic world, we generally get what we pay for.

-:-

BUT WE CAN inspect and feel and compare the merchandise, not only to get the best buy at the moment, but to gain the shopping experience that will enable us to be a more discerning purchaser the next time.

Eventually we will be able to tell instantly, as a professional can, which hand tool falls into the quality class.

Even if you can not determine whether a tool is well made merely by looking at it, you may be able to categorize it quickly when you compare it with another tool selling at a different price.

A properly-balanced hammer will feel comfortable and will have a grip that is secure. A good pair of pliers will have jaws that meet perfectly, with no gapping between the teeth and no scaling or sharp edges on the handle. And so on.

Compare every time you are about to make a purchase of hand tools—and before you know it you will become a kind of connoisseur, a distinction that will make your home chores easier, safer and in the long run, more economical.

FOR PRIVACY, COLOR AND BEAUTY, says The American Association of Nurserymen, plant a well-landscaped front yard. Flowering trees, shrubs and handsome lawn will brighten the exterior of any home.

Motorist In Distress Fails To Return Spare

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — Carlton Shepard of Tucson noticed a motorist stranded along the highway near Nogales.

The motorist said he had a flat tire and no spare. Shepard took his spare tire out of the trunk and told the motorist to use it until he reached a nearby service station.

That was the last Shepard saw of the motorist.

Hamlet Is No Help To Attorney In Court

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — William Malsh, an attorney, called on Hamlet in pleading a court case.

Malsh, who was defending Frank Castillo in a car theft trial, paraphrased Hamlet, "Alas poor Castillo . . . He was a joy to his children whom he kissed I know not how oft."

Hamlet wasn't much aid. Castillo was sentenced to 18 months in the state prison.

Good Year, Not Record, Anticipated For Housing

By STERLING F. GREEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mortgage credit is tight and may stay tight for quite a spell.

But interest rates are not expected to go much higher, and 1960 still can be a good—not a great—housing year.

These are today's predictions of most government and housing industry economists.

Across the country as the 1959 building season ended, the average interest rate on "conventional" mortgages, meaning those not underwritten by the government, was officially reported at 6.1 per cent.

In the West the average was 6.5 per cent. In some areas discounts, special fees and extra charges were said to be increasing the actual cost to the home buyer.

HOUSING officials and some industry experts believe that interest costs, whose rise began to slow residential building at midyear 1959, may be approaching a plateau at which they will remain through the early months of 1960.

On this assumption, the National Association of Home Builders forecasts 1,200,000 to 1,250,000 new-home starts next year.

That compares with perhaps 1,300,000 in 1959 and 1,396,000 in the nation's biggest year, 1950.

There is no sign that the administration will move soon to make mortgage credit easier. Tight money is its big weapon against inflation. The credit screws will stay on until inflationary pressures subside.

Commissioner Julian H. Zimmerman of the Federal Housing Administration reflected the official attitude in telling the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB), meeting in Toronto, Canada:

"The demand for housing and the availability of money will be adequate to support a high level of construction.

"Housing starts do not have to be at the 1,400,000 level to produce a good year."

NAREB's misgivings were not allayed. Rising interest costs, "hidden charges" being introduced into home financing, and other aspects of the market were termed a serious threat by the realtors' president, James M. Udall of Los Angeles.

Though the interest ceiling on FHA-insured mortgages was boosted to 5¾ per cent last September—which means 6¼ per cent to the home buyer after the insurance charge is added in—builders are still being required to take discounts when they sell the mortgages to lenders.

That means they receive less than the face value of the mortgage. Some simply add enough to the price of the house to cover the difference. And Udall charged that some lenders failed to cut the discounts when the FHA rate went up.

On the conventional loans the interest rate is bumping into the legal ceiling of 6 or 7 per cent imposed by the usury laws in a number of states.

To get around this, some lenders reportedly have added special fees and charges to the financing costs. A home builders' official said this practice is becoming "very prevalent."

Proper Light Adds Comfort To Bathroom

By The Associated Press

If you remodel your bathroom, plan it so that you provide lighting where it is needed most.

The two key areas are around the mirror and inside the medicine cabinet.

It is before the mirror that members of the family apply make-up, shave, comb their hair and generally take care of their grooming.

A light that goes on automatically inside the medicine cabinet when the door is opened is the best way to prevent picking up the wrong bottle in the middle of the night.

New luxury medicine cabinets provide the home owners with an all-in-one solution to the lighting problem.

They combine full perimeter lighting in four fluorescent fixtures on all sides of the cabinet with an inside automatic light.

The perimeter lighting surrounds the mirror to eliminate all dark spots and shadowed area in the reflection.

They are bright enough, the manufacturer claims, to eliminate the need for additional light fixtures in the bathroom.

The new cabinets are available both in swing-door and sliding door models. A selective light switch permits lighting either only the side lights, the top and bottom lights, or all four together.

Installation of medicine cabinets is fairly simple and many homeowners could do the job themselves.

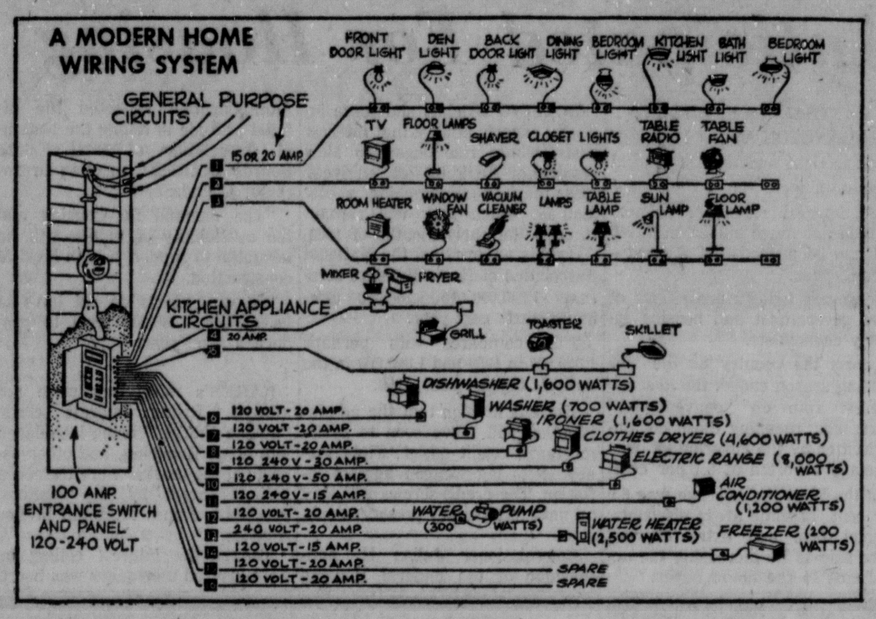
Is Your Home Wiring Up-To-Date?



If you live in an older home, the chances are good that your available electrical horsepower is well below your needs.

You can't lay the blame for this on the builders of the house. Twenty years ago, folks used electricity to supply light and little else. The ty years ago, folks used electricity only electric appliance likely in the kitchen, for instance, was a refrigerator.

In the kitchen of a modern home, you might easily find a dozen electric appliances, each a handy work saver for the housewife.

AND THE number of electric appliances in homes keeps increasing. Automatic washers, clothes dryers, dishwashers and garbage disposal units are no longer considered luxuries. Air conditioning is rapidly gaining popularity.

Proper wiring for these installations is necessary to avoid difficulties such as service interruptions due to overloaded circuits and will help assure better operating efficiencies from each unit.

When voltage drop becomes excessive in the circuit between the fuse box and the appliance or light source because of overloading, it results in poor lighting and inefficient or totally ineffective appliance operation.

A 5 per cent voltage loss, for example, produces a 10 per cent loss of heat in any heating appliance and a 17 per cent loss of light from an incandescent lamp.

THE USUAL modernization job can be divided into two main parts. The first is getting additional power from the electric utility company into the house, and the second is distributing it properly where needed.

"Service entrance" is the term electricians give to the wires that run from the utility pole into the house.

In the old days entrances were almost invariably two-wire, one "hot" and one "ground." To bring in sufficient power for modern living and operate any 220-volt appliance, a three-wire service entrance is required. Two of these wires are hot, and the third ground. The heavier these wires are, the more power they can carry.

The incoming electricity is split up by a "service panel" which divides the power among the various circuits. Fuse protection is provided on both the main supply and each individual circuit.

Frequently in a modernization job, the old lighting circuits can be left undisturbed. By installing new outlets to service the big appliances that were overloading the old ones, the system can be put back into balance.

Electrical modernization is a job for professionals, not amateurs. If your home needs it, look up a local electrical contractor.

Plant-Feeding Schedule Presented

Spring is just a wish away and plants are beginning to take on new life.

Constant supplies of food will be needed by these growing plants if they are to produce greener lawns and more beautiful gardens. This means regular feeding of fertilizers to supply plants the nutrients they need for steady growth.

Experience has shown that fertilizer can be applied about any time, but if it's applied on a regular schedule, the results will be better.

The best times for fertilizing are shown in a spring fertilizing calendar prepared by the Armour Agricultural Chemical Co. By following it reasonably well, home owners should be rewarded with greener, thicker lawns and healthier, lovelier shrubs, trees and plants.

THE AGRONOMISTS suggest the following rates and methods of fertilizer application to accompany this spring plant - feeding schedule.

Roses — Abundant roses are the result of generous feeding. As soon as they are established in their new locations after transplanting, they should be fed regularly in small amounts throughout the growing period. A special rose food is best to use, applied at the rate of about one-half cup per plant when buds begin to grow and repeated every four to six weeks.

Bulbs — When planting spring bulbs in beds or rows, use two to four pounds of complete plant food for each 100 square feet of space (about one tablespoon per bulb). At the first sign of growth above the ground, re-apply fertilizer at the same rate regularly.

Trees — New or established trees need four pounds of plant food for turf and trees for each inch in the diameter of the trunk four feet above the ground. The food should be placed around the tree's root area in holes 12 to 18 inches deep and one and one-half feet apart. Fill the holes to the top with good soil, firm and water thoroughly.

Shrubs and evergreens — These handsome plants differ so much in size that plant food requirements may vary from as little as one ounce per plant (one foot tall) to one-half pound per plant (three feet tall). Bed plants require about three pounds for each 100 square feet of space. In all cases, food is placed under the mulch which surrounds the plant so that roots are not disturbed.

Broad-leaved evergreens should be fed with a special plant food for acid-loving plants, since they grow best in acid soil.

VEGETABLES — Initial applications of plant food for vegetables should be broadcast over the garden plot at the rate of four to six pounds for each 100 square feet of space. Two to three pounds more should be worked into the soil after it has been spaded or plowed. When seeds are planted, a stream of fertilizer no larger than a lead pencil should be sown about three inches to the side of the seed. This feeding should be repeated after the plants are up and again before they reach maturity.

Azaleas — Where azaleas are planted close together in beds, feed two and one-half to three pounds of plant food for acid-loving plants, spread thinly over 100 square feet of space. For single plants, a feeding consists of one-quarter to one pound of plant food, depending on the size of the plant. Do not scratch the fertilizer into the roots, but merely sow in the mulch and water well.

Camellias — These plants grow best in acid soil that is light and friable and should be fed with a special fertilizer for azaleas and camellias at the rate of one-half pound for an 18-inch plant to several pounds for large plants. When applying, roll back the mulch and spread the fertilizer over the surface underneath, replace the mulch and water well.

Lawns — Grass needs fertilizer throughout the growing season and for this reason, light applications of a complete plant food for lawns and gardens at regular intervals is best. Lawns should be fed at least three times a year in this area: twice in the spring and once in the fall. For greener, heavier turf, light feedings once or twice in the summer pay good dividends.

General feeding requirements call for two to three pounds per 100 square feet of space on new lawns and from one to one and one-half pounds over the same area for established lawns.

Prisoner Borrows Gun To Hunt On Pen Farm

CARROLLTON, Ga. (AP) — Claude Boykin, serving a life prison sentence for murder, borrowed a shotgun from a guard and went hunting on the Carroll County Prison Farm.

A game warden found Boykin stalking birds and turned in a report.

Prison Warden Hubert Hendrix said he planned no punishment for the guard or prisoner because such action wasn't too unusual.

"Boykin has proved himself reliable," Hendrix said. "I let him drive the truck and run errands often."

An Old Porch Can Add New Look To Home

By DAVID L. BOWEN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

If you have an old - fashioned house with an old-fashioned porch. don't be content to put an old-fashioned swing on it.

That space is valuable and probably could be incorporated into the main part of your home with ingenuity and some soul-satisfying hard work.

When we moved into a 30-year-old 2½ -story Dutch Colonial after outgrowing a smaller home, we found part of the job already done.

The porch was enclosed on all three sides by French windows. However, the porch interior was finished with the same wooden shingles that covered the exterior.

WHILE pleasant in the summer, the area could serve no useful purpose in cold weather. It became a catch-all for oddly-shaped items that resisted storage elsewhere and an echoing cavern to be crossed before actually entering the house.

Presumably there are many other older homes — which make popular havens of high building costs — with a similar vestige of bygone architectural style. Each one undoubtedly presents its own modernization problems, but for what it's worth here's an account of what we did with ours.

The first phase took a lot of time. We spent weeks talking about what we were going to do. The biggest need on the ground floor was a bathroom, a luxury overlooked in the original plan which put that facility upstairs.

Also, with an infant in the household and prospects of piano lessons in the future, there was obvious use for a small room that could serve as a downstairs nursery now and music room later. The "before" and "after" floor plans show the eventual solution. It was worked out by an architect after our amateur cogitation produced nothing but proposals with a distinct air of the makeshift.

EXECUTION of the plan presented no problems beyond the skill of an average handyman. The plumbing and wiring, of course, were farmed out. A do-it-yourself manual provided enough advice for the rest.

First step was ripping off the wodden shingles, exposing the flat siding. Then the partition between porch and the former closet was cut. Since one stud was removed on this bearing wall, its neighbors were doubled up. Framing around the old closet door was removed and a stud centered in the middle of the opening.

Since the deck flooring of the porch was 2" below the living room level, part of the porch area was raised with inexpensive furring lumber and two thicknesses of ½" plywood.

Studs for the new partitions went up quickly and one of the French windows was closed off. This required a section of new siding and shingles on the outside.

Then insulation was placed in walls and above the ceiling. After the raw plumbing and electrical cables were in place, gypsum wallboard was nailed to the studs and the new rooms began to take final shape.

—:—

AFTER several experiences with spackling wallboard joints, I have one word of advice for those trying it the first time: don't try to do the job in one application. The best you can hope for on the first application is to properly seat the perforated tape.

After sanding, the next coat begins to cover the tape. The second sanding, a third coat of spackle, and a final sanding should produce a professional result.

Painting and installation of tiles and wall covering in the powder room came next.

We bypassed the problem of matching up old and new floor surface by extending the wall-to-wall carpeting of the living room into the new area up to the foyer. Floor tiles were used in the foyer and the new room.

In the living room, a bookcase was built in at the spot where the old closet door opened and the old window on the porch sealed off. Then to tie both old and new together, the living room was redecorated to match the new area.

Washington's Birthday Traditional Apple Day

SALEM, Ill. (AP) — Apples have been given to students in Salem public schools for 61 years on Washington's birthday.

The custom was started in 1899 by Joseph and Frank Schwartz, brothers who operated an orchard.

The traditional apple day has been continued by Joseph Schwartz's daughter, Mrs. Christine De Linck, wife of Air Force Lt. Col. Martin J. De Linck.

Mrs. De Linck orders more than 2,000 apples every year from wherever her husband is stationed. This year they live in Sacramento, Calif. In 1959, they were in the Panama Canal Zone.

When He Watches TV, He Gives It His All

LEXINGTON, Ga. (AP) — When Johnny Wymbs watches television, he gives it his all. The middle-aged farmer had his eyes glued on the screen when there was a knock.

"What's wrong," he inquired of the caller.

"Your house is burning down," the visitor replied.

They got out just as the roof caved in. The fire had started on the second floor. Wymbs and his TV were on the first.

Loving Care Given Frogs By Zoologist

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — A Florida State University zoologist has three frogs in a bathtub in his office and he's giving them loving care.

Dr. John A. Davison hopes they can be nursed to maturity and that he can use them to initiate what he thinks will be the first pure strain of albino frogs in the world.

The albinos showed up as an accident of nature in the cross-breeding of normal colored frogs to get tadpoles for research on blood circulation. They are lacking in pigment, the material that gives color to the skin.

After producing a pure strain, Davison plans to give the offspring to other scientists conducting research in genetics, pigmentation and embryology. It takes a year or more to raise the frogs to the breeding stage.

"The only albino frog in any other country about which I have heard is an adult male discovered recently in England," Davison said.

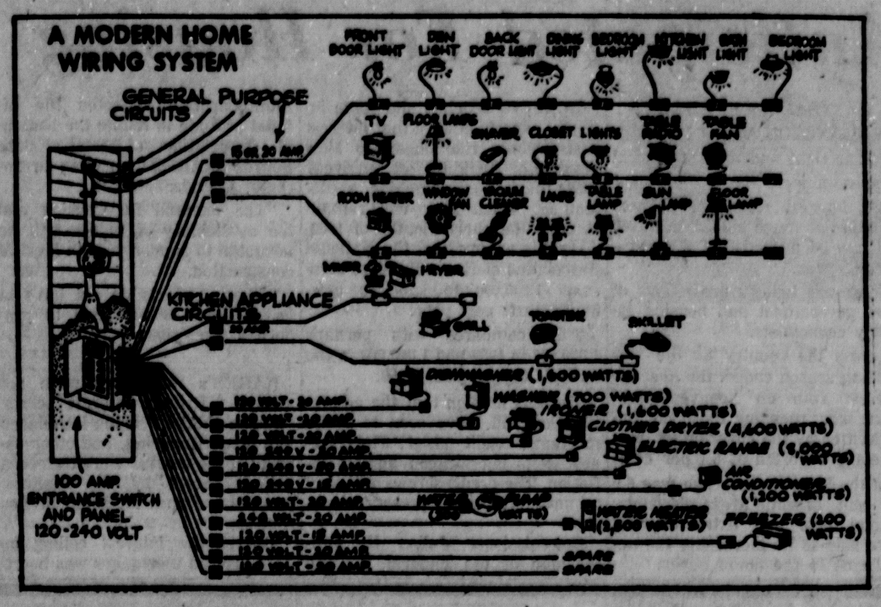
Is Your Home Wiring Up-To-Date?



THE USUAL modernization job can be divided into two main parts. The first is getting additional power from the electric utility company into the house, and the second is distributing it properly where needed.

"Service entrance" is the term electricians give to the wires that run from the utility pole into the house.

In the old days entrances were almost invariably two-wire, one "hot" and one "ground." To bring in sufficient power for modern living and operate any 220-volt appliance, a three-wire service entrance is required. Two of these wires are hot, and the third ground. The heavier these wires are, the more power they can carry.

The incoming electricity is split up by a "service panel" which divides the power among the various circuits. Fuse protection is provided on both the main supply and each individual circuit.

Frequently in a modernization job, the old lighting circuits can be left undisturbed. By installing new outlets to service the big appliances that were overloading the old ones, the system can be put back into balance.

Electrical modernization is a job for professionals, not amateurs. If your home needs it, look up a local electrical contractor.

If you live in an older home, the chances are good that your available electrical horsepower is well below your needs.

You can't lay the blame for this on the builders of the house. Twenty years ago, folks used electricity to supply light and little else. Twenty years ago, folks used electricity only electric appliance likely in the kitchen, for instance, was a refrigerator.

In the kitchen of a modern home, you might easily find a dozen electric appliances, each a handy work saver for the housewife.

AND THE number of electric appliances in homes keeps increasing. Automatic washers, clothes dryers, dishwashers and garbage disposal units are no longer considered luxuries. Air conditioning is rapidly gaining popularity.

Proper wiring for these installations is necessary to avoid difficulties such as service interruptions due to overloaded circuits and will help assure better operating efficiencies from each unit.

When voltage drop becomes excessive in the circuit between the fuse box and the appliance or light source because of overloading, it results in poor lighting and inefficient or totally ineffective appliance operation.

A 5 per cent voltage loss, for example, produces a 10 per cent loss of heat in any heating appliance and a 17 per cent loss of light from an incandescent lamp.

Plant-Feeding Schedule Presented

Spring is just a wish away and plants are beginning to take on new life.

Constant supplies of food will be needed by these growing plants if they are to produce greener lawns and more beautiful gardens. This means regular feeding of fertilizers to supply plants the nutrients they need for steady growth.

Experience has shown that fertilizer can be applied about any time, but if it's applied on a regular schedule, the results will be better.

The best times for fertilizing are shown in a spring fertilizing calendar prepared by the Armour Agricultural Chemical Co. By following it reasonably well, home owners should be rewarded with greener, thicker lawns and healthier, lovelier shrubs, trees and plants.

THE AGRONOMISTS suggest the following rates and methods of fertilizer application to accompany this spring plant - feeding schedule.

Roses — Abundant roses are the result of generous feeding. As soon as they are established in their new locations after transplanting, they should be fed regularly in small amounts throughout the growing period. A special rose food is best to use, applied at the rate of about one-half cup per plant when buds begin to grow and repeated every four to six weeks.

Bulbs — When planting spring bulbs in beds or rows, use two to four pounds of complete plant food for each 100 square feet of space (about one tablespoon per bulb). At the first sign of growth above the ground, re-apply fertilizer at the same rate regularly.

Trees — New or established trees need four pounds of plant food for turf and trees for each inch in the diameter of the trunk four feet above the ground. The food should be placed around the tree's root area in holes 12 to 18 inches deep and one and one-half feet apart. Fill the holes to the top with good soil, firm and water thoroughly.

Shrubs and evergreens — These handsome plants differ so much in size that plant food requirements may vary from as little as one ounce per plant (one foot tall) to one-half pound per plant (three feet tall). Bed plants require about three pounds for each 100 square feet of space. In all cases, food is placed under the mulch which surrounds the plant so that roots are not disturbed.

Broad-leaved evergreens should be fed with a special plant food for acid-loving plants, since they grow best in acid soil.

VEGETABLES — Initial applications of plant food for vegetables should be broadcast over the garden plot at the rate of four to six pounds for each 100 square feet of space. Two to three pounds more should be worked into the soil after it has been spaded or plowed. When seeds are planted, a stream of fertilizer no larger than a lead pencil should be sown about three inches to the side of the seed. This feeding should be repeated after the plants are up and again before they reach maturity.

Azaleas — Where azaleas are planted close together in beds, feed two and one-half to three pounds of plant food for acid-loving plants, spread thinly over 100 square feet of space. For single plants, a feeding consists of one-quarter to one pound of plant food, depending on the size of the plant. Do not scratch the fertilizer into the roots, but merely sow in the mulch and water well.

Camellias — These plants grow best in acid soil that is light and friable and should be fed with a special fertilizer for azaleas and camellias at the rate of one-half pound for an 18-inch plant to several pounds for large plants. When applying, roll back the mulch and spread the fertilizer over the surface underneath, replace the mulch and water well.

Lawns — Grass needs fertilizer throughout the growing season and for this reason, light applications of a complete plant food for lawns and gardens at regular intervals is best. Lawns should be fed at least three times a year in this area: twice in the spring and once in the fall. For greener, heavier turf, light feedings once or twice in the summer pay good dividends.

General feeding requirements call for two to three pounds per 100 square feet of space on new lawns and from one to one and one-half pounds over the same area for established lawns.

New Materials, Methods Point To Home Of Future

When talking about the American Home of the Future, even the best-informed expert needs a high-powered crystal ball.

The truth is that nobody can tell for certain what a typical new residence will look like 25 years from now.

Less spectacular but more firmly grounded in fact are predictions about materials and techniques that will be used in constructing the House of the Future.

One of the channels these new products and concepts use in getting from the manufacturer to the public is the Research Institute of the National Association of Home Builders.

HERE'S A description from Architect Herman York, a trustee of the institute, of some of the promising developments currently receiving attention. Many are now emerging from the experimental stage and either are, or soon will be, on the market:

In a research house built at South Bend, Ind., the exterior walls and roof were built of "sandwich panels" with foamed plastic core and plywood skins.

The wall panels are 3" thick with an attractive redwood exterior and have thermal qualities better than conventional construction. Because of the speed of erection, such walls can be built at lower cost than using the usual wood stud method with its multiple layers of miscellaneous materials.

In many sections of the country, houses are built on slabs of concrete. A new foaming process for concrete makes possible a warmer floor due to the insulating value of the air bubbles which form a part of the final product.

A new kind of door is being used in some of today's houses. It is placed "on" the opening instead of "in" it. It operates much like a refrigerator door.

In some instances these doors are 8 feet high (from floor to ceiling) reducing the work involved in building a wall above the door. The hardware is simple and less expensive. Such high doors ventilate the room more efficiently.

HELP FOR HOUSEWIVES. Engineering improvements are making possible use of wall-hung toilets in residential bathrooms. The advantage in cleaning ease is apparent.
home and garden with 4-36m—how to set up

Plastics are finding many new uses, particularly on the interior. Accent panels made to look like brick are light in weight and easily formed to suit many conditions. Foamed polystyrene and ground brick are used in panels for attractive interior decor.

—:—

THE LATEST in windows is one which is made of a sliding piece of glass. It's known as a sashless window and eliminates a frame, giving greater visibility. Simple hardware provides positive pressure at the center overlap of the glass.

One of the newer items receiving universal acceptance is the wall hung toilet. Formerly this kind of water closet has been used chiefly in commercial installations requiring high water pressures and larger piping. They were noisy and not suited for residential use. The ease of maintenance of wall hung fixtures is readily apparent.

In the bathroom fixture area are such new products as one piece molded polyester reinforced plastic lavatories.

The vanity top and lavatory are one piece, eliminating the joint and producing a more easily cleaned surface. Researches are working on one piece bathrooms in which the entire room, wall, floors, ceiling and fixtures are molded of one integral material, without joints or seams.

The maintenance of houses is an important factor of cost to a home owner.

Much research is going on in the field of plastic and vinyl coated materials to produce attractive lasting finishes. In the same area, aluminum and baked enameled steel are now finding their way into the housing market.

Most Favor Homey Look

CHICAGO (AP) — The home that Americans love to call their castle may one day be geared like a factory.

But will it be home?

"That's the problem in creating the super-home of the future with all its gadgets," says a Chicago paint manufacturer.

William M. Stuart, at a meeting of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America, warned that the American woman won't take kindly to a new home unless it looks like the home of her childhood with its warmth and security.

"The American woman could have robots to cook, clean and take all the drudgery out of her housekeeping today if she were willing to live in a home resembling an electronics laboratory," he said.

According to Stuart, women want labor-saving devices, but they won't sacrifice traditional beauty to get them.

"No matter how physically comfortable or practical it might be, an all-tile-and-plastic room that could be cleaned or even sterilized hospital clean in minutes would prove unattractive to women," he said.

Stuart predicts finishes for homes will be more durable, easier to clean, dust-repellant and easier to redecorate.

He envisions windows that open themselves, pushbutton doors and furniture that dusts itself.

But the problem is to make the machinery of the home virtually invisible.

"We know how to build more practical homes than we do, but no one would care to live in them," Stuart said.

Van Wert Sets Peony Events

VAN WERT, Ohio — Van Wert will be the mecca for flower fanciers and festival followers June 10 and 11 when the American Peony Society will hold its 55th annual national exhibition and meeting and the Van Wert Peony Festival Association will hold its 16th Peony Festival.

The peony exhibition will be held in conjunction with the annual Flower Show sponsored by the seven garden clubs of the county. Entrants will be unlimited as to geographic location.

The two-day calendar includes judging of flowers on the 10th, with the exhibition being formally opened by Queen Jubilee XVI so named for the Jubilee Peony that brought national fame to Van Wert when awarded best of show in Madison Square Gardens New York many years ago.

The annual meeting of the American Peony Society will be held the evening of the 10th at the new American Legion Home. Visitors will have an opportunity to visit the exhibition in the National Guard Armory and witness the afternoon and evening festival parades.

More than 60 bands and numerous floats help make the colorful parades.

Flowers are entered in the national show from many states and Canada. In many places they are kept in cold storage for weeks prior to shipment.

Army Telegrapher Tops In His Field

FT. MONMOUTH, N. J. (AP) — S. Sgt. Theodore R. Patterson is a telegrapher's telegrapher.

He can send 30 words a minute with either hand, 18 a minute with his right foot and 16 with his left foot.

Patterson is an instructor at the Army Signal School here and has mastered a technique called "yell-a-graph." He can adjust the sensitivity of his key low enough to send code by voice pressure.

Pole In U.S. Feels He Was 'Born Again'

MONROE TOWNSHIP, N. J. (AP) —Dr. John S. Zakrzewski, former Olympic swimmer and member of the Polish underground, feels he was born again when he came to the United States five years ago.

Of his earlier life, he recalls serving with the Polish underground against the Germans, being wounded and send to a prisoner of war camp, liberation — and returning to the underground to fight communism.

Faced with arrest in 1951, he fled the country and finally reached the United States under the sponsorship of St. Francis Hospital in Jersey City.

The 47 - year - old physican now serves in the New Jersey State Home for Boys, a correctional institution which houses some 600 youths. He will stay there, he says, because the institution and the hospital "are my family now" and the boys "need my help."

Roses Have Many Uses In 'Dressing Up' House

Roses have many uses on the home property. In addition to their color, fragrance and multiplicity of bloom, they also are functional in relation to the landscaping of the property.

According to the American Assocation of Nurserymen, some of the functional uses of rose plants are as follows:

For a formal rose garden — Plants should be selected to provide for cutting exceptional blooms of high quality that can be conversation pieces. Hybrid tea roses are widely used in the formal rose garden.

As a living fence — Roses can help give privacy, depending on the plants selected. They can supply thousands of small blooms or hundreds of large blooms in many colors. Floribunda, grandiflora or climbing rose plants may be used.

As specimen plants, roses add color to the property. Grandiflora roses have a big future in landscaping.

Tee roses are colorful and distinctive bordering walks or standing amongst lower - growing plants to add more height, dignity and elegance.

Miniature roses are attractive as low border plants. They provide a supply of dainty flowers for indoor decoration, especially table decorations.

A climbing rose plant beside a porch can add shade as well as lovely color and bloom. Or properly trellis - trained, the plants can enliven a drab garage with brilliant color.

Everyone recognizes the rose immediately. Some of the newer varieties are conversation pieces, and are much admired by passers-by.

New rose colors, from lavender to orange, with many new shades of yellow, pink and red, have been produced by famous hybridizers here and abroad.

Select your rose plants with care.

With the helpful advice of your nurseryman, roses can serve functionally as well as for beauty. Select quality plants — for a few cents more they may cost they pay off in two or three times as many blooms.

Water is slightly compressible. At a depth of one mile in the ocean, a cubic foot of water will weigh about one-half pound more than at the surface.

New Materials, Methods Point To Home Of Future

When talking about the American Home of the Future, even the best-informed expert needs a high-powered crystal ball.

The truth is that nobody can tell for certain what a typical new residence will look like 25 years from now.

Less spectacular but more firmly grounded in fact are predictions about materials and techniques that will be used in constructing the House of the Future.

One of the channels these new products and concepts use in getting from the manufacturer to the public is the Research Institute of the National Association of Home Builders.

HERE'S A description from Architect Herman York, a trustee of the institute, of some of the promising developments currently receiving attention. Many are now emerging from the experimental stage and either are, or soon will be, on the market:

In a research house built at South Bend, Ind., the exterior walls and roof were built of "sandwich panels" with foamed plastic core and plywood skins.

The wall panels are 3" thick with an attractive redwood exterior and have thermal qualities better than conventional construction. Because of the speed of erection, such walls can be built at lower cost than using the usual wood stud method with its multiple layers of miscellaneous materials.

In many sections of the country, houses are built on slabs of concrete. A new foaming process for concrete makes possible a warmer floor due to the insulating value of the air bubbles which form a part of the final product.

A new kind of door is being used in some of today's houses. It is placed "on" the opening instead of "in" it. It operates much like a refrigerator door.

In some instances these doors are 8 feet high (from floor to ceiling) reducing the work involved in building a wall above the door. The hardware is simple and less expensive. Such high doors ventilate the room more efficiently.

Plastics are finding many new uses, particularly on the interior. Accent panels made to look like brick are light in weight and easily formed to suit many conditions. Foamed polystyrene and ground brick are used in panels for attractive interior decor.

THE LATEST in windows is one which is made of a sliding piece of glass. It's known as a sashless window and eliminates a frame, giving greater visibility. Simple hardware provides positive pressure at the center overlap of the glass.

One of the newer items receiving universal acceptance is the wall hung toilet. Formerly this kind of water closet has been used chiefly in commercial installations requiring high water pressures and larger piping. They were noisy and not suited for residential use. The ease of maintenance of wall hung fixtures is readily apparent.

In the bathroom fixture area are such new products as one piece molded polyester reinforced plastic lavatories.

The vanity top and lavatory are one piece, eliminating the joint and producing a more easily cleaned surface. Researches are working on one piece bathrooms in which the entire room, wall, floors, ceiling and fixtures are molded of one integral material, without joints or seams.

The maintenance of houses is an important factor of cost to a home owner.

Much research is going on in the field of plastic and vinyl coated materials to produce attractive lasting finishes. In the same area, aluminum and baked enameled steel are now finding their way into the housing market.

HELP FOR HOUSEWIVES. Engineering improvements are making possible use of wall-hung toilets in residential bathrooms. The advantage in cleaning ease is apparent.

Most Favor Homey Look

CHICAGO (AP) — The home that Americans love to call their castle may one day be geared like a factory.

But will it be home?

"That's the problem in creating the super-home of the future with all its gadgets," says a Chicago paint manufacturer.

William M. Stuart, at a meeting of the Painting and Decorating Contractors of America, warned that the American woman won't take kindly to a new home unless it looks like the home of her childhood with its warmth and security.

"The American woman could have robots to cook, clean and take all the drudgery out of her housekeeping today if she were willing to live in a home resembling an electronics laboratory," he said.

According to Stuart, women want labor-saving devices, but they won't sacrifice traditional beauty to get them.

"No matter how physically comfortable or practical it might be, an all-tile-and-plastic room that could be cleaned or even sterilized hospital clean in minutes would prove unattractive to women," he said.

Stuart predicts finishes for homes will be more durable, easier to clean, dust-repellant and easier to redecorate.

He envisions windows that open themselves, pushbutton doors and furniture that dusts itself.

But the problem is to make the machinery of the home virtually invisible.

"We know how to build more practical homes than we do, but no one would care to live in them," Stuart said.

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — An inexperienced crew of convicts, who make Oklahoma car license plates, was blamed for a number of duplicate tags. It was estimated there were 70 twin tags and police were notified of the error.

Van Wert Sets Peony Events

VAN WERT, Ohio — Van Wert will be the mecca for flower fanciers and festival followers June 10 and 11 when the American Peony Society will hold its 55th annual national exhibition and meeting and the Van Wert Peony Festival Association will hold its 16th Peony Festival.

The peony exhibition will be held in conjunction with the annual Flower Show sponsored by the seven garden clubs of the county. Entrants will be unlimited as to geographic location.

The two-day calendar includes judging of flowers on the 10th, with the exhibition being formally opened by Queen Jubilee XVI so named for the Jubilee Peony that brought national fame to Van Wert when awarded best of show in Madison Square Gardens New York many years ago.

The annual meeting of the American Peony Society will be held the evening of the 10th at the new American Legion Home. Visitors will have an opportunity to visit the exhibition in the National Guard Armory and witness the afternoon and evening festival parades.

More than 60 bands and numerous floats help make the colorful parades.

Flowers are entered in the national show from many states and Canada. In many places they are kept in cold storage for weeks prior to shipment.

Army Telegrapher Tops In His Field

FT. MONMOUTH, N. J. (AP) — S. Sgt. Theodore R. Patterson is a telegrapher's telegrapher.

He can send 30 words a minute with either hand, 18 a minute with his right foot and 16 with his left foot.

Patterson is an instructor at the Army Signal School here and has mastered a technique called "yell-a-graph." He can adjust the sensitivity of his key low enough to send code by voice pressure.

Pole In U.S. Feels He Was 'Born Again'

MONROE TOWNSHIP, N. J. (AP) —Dr. John S. Zakrzewski, former Olympic swimmer and member of the Polish underground, feels he was born again when he came to the United States five years ago.

Of his earlier life, he recalls serving with the Polish underground against the Germans, being wounded and send to a prisoner of war camp, liberation — and returning to the underground to fight communism.

Faced with arrest in 1951, he fled the country and finally reached the United States under the sponsorship of St. Francis Hospital in Jersey City.

The 47 - year - old physican now serves in the New Jersey State Home for Boys, a correctional institution which houses some 600 youths. He will stay there, he says, because the institution and the hospital "are my family now" and the boys "need my help."

Roses Have Many Uses In 'Dressing Up' House

Roses have many uses on the home property. In addition to their color, fragrance and multiplicity of bloom, they also are functional in relation to the landscaping of the property.

According to the American Association of Nurserymen, some of the functional uses of rose plants are as follows:

For a formal rose garden — Plants should be selected to provide for cutting exceptional blooms of high quality that can be conversation pieces. Hybrid tea roses are widely used in the formal rose garden.

As a living fence — Roses can help give privacy, depending on the plants selected. They can supply thousands of small blooms or hundreds of large blooms in many colors. Floribunda, grandiflora or climbing rose plants may be used.

As specimen plants, roses add color to the property. Grandiflora roses have a big future in landscaping.

Tee roses are colorful and distinctive bordering walks or standing amongst lower - growing plants to add more height, dignity and elegance.

Miniature roses are attractive as low border plants. They provide a supply of dainty flowers for indoor decoration, especially table decorations.

A climbing rose plant beside a porch can add shade as well as lovely color and bloom. Or properly trellis - trained, the plants can enliven a drab garage with brilliant color.

Everyone recognizes the rose immediately. Some of the newer varieties are conversation pieces, and are much admired by passers-by.

New rose colors, from lavender to orange, with many new shades of yellow, pink and red, have been produced by famous hybridizers here and abroad.

Select your rose plants with care.

With the helpful advice of your nurseryman, roses can serve functionally as well as for beauty. Select quality plants — for a few cents more they may cost they pay off in two or three times as many blooms.

Water is slightly compressible. At a depth of one mile in the ocean, a cubic foot of water will weigh about one-half pound more than at the surface.

Major In Air Force Unavailable, Anyway

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — When David Childers received notice from his local draft board recently that he is no longer eligible for the draft, he was more amused than interested.

Childers is an Air Force major, commander of a B47 bomber at Lockbourne Air Force Base here—and a 17-year veteran of military service.

Expansion Put On Production Line

By DAVID L. BOWEN

HICKSVILLE, N. Y. (AP)—There's a brand new kind of merchant at one of the shopping centers in this sprawling Long Island suburb.

With the same sales efficiency his chain store neighbors use to move a new brand of soapflakes or a power lawn-mower, he sells the housewife on a pair of new bedrooms in the attic, a breezeway and attached garage, or a glamorous recreation room in the basement.

The merchant's name is Herbert Richheimer and his business is home improvements.

There's nothing uncommon about the trade. But Richheimer has brought to it an uncommon amount of organization and salesmanship.

—:—

IN THE SHOPPING center showroom he calls a "Museum of Modern Home Improvements" most families can find a foot-long miniature house model close to the lines of their own home.

They then can attach to the model any of several possible expansions: a wing on the back, a full second story, a shed dormer. The customer doesn't have to try to visualize what the addition would do to the appearance of his house; he can actually see it.

Nothing about interior finishing is left to the imagination either. The basement of the showroom is cut up into compartments, each with a different type of wall and floor surface.

Richheimer salesmen find these props more than attractive selling aids. They help remove the plain ignorance of many home owners on the basic fundamentals of residential construction.

—:—

"IF YOU ASK a man in the presence of his wife if he knows what a hip roof is, he'll always answer yes," Richheimer insists in his heavy German accent. "He actually doesn't, but he wants to impress his wife. We avoid probable misunderstanding by making certain everything is clear all along the line."

"Ingenuity, new ideas and honesty on the part of the home improvement contractor will give the public the trust it should have in the industry," Richheimer continues.

"There should be no need for a family to move every few years because of lack of space. People should not be afraid to buy home improvements to make their original home grow with family and income."

In addition to attractive merchandising, Richheimer's large staff of salesmen shoulder the prospect's complete burden. If the job requires electricians, masons, plumbers and heating engineers in addition to carpenters, all are available.

The company also assists in arranging financing on big jobs, often accomplished by refinancing the mortgage.

Best proof of the attraction of this type of thorough organization in the home improvement contracting field is Richheimer's fantastic growth. In his sixth year of business, he expects to gross four million dollars in 1960.

—:—

ONE OF THE factors promoting the rapid growth is the predominance of the development homes in this section of Long Island, particularly Levittown, N. Y., where Rchheimer got his start operating out of his own home.

In many cases, additions became as standard as the original models. Richheimer now has a second office in Levittown, Pa.

However, his business is not completely dependent upon standard models. He says only one-third of his current New York work is in Levittown. He's willing to tackle any house.

"Once a home owner has made use of all available space within the original walls," Richheimer says, "he has two basic choices—either expanding out or up."

Great care should be taken to make sure an addition adds beauty to the home, he warns. "If an extension looks makeshift or inappropriate, it will destroy the value of the original home rather than adding to it."

Generally speaking, he has found the ranch easiest to alter. It can sprout a wing in any direction. Split-level designs lend themselves to additions either in the front or back. Most common is an extra bedroom in the rear behind a ground level recreation room.

ONE OF Richheimer's most recent innovations is raising the roof on a truss constructed ranch home, a feat previously considered impractical.

Truss construction is a building shortcut common to small ranch homes built on a slab. Its ceiling beams do not have sufficient strength to carry a second floor. By inserting 4 x 4 supporting columns and running a girder down the middle of the ceiling, Richheimer and his staff have found a way to give such a ranch a second story without serious disruption of the first floor and without impossible expense.

"If the home owner does the interior finishing," he says "we can provide space for four rooms and a bath by raising the roof on such a house for from $3,400 to $3,900. If we do the complete job, except for decorating, it runs $5,900 to $7,400."

"There is no procedure or skill involved in this type of radical remodeling that is beyond the ability of a home improvement contractor anywhere in the United States," he adds.

"All it takes is the conviction that any problem can be solved if enough thought and ingenuity is brought to bear."

Here's Best Way To Fix Concrete

The best way to obtain a good bond of new concrete to old is to "lock" it in place.

When repairing a crack in a sidewalk or concrete floor, here's how this locking action can be accomplished:

Cut out the old concrete with a hammer and cold chisel so the bottom of the crack will be wider than the top. Remove all chips with a stiff brush. Then flush the area with water. This will keep the old concrete from robbing moisture from the patching material.

Fill the crevice with a stiff mixture of new cement. Tamp it lightly to make certain that the entire opening is filled.

After the patch begins to set, press it hard with a wooden float, adding more patching material if necessary. Then finish off to match the old work.

Cure the patch the same as you would any new concrete, keeping it damp to prevent rapid drying.

Care Should Be Used In Picking Roof Color

Don't forget the roof in planning the exterior color scheme of a house.

One of the best ways to select a roof color is to choose an over-all color scheme for the house—roof, walls and trim.

Then decide whether the roof color is flexible enough to harmonize with a second over-all color scheme that you might choose in the future.

Roofs last for a long time. That's why the color should be versatile.

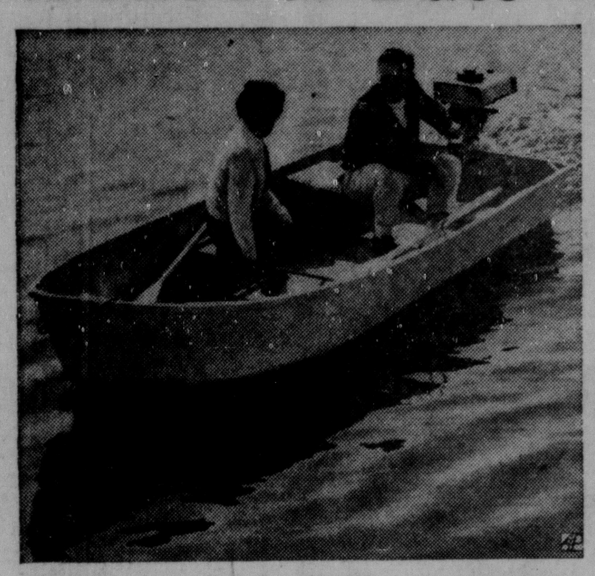
New Mower Cuts Grass Or Trolls For Bass

CHORES FINISHED. This forward looking young man, after cutting grass, wheels his power mower to a dock and begins the conversion that makes it an outboard motor. He removes cutting blade and the three bolts which hold motor to mower frame.

MAKE-READY. Motor shaft is linked to propeller by coupling and heat exchanger is mounted on motor housing.



CRUISING DOWN THE RIVER. Propeller assembly locks on boat transom in conventional way. Tiller provides directional control. Manufacturer claims motor will push a 14-foot boat containing three men at speeds ranging from 4 to 7 miles an hour.

Spray, Dust Applications Will Rout Tomato Insects

Most insects of tomatoes can be controlled successfully by making regular spray or dust applications every 7 to 10 days with a general-purpose garden spray or dust.

It's easier to prevent insect damage than to correct a serious infestation later. Read the label and use insecticides according to manufacturer's direction.

The following pests are common problems on tomatoes:

Flea Beetles are small, black, jumping beetles which eat small round holes in the leaves of newly-set plants. Spray or dust plants before transplanting and repeat treatment in the garden if necessary. Dieldrin, methoxychlor or rotenone are effective in controlling flea beetles.

Cutworms are soft, smooth-bodied larvae, dull gray, brown or black in color, which commonly cut off plants near the soil surface. There are many different kinds which vary in appearance and habits.

Commercially prepared baits are effective when spread over an infested area in the late afternoon (1 lb. per 1,000 sq. ft.) Damage can also be prevented by wrapping a 4-inch cardboard collar around the stems. Sprays or dusts containing TDE, Toxaphene, Dieldrin or Heptachlor applied around the base of the plant also give control.

Aphids commonly attack the growing terminals. These pink and green soft-bodied plant lice suck sap from growing plants. Malathion applied as a spray or dust effectively controls aphids.

Hornworms feed on the leaves. These large (3 to 4 inches long) green worms, with diagonal lines on the side, have a prominent horn on the rear end. Handpicking these larvae usually gives satisfactory control in the home garden. TDE applied as a spray or dust is the most effective insecticide.

Fruitworms commonly burrow into the developing fruits and feed inside. The greenish-brown worms are usually about 1½ inches long and have light stripes along the sides and back. Collect and destroy infested tomatoes, or apply TDE as a spray or dust when first fruit sets. Repeat 2 or 3 times at 10-day intervals.

Use insecticides at the manufacturer's recommendations.

Fusarium Wilt, caused by certain fungi that live in the soil, is a problem frequently encountered where the same garden spot is used for vegetables and flowers year after year.

In addition to the use of resistant varieties mentioned in section on varieties, the tomatoes should not be planted in the same spot in the garden any more often than is necessary. Plant them in one part of the garden one year and in a different part the next.

Blights on tomatoes are of two types, early and late.

Late blight is the more spectacular. It can be very destructive to unsprayed plants during periods of cool, damp weather.

Late blight is most likely to occur in late August or September but can appear in late June or July. It causes a rapid, severe defoliation of the plants and a destructive fruit rot.

Infected leaves have irregular, greenish - black, water - soaked patches which enlarge rapidly during cool, wet weather. Infected fruits remain solid, but a dark, brownish - green area develops on them. This may cover only a part or all of the surface of the fruit.

Early blight is caused by an entirely different fungus and is often a problem early in the season. However, it may not appear until late in the season.

Although this fungus can infect tomato stems, fruits and leaves, the most usual and conspicuous symptom is irregular, brown, dead areas in the leaflets. These areas usually appear on the oldest leaves first. Infected leaves eventually die and drop off the plant. Defoliation starts at the base of the stem and gradually moves upward.

To prevent losses from tomato blights and other foliage diseases, set the plants where they will be shaded as little as possible, especially during the morning.

In addition, follow a regular and continuous dusting or spraying program. You should start this program about 3 weeks after the plants are set in the garden and continue it throughout the season.

Grass Clippers, Yet!

DES MOINES (AP) — Mrs. Walter Schlievert says she saw a woman drvier, her car stuck in a snowbank, take a pair of hedge clippers from the trunk of the car, and try to clip away the snow from the rear tires. Then, says Mrs. Schlievert, the woman put the clippers under one of the tires, hoping to get the car to move. It d[illegible]t — until she called a tow truck.

Pears And Babies

LOCKPORT, N. Y. (AP) — There are indications that babies' appetites are going to spur a moderate increase in pear tree plantings in Niagara County. Fruit growers says baby food manufacturers think pears are among babies' favorite foods, and the nation's healthy birth rate may mean a greater demand.
